Remember the hilarious time we had last Memorial Day at The Queen's Head Pub? All those exposed weenies going around from hand to hand? Oh! Those hot buns? The meat was packed ever so tightly? June Bug standing on his head doing the split? Let's do it again, say around 1:00 PM, May 30th.

P.S. Don't tell a soul. It's the best kept secret in town.

Womyn on the Move

Gay Pride '94

by Lindsay Yanez

Gay Pride Week is upon us once again. Thank God! I always need the boost it provides before enduring another long, hot summer in the Big Easy. Oh yes -- the celebration will be festive and the parties will be numerous. The rainbow flags will be out in abundance as will most of the dykes that stay dormant for the remainder of the year. It, no doubt, will be a week to remember.

It seems like more people than ever are aware of this year's importance for us as gay men and women, even the heterosexual community has exhibited a different degree of sensitivity. I'm wondering, as I sit and type this, why I feel like I should be thanking them for their tolerance. They're certainly not giving us anything we don't already have a right to.

Yet we, as both a community and as individuals, have fought for the basic human rights which many younger gay men and lesbians take for granted. Sometimes I too, forget that men and women have actually lost their lives while demanding the right to love whomever they choose.

I'm 28 years old now, and this will be my 12th year to celebrate the freedom to be me. I truly believe that my generation is reaping the rewards of what so many brave men and women sowed all those years ago, in the days of Stonewall and even before. We no longer have to sneak into secret clubs to dance and drink, and meet with the women that are such an important part of our lives, as they did then. Neither do we live with the nagging fear that at any moment we'll be fired from our jobs because someone suspects that we might "be that way".

The rules in every community are a little different than the next, but here in the French Quarter, U.S.A., we are free to hold hands without too terribly much fear of retribution. It's so easy to take it all for granted. So in our celebration of today's victories, let's not forget the incredible price that was paid by those who went before us. The ones who never saw a Gay Pride parade, or a rainbow flag flying from a front porch or those whose wearing of the pink triangle in those hellish days of Germany, 1942, wasn't of choice.

My dad and I had a terrible disagreement about my wanting to participate in a

HIV+ individuals needed

The HIV Research Division of the Louisiana Cardiovascular Research Center is seeking HIV positive individuals to participate in the study of a new drug to enhance T-Cells.

These individuals must meet the following criteria: --HIV positive as confirmed by ELISA and Western Blot, --18 years or older, --has been treated with and tolerated AZT for at least six months, --may be taking DDI or DDC [must have been on therapy at least 4 weeks prior to study], --T-cell count of 200-400mm, --asymptomatic at time of screening, --male or female.

Individuals who qualify will receive monthly labs and study drug free of charge for the length of the study which could last up to two years.

If you are interested in further information on this or other HIV studies at LCRC, please call Eric at 504/821-8158. All calls are confidential. ♀♀♂♂

Death care discussion set

Tharp - Sontheimer - Laudumiey Funeral Home and Garden of Memories Cemetery will host an informal discussion of death care highlighting cremation, memorialization and the benefits of pre-planning. Sponsored in conjunction with AIDS Law of Louisiana, the discussion is set for Thursday, May 26 from 6-9pm at Tharp - Sontheimer - Laudumiey, 1225 N. Rampart Street in New Orleans.

Representatives of AIDS Law of Louisiana will discuss the many legal topics one should consider with pre-need planning such as Power of Attorney, living wills, trusts and financial planning.

This discussion is free and open to the public. Social workers involved in AIDS work are encouraged to attend as well as all who have an interest in cremation with dignity.

Refreshments will be served.

GAY PRIDE '94 ...from 4

Gay Pride parade when I was 16 years old. I wasn't an exceptionally political or outspoken dyklet at the time, it was just a great reason to party with all my friends. My dad told me, "You should never be ashamed of who you are, I just don't see why you have to go screaming to the whole world that you're gay." It's hard to go against the wishes of someone whose opinion you respect as much as I did my fathers. And although at the age of 16 I had done nothing for the gay movement that I could particularly be proud of, I'm glad that I took part.

Years later he would tell me that he respected me for taking that stand, both against him and a society which didn't make the lifestyle I was living an easy one.

I don't think I understood what the words Gay Pride really meant back then. Now there meaning couldn't be any more defined. I am proud of me, the community of gay men and women that I am a part of, of the ones who fought all the hard won battles that give me the freedom to write an article like this, and the parents who are more supportive than ever of the children whose lives are so different from those of their own.

