BENEFIT PREMIERE:

The Times of Harvey Milk

The Times of Harvey Milk will begin its exclusive first run engagement at The George Ellis Cinema on Friday, March 22, 1985.

Nominated for an Academy Award for Best Documentary, the film premieres in Atlanta just one week before the Academy Award winners will be announced.

The Times of Harvey Milk is a film about American values in conflict. Set in San Francisco in the 1970's, the film opens in flashback to the devastating television news announcement by Diane Fienstein (then President of the Board of Supervisors) that both Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk had been shot and killed in their offices at City Hall. The assassin was Dan White, fellow supervisor and former policeman and fireman. Harvey Milk's journey to that fateful day is then recounted, beginning with the voice of Milk, reading a will which he had tape-recorded "to be played only in the event of my death by assassination."

In stark contrast to currently popular docudramas which use actors to portray real life characters, The Times of Harvey Milk is a film created solely from real television news footage and interviews with involved people. The resulting dramatic impact of the film is devastating.

All proceeds of the opening night performances will go to the Emergency Assistance Fund of Aid Atlanta, Inc., and will be used directly to assist people who are suffering a financial crisis as a result of their AIDS. Opening night performances are at 7:30 and 9:45, and the special benefit admission is $5.00.

The film continues its run throughout the week at regular admission prices, with shows nightly at 7:30 and 9:45 pm.

Atlanta Magazine recently named the new George Ellis Cinema "the nicest theatre in Atlanta," giving it 1 of 2 four-star ratings for theatres in the entire Atlanta metropolitan area. The huge screen is the city's 3rd largest, the state-of-the-art sound system is superb, the seats are a comfortable four feet apart, and the Ellis serves wine, hand-made chocolates, fresh ground coffee, and real butter on the popcorn!

The Ellis is located at 1099 Euclid Avenue in Little Five Points. Call 688-FILM for more details.

MY ONE & ONLY

The New Gershwin Musical Opens
April 17th at Atlanta's Fabulous Fox

The international tour of My One & Only, the Tony Award-winning Gershwin musical, opens April 17 at Atlanta's Fox Theatre (660 Peachtree Street, NE), for a one-week engagement. Starring Sandy Duncan and Tommy Tune, with Charles "Honi" Coles, the musical has music by George Gershwin, lyrics by Ira Gershwin and a book by Peter Stone and Timothy S. Mayer. My One & Only is staged and choreographed by Thommie Walsh and Tommy Tune. Barry and Fran Weissler in association with The One & Only Joint Venture and Pace Theatrical are the producers.

The musical will run April 17 through 21. Call 881-1977 or 873-4300 for showtimes and ticket information. Tickets are sale now at all SEATS outlets and the Fox Box Office.

Dearly beloved we are gathered here in the sight of God to perform a celebration. Not a celebration of the first, the best, or the most. There will be no parade up lower Broadway. No tickertape. But a celebration nevertheless. Love, in direct contrast to the prevailing dream, has triumphed over fame. For there is no love without privacy. So let the drums roll out. Let the trumpets blare—for a celebration without celebrity—merely two human beings who have forgiven each other for being human. And when we find love we complete ourselves. I now pronounce you one and only. Amen. You may kiss the bride.

Theater Theatrical Briefs

SUPPORT FOR NEW PLAYWRIGHTS

To encourage the development of new plays and to support playwrights, Theatrical Outfit, in a joint effort with Actors in Renaissance (AIR), recently unveiled a new play development program. Selected plays are given readings at Theatrical Outfit by a cast of AIR members on alternating Monday nights at 8 pm. The readings, begun February 18th and planned over a 16-week period, are open to the public. From the selected scripts, some plays will be chosen for staged readings. "Hopefully," says Theatrical Outfit's Producing Director David Head, "going through these phases of development, the playwright can refine his or her work to the point of excellence where it will merit production."

The program was largely inspired by the Atlanta New Play Project and is intended to served as an extension of the work already being accomplished by that body. Playwrights interested in participating should send their scripts to Bonnie Pike, Theatrical Outfit, 1012 Peachtree Street, NE, Atlanta, GA 30309. For more information about the Monday-night readings, call (404) 872-0665.

Are You What Dreams Are Made Of?