GAY PRIDE - it's not just for breakfast anymore! ♀ ♀ ♂ ♂

New network in the works

A new group is being formed in the Baton Rouge area to unite high-school and collegiate gay, bisexual, and lesbian organizations throughout the Southeast. The Gamma Beta Lambda Network is the brain child of three college students who were seeking a way to bring together the gay community through leadership, fellowship, and service. Tyson Jackson, Andrea Long and Patrick Abadie set out over three months ago to form an organization that would offer more than just a local campus experience.

"The idea came around after I dropped out of a college fraternity. I liked the bond that the group had and how you could go to any campus and share that bond," Jackson said. He sought the help of two close friends to develop the idea. After two weeks of debate and fine-tuning, the group chose to stay with the Greek theme and adopt the letters Gamma Beta Lambda which stand for the gay, bisexual and lesbian community.

Ms. Long stated, "We are hoping to establish a strong relationship among the existing organizations and eventually be able to help start new organizations." She also commented on future expansion of the group. Regional leadership conferences are being planned to offer any interested person the opportunity to explore their place in the gay, bisexual and lesbian community.

The network is currently seeking any group, business, or individual that is interested in "linking" themselves with Gamma Beta Lambda. The group will establish a data base of these names for future contacts. If you would like more information about the group or would like to volunteer your help, please contact Tyson Jackson or Andrea Long at 504/336-1786. ♀ ♀ ♂ ♂

B.R. homes stay opens

by Damon Veach

Brentwood House is a home stay with class. It's also Baton Rouge's first gay guest house.

It is located in a quiet neighborhood near the Baton Rouge Country Club, off I-12. Actually, when you make your way down this lovely street, you are coming very near to the Hammondshire Shopping Center and Tara High School, in the Bocage vicinity off Jefferson Highway.

The acre is heavily wooded, and clothing is optional on the deck and hot tub area. The landscaping is outstanding.

This is a gay-owned private home, and minors are not permitted. A library of video tapes and books are available, breakfast is included and special [intimate] dinners can be arranged.

This is a home stay that is not operated as a business. It is a home open to quests. Try this one out soon, and step into 1890's elegance. Phone 504/924-4989; FAX/924-1738. ♀ ♀ ♂ ♂

New Orleans Notebook

by Melba Carondelet

CINCO DE MAYO was celebrated again at the Mississippi River Bottom on St. Philip Street as a fundraiser for the oldest gay carnival krewe in New Orleans. I saw Larry Branch, with David from Lafayette beside him, serving up big plates of Latino and/or Tex/Mex cuisine. I managed to eat a child's portion of thirty seven hot tamales which sweet Larry covered with a dollop of about one gallon of hot meat sauce. It was just delish.

Then I managed to con two lovely ladies of the night or perhaps we should say Senoritas de las calles who were vaguely familiar. One was in a splendid and dashing red dress with swirls of material across her hips. She was the epitome of a damaged Carmen as in Bizet's Carmen. Hot stuff in that hot red dress, she bought me a small five gallon pitcher of beer to wash down my child's portion of good hot delicacies. Of course there were all the other Tex/Mex dishes one could desire but I was too much of a lady to indulge my true appetite after my aforementioned snackapoo.

I was shocked and delighted to discover that the Lady in Red was non other than my favorite Middle Eastern/American/German/Frenchman Mickey Gil. He was simply dashing, my dears, in that demented drag and played it for all it was worth. Little moues, flutterings of the eyelashes, delicate wrist tossings. It was just too too refined.

Not to be outdone, another lady wearing a black ensemble startled old Melba by striking a languorous pose on her bar stool that was right out of an early Marilyn Monroe calender. Of course this lady was fully costumed in a voluminous black creation which hardly disguised her as Miss Hoyle, another Petronious element of true royalty. These zealously overdone ladies of the night were as charming as any one could ever be to Melba, who had arrived in a huff because the hustler she'd contracted out as an escort fell into a dead faint when she opened the door upon his arrival.

They're still trying to revive the stud, but La Melba couldn't wait around. Neighborhood Watch told her they would take care of the situation so that she could rush off to the Petronious Cinco de Mayo fundraiser. Later that night she was advised that she had given Mr. Stud, aka Meat, such a fright that he could not be revived. Oh, well, easy come, easy go, I guess.

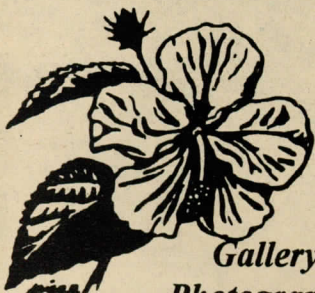

The MRB was packed for the celebration and even more so when several muscular young male dancers took to the stage and the pool table tops to writhe and wiggle to the music. Poor Melba nearly lost her one good eye staring at one particular star who was so well equipped for success that she sorely resented selling her emeralds to pay the rent last month to her evil landlady, that King of the Dykes, Lon Chewlin.

Someone told La Melba that the object of her eyefection was named Rip. No not the Rip we all lovingly call Mr. Balloon. The Rip who was dancing on the stage. Of course Melba also has a heart throb for Jose. And John, and Stacey and Corey and Johnny and... well, you get my drift.

Then the faux females got on stage
and presented a show that only the professionals can give. Among those profs strutting their stuff for the cause were Miss Illusions of Louisiana, Lisa Beumann, who did her wonderful impersonation of Liza with an M. We also got to see Miss Gay Louisiana America, Brittany Foxx; 1st Runner-up Miss Illusions, Stephanie Williams and Miss Houma, Sybil Montgomery. These lovely lads are the kind of lovely illusionists that are so perfect straight women want to rip their eyelashes off. Or other things.

Well Melba tells those jealous straight females that it serves them right.
If they'd take a few lessons on how to be a lady from these faux females they might learn a thing or two. Like how to walk, how to talk, how to dress, how to wear
makeup, how to make a man happy.

And many a man was made happy that day at the Petronious Fiesta de Mayo party as raffles and prizes, prizes, prizes (like that giant color tv that Melba surely thought she'd win) all added to the fun of the celebration. Melba was able to get Lady Gil on the line right before press time and Lady Gill told her that an uptown dowager from the Garden District had won the color TV and she also said the fundraiser was a success but Melba knows it could have been better.

Krewes are going through tough times and we should be more generous.
After all we only have four gay krewes existing and we should do all we can to support them. They are truly a cultural asset to the entire community, even though Melba has been banned from joining any of them. She still believes they're great.

And guess who won the dinner a deux at Le Jardin restaurant? Why, none other than that handsome George Patterson who is also that delightful Mickey Gil's paramour for 20 years come this May 19th. They are going to celebrate their anniversary at the restaurant. We all wish George and Mickey many, many more. What a wonderful thing to celebrate.

AT ALMOST THE SAME TIME
that day the Golden Lantern was sponsoring Miss Blanche's First Mother's Day Corsage Contest. Miss Blanche will tell you who won if you catch her in a good mood when Miss God is not hovering over her one good shoulder. The other one has been worn down from wearing that little shoulder strap purse in the same spot when she hitchhiked all the way from Demopolis, Alabama in her bare tootsies.

So, I'm not sure who won in any of the following categories: BIGGEST, PRET-TIEST AND UGLIEST, but it doesn't matter because La Melba got it all confused and thought they were talking about something other than corsages and didn't want to know under those misconstrued circumstances, who the winners might have been. My goodness, she thought, "It could have been one of my X's from Texas."

The Friendly Bar held a rummage sale fundraiser for Buzzy's Boys & Girls and Melba dropped by to see how it was going. She found Marti manning the table piled high with wonderful resale items and Marti said they'd done a fairly good day having sold about 500 bucks worth of goodies.

Miss Jerce, owner of the Friendly Bar, was found in the club trying on a new pair of socks. Or was she adjusting her seams on those nylons? Or was she pulling a thorn from her toe? Or was she admiring that vivid blood red toenail polish? Anyway, ask her. But she managed to keep from toppling from that stool which is better than La Melba could have done under any circumstances. No, Miss Jerce was not juiced up. She was just trying to do something with her feet?

The two day sale raised some $1,478
for this worthy charity. After La Melba tried to get a pickie of the event, she was hustled out of the club. Someone said she was breathing in too much of the air and taking up too much space. Or hustling too many customers. Anyway, she was sent and went. Poor Melba.

Why she's even less welcome than that Ms. Curly M. Barrison, that alleged theatre critic who works for Moxie Magazine, a publication of the Yiddish Press.
She's been banned from several theatres locally and Melba's even heard she's been banned from Manhattan. Poor thing!
Poor, poor platinum blonde thing!