We at FirstPlace are looking for dreams. Big hot male dreams. Like hot and hung Rick Donovan, studs like Bill Henson & his horny kid brother Steve. You've seen them in films like "A Matter Of Size", "Like A Horse" and "The Bigger The Better". Our all male films offer the most exciting men in video. If you are the stuff our men are made of... we definitely want to meet you!! If you think you're a dream come true or if you have a friend, buddy, boyfriend or maybe just some handsome stud you know who qualifies—send us some photos now!! You could be paid a minimum of $1000.00 to star in Matt Sterling and John Summers' next film! If you discover a dream, you will be paid up to $500.00 for a discovery fee! Don't hesitate. Send us some photos today! Snapshots or Polaroids are fine. Headshots and nude bodyshots—front and back. You know what kind to send! They may be either in color or black and white. (Be sure and print name, address and phone number, including area code, on back of prints.) You'll hear from us promptly regarding our decisions. Our staff will be in your area next month, so just think of what it's like... when dreams come true!!!

Matt Sterling and John Summers

by Bernice Cross Tarbuns
(of the Decatur-by-the-Sea Tarbuns)

Well, it's tax time again and I'm up to my pearls in IRS instruction booklets. Do you know they have a booklet that lists all of their other booklets? It's insane! Did you know that you can take off nine cents a mile to get to your optometrist's office? Did you know that you can take off your health spa if your doctor says you need the exercise and gives you a note? Tell me I can take off the New York Times, scotch and red meat and I'll be happy.

They give you all these weird deductions so that you think you're getting a break. Meantime, companies like General Dynamics (seven billion a year) and General Motors pay no income tax whatsoever. Why don't they just charge everyone ten percent? Believe me, I would come out of it just fine. Honestly, by the time you pay some genius accountant to figure out your deductions you don't get a thing back.

The real and honest deductions go unnoticed by the uncaring government. What about the gas you use looking for a parking space at Lenox Square? What about the deposit and security you have to give your landlord to move into an apartment? Who gets the interest off that money?

And another thing, what about getting a break on depreciation? The government will allow you to depreciate anything from buildings to office equipment. If you own a company that recaps tires you can take off depreciation for the vulcanizer. But do you think for one minute that they will allow you to take off depreciation on your own body? No! And why not?

People get old just the same as buildings. Buildings wear out, people wear out. Are buildings and road building equipment more important than people? Buildings become delapidated and fall. And the taxes go down. So, what happens when an old person loses a kidney or a hip joint? I'll tell you what happens. They pay for it. They pay for the hospital and they then have to pay more taxes. It isn't fair. We should be able to deduct for parts that don't work!

I ask you, is property more important than human beings? I am outraged. I've got a kidney that hasn't worked since the Johnstown flood. I should be able to depreciate!

What about circles under the eyes and sagging eyelids? They obviously aren't what they should be. They're not working properly. And what about impotence? Now there's a good one! Men should be able to deduct when they're unable to get a hard-on. Why not? If an old water pump at the damn won't work they take off for it on their income tax.

Our income tax laws and system have completely ignored people. They couldn't care less. Human beings depreciate and old people should not have to pay the same taxes as young people.

I propose that we be able to deduct for:
(1) sagging tits, (2) impotence, (3) beer gut, (4) double chin, (5) receding hairline, (6) fat ass, (7) corns & bunions, (8) cellulite, (9) false teeth, and any other human frailty that indicates failure of the body to perform properly.

Never ask of money spent
Where the spender thinks it went.
Nobody was ever meant
To remember or invent
What they did with every damn cent!

DEAR DIAMOND LIL

A column for the misguided, lovelorn, confused, and otherwise lovelorn in these trying modern times...

Children, are we still hauling around old ideas, fears, resentments, guilt, etc., from the past? Why have we elected to be a jackass in life, rather than a crusader for freedom of the soul? Do we feel it's possible to let go of some of this negativity and live a life with a freer spirit? Whatever it is with us, why not share by mailing our manuscripts to Dear Diamond Lil, c/o Cruise Weekly, P. O. Box 7750, Atlanta, GA 30357. Remember, it takes daily practice to work together!

Dearest Diamond Lil,

I am writing this letter in hopes that you can help me understand, or at least explain the guilt I've felt for the past seven years. Before I begin my problem, please allow me to tell you a little about myself.

I am twenty years old, very sensitive, and overly ambitious. I have always set my goals beyond reach; but if you don't struggle for your dreams and ambitions then you shouldn't set goals in life. For life is made of whatever your heart desires, and those desires are your goals.