The Social Scene

What's hot & what's not?!?

by Rip Naquin & Marsha Delain

Every year April and May has the social butterfly's of the Big Easy running from one end of town to the other. And of course this year was no exception.

April has become the roundup of the wounddown social season. It kicked off with huge Easter celebrations throughout the city from decorated Easter egg contests to Easter bonnet contests, and what would Easter be without Willo's Annual Easter Bonnet Parade. Many of the bars were innovative this holiday season with successful and unusual contests.

Lafitte's hosted its "Come Lay Your Prize Egg" contest, while Ziggy's hosted its "Decorated Easter Egg Contest" and annual "Easter Bonnet Contest". The Golden Lantern came up with the "Faux Faberge Party & Contest" boasting some fifty decorated Easter Eggs, and New Orleans first "Easter Cap Contest". MRB hosted its "Annual Easter Egg Hunt", while The Friendly Bar hosted its annual "The Good, The Bad and The Ugly Easter Bonnet Contest".

Sundance, now Footloose, was the starting point of "Willo's 5th Anniversary Easter Parade" and ended at the same location with Sundance's "Easter Bonnet Contest". And Good Friends hosted its annual "Easter Bonnet Awards", with Heartbreak hosting its "Easter Bonnet Contest".

The following weekend brought an end to the life of one of New Orleans oldest and most popular bars, Jewel's Tavern. After countless years of service to the gay community, and its legendary Full Moon theme parties, Jack and Don decided to retire to Gulf Shores for some well deserved R&R. This pub will be sadly missed by the thousands and thousands of visitors over its colorful 18 year history. Good luck guys. We'll all be thinking about those sunny beaches in your new environment.

Then it was off to the anniversary extravaganza's, grand opening bashes, shows of every talent, which had socialites flitting and flying throughout the Crescent City.

The 5th Annual Miss Illusions of Louisiana Pageant presentation took place at City Lights, one of the best clubs in the city we've ever seen for shows. Lisa Beaumann with her trademark portrayal of Liza Minelli took top honors followed by Stephanie Williams and her exquisite performance as Marilyn Monroe.

Porn star Bo Summers live show at Midtowne Spa was the rave of those who attended this unusual and provocative event. Manager and assistant manager Bob and Randy have been bringing in some popular stars for the enjoyment of their patrons.

Next up was the grand opening bash of Footloose at the corner of St. Peter and N. Rampart. This social event brought out legends and stars from the past and present in droves to wish new owners Mac and Todd much success. The huge buffet lasted for hours and it was not due to lack of party-goers. The guys had trays and trays of wonderful eats on hand for the event.

Later that same evening we saw the Mr. Knights Contest produced by the Knights d'Orleans at Mama Rosa's right down the street from Footloose. It was our first leather contest and how interesting it turned out to be. The fantasy presentation with hot sizzling candle wax by members of the Knights d'Orleans and reigning Mr. Knight Kevin Elkins, had the audience held hostage, or should we say spellbound. Obviously the huge leather crowd in attendance went wild for this form of unusual entertainment. And our congratulations to Melvin Knight who took top honors and possession of the Mr. Knights belt from last years winner Kevin Elkins. First Runner-up went to Deck Decker while Steve Lawhorn took the Second Runner-up position.

And a day later was the "11th Anniversary Party & Drag Extravaganza" of The Corner Pocket and the diva herself Ms. Fly. Fly's grand entrance via motorcycle through the center of the bar had the audience up on their feet cheering and applauding one of New Orleans' most popular stars. And stars reigned supreme as personality after personality hit the stage in salute of Ms. Fly.

Then Chi Chi LaRue took Oz by storm for its first Wednesday show night, while Freddy Burch dazzled audiences at 4 Seasons and The Mint.

And speaking of 4-Seasons, a sunny spot in Metry, Chuck and Bill celebrated the bars 2nd Anniversary Bash with entertainment by Freddy Burch and Profiles, starring Scarlett O'Hara Butler and Aux Shea. On Sunday, the final night of the three day spectacle, the guys went overboard and gave free drinks to their many friends and patrons.

Golden Lantern owner Randy Russell introduced his new party hostess and managing partner, the lovely Lady Lucille at the "Golden Lantern's 27th Anniversary Show". Legends turned out by the truckloads for this historic and earth-shattering event.