I ruined my life seven years ago as of March 9, and it is something that I can't forget no matter how hard I try. It is something that destroyed my inner feelings as well as my goals, dreams, and ambitions. It also took the lives of the two people I loved most of all, my mother and father. It was a day unlike any other.

I was thirteen at the time. I was in a strange mood that day. I had a problem and couldn't talk about it, but I knew I had to. I was always one that will talk about my problems no matter how bad they seemed. But not anymore. I've learned my lesson.

I had been having sexual thoughts and fantasies about men for about three months. I thought there was something seriously wrong with me. When I arrived home from school that afternoon I went right to my room. Later my mom came up and asked if I wanted something to eat. It was at that point that I asked her if we could talk. I felt closer to her because we had always talked in the past. Somehow I knew she could tell Dad better than I could. That would also give them some time to discuss my problem before confronting me with a solution, if there was one. But even then I didn't want answers. I wanted to be accepted for what I really was, and am. And now I can't even accept myself after seven years.

It was at that point I told Mother I was gay. I remember when Father came home - Mom confronted him. They talked, screamed, and argued for what seemed like the entire night. The next morning we all had a long talk. My father asked me if what Mother was saying was true. I thought about it for a moment and said "Yes, I'm gay."

We had argument upon argument. I went to head shrinker after head shrinker. We were beginning to break apart as a family and becoming enemies.

Two months had passed when my father asked my mother to take a trip to Florida. It was to be a second honeymoon for them he said, but it was really a chance for them to get away from the hell that I had put them through. My dad had chartered a small plane for their trip.

I was at home with a babysitter at the time. Six hours had passed since my parents had left for their trip. The phone rang at exactly 4:00 pm. The babysitter answered the phone. As I stood besides her she began to cry. She grabbed me and held me and then she told me that my parents, and four other people were killed when their plane crashed thirty minutes after take-off.

I cried, cried, and still cry and feel the pain for what I did to my parents. I am an only child, with no known living relatives. I pay the price every day for what I did, but even more so during the holidays. I pay my price every day for what I did, for I am left all alone now - no one to turn to, no one to talk to. What do I do?

I hurt now, but I want a chance to be forgiven. All I have ever asked if I have friends, express the real me, and be loved if I can be, for I have so much love to give. Should I go on paying my price forever?!

A short time ago I ventured to Atlanta. I went into a gay bar and met some of the greatest people you could imagine. We still call each other and talk. They know that I am all alone but they don't know why. I can't want to lose them but when they find out what's hidden in my closet I may. All I've ever wanted in life is a chance to discover life itself. I have almost given up on even beginning a life for myself. Maybe I should go back to my closet. But I don't want to be lonely the rest of my days. I want a chance at life. What should I do?

Diamond Lil, I am asking for your advice! Please help me to help myself.

Thank you very much for your time. Please sign me,

Paying the Price

Dear "Paying,"

You'll stop paying the price for self-blame, Dear Heart, when you make the decision that you are not responsible for this most unfortunate mishap that occurred with your parents. The shitbag of guilt you're shouldering is something you have elected to carry, and my suggestion is to work on discovering the reasons why you feel this is your responsibility. At the tender age of thirteen, I'm sure this thing came as a traumatic shock, and you've simply not known how to work through and release this unnecessary baggage and guilt. But, Dear, you're not alone by any means. Some of us are still carrying excess baggage—including your celestial advice columnist! It takes time and effort to "let go" of tired old ideas, resentments, jealousies, animosities, guilt and other rubbish in life that we seem to cling to, which are only negative things which stunt our positive growth into creative productivity.

May I suggest setting smaller goals in your life that are attainable for yourself, rather than goals that are beyond your reach. This way, you can avoid unnecessary disappointments. In other words, you seem to be setting yourself up for additional misery. May I also suggest that you tell your friends about your past life so that you can feel support and comfort from them. If they can't take the truth and you lose them, consider it more baggage disposed of, for they weren't your friends anyway.

And last, but certainly not least, please find yourself a trustworthy counsellor in whom you can openly confide. I truthfully feel that only through this kind of therapy will you be able to release this harness you're in and set yourself free to give yourself the chance you want in life. Why not plan to better ourselves today?

*Yours in love and renewed joy,
Diamond Lil*