Then The Club hosted its Rooftop Beach Party with boys, bears, balls, barbecue and beer. Gene and the guys at The Club are always hosting some of the most unusual and popular parties for the enjoyment of their many patrons.

Hundreds of thousands poured into the city for the 25th Anniversary Jazz and Heritage Festival. And the men over at Wood Enterprises hosted their 9th Annual Jazz Fest Shuttle Bus for both weekends. Patrons at Lafitte's, the Clover Grill, Good Friends Bar and Rawhide took advantage of this service with the simple purchase of a drink or burger.

Max Rodriguez flew in from The Roxy in New York to guest DJ at The Parade for its Jazz Fest party presentation.

And Oz presented its second Wednesday Show Night with "A Salute To The Stars". This unusual presentation had the Oz cast come out first in a character portrayal for the first half of the show not letting the audience know who was playing each character. Then for the second half of the show, the cast came out as themselves doing a totally different role. Although the entire cast was excellent, our favorites had to be Miss Illusions of Louisiana Lisa Beaumann, Miss Houma Sybil Montgomery and 1st Runner-up Miss Illusions of Louisiana Stephanie Williams.

May 1st, the last day of Jazz Fest ended with a bang. That evening, The Mint presented the comedy event of the year, The CC Rae Show. We have never experienced the incredible comedic versatility which CC Rae displayed, much to the enthusiastic approval of the audience in attendance. Of course everyone loved her comedy portrayals of Peg Bundy, Pee

Wee Herman, and Eunice, but her Barbara Striesand portrayal was exact, down to a science. However the closing number as the Church Lady, complete with the help of two life-size dummies, which were capable of doing high kicks and total arm movements, was the highlight of this superb show. The Mint's own Curtis, tells us that CC will be back on the boards at this popular entertainment club. Watch for the next CC Rae Show and mark your calendars. This is one show you will not want to miss.

DiscoMANia '94, A Night of Classic Disco, hosted by the New Orleans PWA Coalition and the Bourbon Pub/Parade was a huge success raising some $3,300 for the Darrell Hamby Memorial Food Bank. This annual event was attended by 250-300 of New Orleans finest. The Bourbon Pub/Parade should be congratulated on the huge support it lends the Food Bank year in, year out.

Next up was Mother's Day Weekend and Good Friends first annual Queen Mother Contest. If only the whole city had known you only had to wear a crown or tiara to participate, their would have been contestants galore. But, bartenders Ken and Terry were hysterical in their Queen Mother portrayals.

The Pretty Boys of Houston starring Corey, Rip and Johnny hit the MRB stage gyrating the night away in a special Mother's Day celebration for all those mothahs out there. And MRB's own legend, Bar Baron Andy Boudreaux, was on hand with his own special brand of humor leading dancers to thrill and electrify the audience. But that is something MRB patrons come to expect when Andy is present for dance presentations.

Tongues were just a waggin' around town and a huge crowd from New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Lafayette and Houma poured into Oz Wednesday, May 11. Why? To get a glimpse of international porn star Lex Baldwin, of course! However, the enthusiastic audience was treated to the hit Disco Disco Disco cast show first. The Carwash opener starring Miss Michelle was a great start to an electrifying evening of entertainment. And bravos to Raquel Chevalier for her outstanding dance rendition to the disco hit Party. Not to be outdone, Lisa Beaumann hit the stage doing her letter-perfect rendition of New York, New York. After a few other performances, the moment we all had been waiting for ...LEX BALDWIN!!! There was no disappointment in the air this evening. We thought we were back in Rome as Lex danced his way across the stage in a skimpy gladiator style costume. After stripping down to his g-string, all hell broke loose as herds of customers crowded around Lex, each vying for the opportunity to get their $$$ in just the right spot. Following the show Lex posed with numerous individuals to have their polaroid done for only $5. Profits from the photo shoot benefited NO/AIDS Task Force.

Tourists and locals alike gathered at the corner of Dauphine and St. Louis on May 12th as cabs and limousines pulled up to the curb letting out party-goers in every form of attire imaginable. Yes, it was Miss Do's annual birthday extravaganza, where anybody that's anybody on the bar circuit must come to see and be seen. The Wild Side diva after a short two-week diet looked fabu in a hot and sexy jet-black designer creation given her by friend and business partner Ms. Fly of Corner Pocket fame. Miss Do's new vibrant look was highlighted with beautiful blond locks. Flowers and gifts galore piled up at The Wild Side for this legendary New Orleans socialite. Well wishers were on hand for the big event devouring the sumptuous buffet provided each and every year for Miss Do's closest and dearest.

And Oz hosted another huge and successful Black Out Party on, you guessed it, Friday, the 13th. Drove of jetsetters came out for this popular event to "feel the excitement"!

One of the biggest social events of the year on the West Bank had to be the annual Mr. and Miss Full Moon Contest hosted by David and Billy of Harvey's popular Full Moon pub. All tips raised during the contest each year are donated to NO/AIDS Task Force and this year's pot reached some $249. Emcee Nicole Sanchez led the show with the help of entertainers Joan Jett, Lady Stephanie, Penelope Pittstop and Airline Adult Books own Tori Welles. An energetic Broadway style dance rendition by Felina LeBlanc brought the audience to their feet and the judges gave her top honors as the new Miss Full Moon. A wonderful country western presentation complete with horse and hay gave Sweet Sensation the 1st Runner-up spot. A handsome and hot Barry took top honors as Mr. Full Moon, while the 1st Runner-up spot went to Lonnie. And DJ Steve Cool spun for this fun event.

Next on our calendar was MRB's Customer Appreciation Day Sunday, May 15th. Hundreds and hundreds of entry's vied for loads of prizes given each year by Andy Boudreaux to thank his many fine friends and patrons for their support and patronage. Stage star Becky Allen emceed the successful event as the famous MRB dancers tantalized the crowd.

After our MRB visit, we were off for a little Marigny madness. Our first stop was the Friendly Bar which had just completed a two day rummage sale raising some $1,478 for Buzzy's Boys and Girls. Manager Jon Natcher was bartender that evening and anyone who knows Jon can look forward to some interesting stories and comments as he slings those cocktails.

Then we took a short walk over to Another Corner and visited with manager Matt Mattheisen. Big Daddy Lou himself was there with a crowd of bar patrons enjoying a leisurely Sunday evening. We had a chance to meet Boots newest bartender Tanner, while Matt described his vision for our 1995 Mardi Gras balcony display. But, of course, ya'll will have to wait till at least New Year's to find out this coveted secret.

Then we crossed Franklin to A Different Corner where party-goers were celebrating Joey's birthday bash with loads of eats and some two-steppin' music. Manager Wes Lott was making sure everyone was passin' a good time.

And our last stop was a few steps down the street to Big Daddy's to see Janice Medlock and Sylvia Schroeder as they made wonderful music much to the approval of a very enthusiastic crowd. Janice and Sylvia are two of our dearest friends and as entertainers, they can't be beat. They're on hand every Sunday at Big Daddy's from 5pm till with no cover. If you like fun music, this is definitely the stop you won't want to miss. ♀♀♂♂

Theatre Reviews & Commentaries

by Patrick Shannon

NORD THEATRE is making the impossible dream come true again with legendary Ty Tracy's production of DREAMGIRLS. Mr. Tracy, who recently won a Big Easy Award for Lifetime Achievement in the Theatre, shows why he so rightfully deserved this tribute. A show that was a high tech expensive wonder on Broadway becomes another kind of wonder on the small stage of the comfortable NORD Theatre in Gallier Hall and it's a wonder which works!

Most of us know that DREAMGIRLS is a musical inspired by the lives, loves, failures, and successes of the four women who became known as THE SUPREMES. In this musical tribute to the MOTOWN sound of this successful trio, Henry Kreiger (music) and Tom Eyn (lyrics) with the help of a few million dollars astonished New York theatre goers with this show. How then could anyone possibly make such an expensive musical work in a realitively low-bucks production at a community theatre?

Well, ask the man who did it, Ty Tracy. "I concentrated on the story," said Director Tracy. "I know there was no way I could do all that fantastic stage business at NORD, so I prayed that a lot of talent would show up for the tryouts and I looked for acting and singing abilities. I think I got it with this cast."

Well, Mr. Tracy, you certainly did! This is probably the best non-professional production of DREAMGIRLS anyone will ever get to see in New Orleans. The singing abilities might be somewhat of a stretch in the more difficult numbers, but what is lacking in a wider vocal range and technique is more than compensated for in the stage presence and high-voltage acting abilities of the young men and women who perform with gusto and sincerity in this cast of African Americans.

High marks are given for the tremendous energy from every performer, an energy which explodes on the stage as soon as the show opens. Tracy's direction is a whirlwind of effective use of the small space with which he must work. He manages to make every scene seem bigger and more theatrical than would seem to be possible, and his pacing of the action is both breathless and it works.

The musical and vocal direction by Gloria C. Fallo is a near miracle as is the rich full sound of the backstage 8 piece band, with Ms. Fallo leading from the piano. The hard work and tireless efforts of everyone involved shines in this production.

The costumes by Bob Bruce are chic and gorgeous and seem to keep coming and coming, each display of them more beautiful than before. The choreography by Leo Jones is very au courant, lively, well-timed and fills the stage with fun and fancy footwork. Lighting by Kirsch Jones works in every instance. Everyone should be mentioned in this large cast but space does not allow.

However, the one white actor in the show, the incomparable David Tringali, plays the M.C. with style and assurance. Tringali is always a sure thing on stage. The women who play the four singers with top-notch effort are Troy Bechet as Effie, Kim Prevost as Deena, Carmen White as Lorrell, and Ronelle Marie Collins as Michelle. These songbirds will knock your socks off so be prepared!

Curtis Taylor, Jr. is done with much soigne by Benford Davis. Michael Larche gives us a fine C.C. White and Tony Horne does a very good job with Tiny Joe Dixon. Alan Liddell is a well-etched Marty, and Leo Jones does an unforgettable job as James "Thunder" Early. Miguel Malespin as Wayne, Lloyd Joseph Martin as Frank, and Vincent V. Bartley as Jerry, all add fine supporting roles to the final product of this show and the final and cumulative result is one of a successful and very entertaining evening of musical theatre. Bravo to the entire competent and talented cast! It's a remarkable production.

THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE now playing at LE PETIT is a fine production indeed. A stage full of handsome young men and beautiful young women, all of whom can sing and dance and act should be sufficient cause to attend this production, but if we add to that the ever so charming and delightfully effective direction of Michael Howard, the tremendous musical know-how of Pamela Legendre at the conductor's podium, the clever and jolly choreography of Beverly A. Trask, the scrumptious and beautiful costumes of David Jilg and his ambitious and creative sets, all shown under the best of lighting conditions by Jon Champelli, then we have no excuse for not seeing what may well prove to be one of the best shows of the Le Petit season.

One can't help but love the sweetly campy and charming Major General Stanley as done by the chameleon talents of Alton Geno. His somewhat elfin interpretation of this scene stealing role is a delicious concoction of acting technique. Christopher E. Carey as the handsome and swash buckling Pirate King is everything one would dream of in a leading man. He sings and swings with a masculine grace certain to win the hearts of everyone who sees his portrayal. Evan Ragland Farmer, Jr. as Samuel the Pirate Lieutenant is a match in talent as is Sean Lough who plays Frederic the Pirate Apprentice both of whom perform with much aplomb and self assurance. Daniel Garvey as the Sergeant of Police adds a large dollop of talent to this tastfull mixture of wit, camp, humor, and comedic timing.

And we mustn't forget the ladies. In the lead as Mabel, Melissa Marshall handles all of the coloratura ornamentation with vocal skill and she does her role with a sweet charm that is a perfect balance to the strong singing voice and swash buckling stage business of Mr. Carey. Jennifer Lynn Barbie as Edith, Angela Dilkey as Kate, and Barbara J. Moras as Isabel add even more beauty and talent to this gay entourage of pseudo-sibling sister singers.

Andee Reed as Ruth the Pirate Maid-of-all-Work is a grand talent with a big and lovely voice. She has a commanding stage presence which she projects with a professional control, such that she completely charms an entire audience and almost steals every scene.

This excellent cast of actors creates an ensemble of high level performing which collectively creates a nearly perfect evening of Gilbert and Sullivan. The choral songs are really lovely to hear as sung by this stagefull of rich voices. Try to see this collaboration of colorful and exquisite talents if you can get a ticket. Such a seamless show is being performed to what would be SRO audiences if Le Petit allowed such a well-deserved display of adoring attendees. And this Pirates of Penzance would more than merit the display.

JPAS (JEFFERSON PERFORMING ARTS SOCIETY) presented a NIGHT AT THE OPERA with a terrific tenor trio which sang to a nearly full house of appreciative opera lovers. A member of the staff commented that they are all delighted to see such a full turnout and she thought that perhaps they had discovered a formerly unsuspected audience of opera lover. The many bravos after each tenor sang a particularly difficult aria seems to substantiate this observations.

KIRK REDMANN, RANDOLPH LOCKE AND GERALD STROUP were the featured tenors in the evening of familiar arias. The tenors were sang with the Jefferson Symphony Orchestra which poured out a rich, full well centered tonality under the baton of talented Conductor Dennis G. Assaf. The program opened with a somber but crisp performance of the overture to La Forza del Destino.

Among the many arias sung, Mr. Locke was particularly dynamic and emotionally moving in his "Una furtiva lagrima" and "Porquoi me reveiller." His is a dark tenor capable of reaching the higher register with a strong clarity of tone and his pianissimos are lovely to hear.

Mr. Redmann captured the house with his versions of Salut demeure, Ah leveto, soleil and Lamento di Federico. Mr. Redmann has a lighter sound than Mr. Locke and seems equally as comfortable with the higher register. Both of these tenors have a strong and self-confident stage presence.

Mr. Stroup was much applauded for his parmi veder le lagrime, Ah Fuyez douce image, Languir per una bella and Dona non vidi mai. Mr. Stroup has a lighter and more metallic sound than the other tenors which is not unpleasant to hear but he seemed a little uncomfortable with the higher register of his voice that evening. His stage presence was more reserved than the other two tenors. It would have been interesting and pleasurable to have heard these tenors sing a together.

This was an exciting and polished evening of great singing and professional musicianship, comparable to any I have enjoyed in other major arts centers. Congratulations to everyone connected with the JPAS, an organization which ranks high in its accomplishments and its worth to the citizens of the parish.

The JPAS is a wonderful and necessary organization which has poured much of its talent back into the educational system of Jefferson Parish, something which New Orleans might well appreciate. Some members of the parish school board were in the audience that evening and they expressed the importance of the participation of JPAS to the education of the children of the parish. As one member of the board said, it is the arts which civilize. New Orleans needs to understand this and involve many many more of its citizens in programs which teach art appreciation. We all need to become more civilized and soon.

The next production of the JPAS season will be a THE 1940'S RADIO HOUR on Fri. & Sat. May 20, 21 at 8:00 p.m. with a Sun. show at 2:00 p.m. with a special guest appearance by the American Ballroom Dance Club. Call the Jefferson Arts Performing Society for tickets.

THE NEW ORLEANS OPERA ASSOCIATION will open its 52 Season with Giuseppe Verdi's MACBETH on Sept. 21 & 24, 1994. Other operas scheduled for the 1994-1995 season will be ELEKTRA (Oct. 26 & 29), LA BOHEME (Nov. 23 & 26), and EUGENE ONEGIN (Apr. 5 & 8). Tickets should be purchased early. Call the box office at 524-1018.

THE KOMENKA ETHNIC DANCE AND SONG ENSEMBLE will hosts its 15th Annual Spring Concert series on Sat., May 21 at 3pm and 8pm, and Sunday, May 22 at 3pm in Loyola University's Roussel Performance Hall, corner of St. Charles Avenue and Calhoun Street. Included will be dance and music of Europe, the Far East and the United States. For tickets an info, call 529-4676.

AN INTRODUCTION TO HOUMA - We would like to extend an invitation for everyone to come to Houma and visit us at KIXX. Houma is a quaint little town, on the bayou, just south of New Orleans. KIXX is Houma's hot spot. We consider it to be "The Hottest Alternative Club in the South". It is a place where the people are friendly and the service is excellent.

KIXX has a D.J. on Friday and Saturday nights, drink specials on week nights, Karaoke on Friday nights, occasional entertainment shows with local and out of town entertainers, numerous contests throughout the year, and frequently, live bands.

All of the entertainment shows, as well as contests, are open to anyone wanting to participate, local or out of towners. When the opportunity arises, KIXX host special entertainers, such as the smash comedy hit, The CC Rae Show. Performing May 6, CC put on a show that was spectacular. She presented the "Changing Faces of Comedy", that was to die laughing for! There was not a dissatisfied person in the crowd.

See the KIXX ad above for what's happening over the next few weeks.

Come on over, introduce yourself, party and have a good time with us and we guarantee that you will want to come back.

Until next time... KEEP SMILING!
