Cho delivers
'pee-in-your-pants-funny' show in Houston

chat

One of Q's favorites, Margaret Cho — the self-professed fag-hag with bisexual proclivities — is gracing Houston with what promoters say is a “pee-in-your-pants-funny” new show that she’s polishing for a tour next year. Cho, who says her favorite gay characters are leather daddies and dykes on bikes (“I just feel so spiritually connected to them, because to me they’re kind of like the outlaws, the rebels, and that’s what I identify with”), is wrapping up a whirlwind year. The film version of her one-woman show, I’m the One That I Want, charmed audiences from coast-to-coast with its extensive art-house play schedule — and tickled its way into gay hearts with its “I’m just fine the way I am” theme.

She spoke from the mainstage at this spring’s March on Washington and has appeared at gay pride events in New York, San Diego and San Francisco, where she was grand marshal leading off the huge and exotic event. In an interview earlier this autumn in Dallas Voice, she said her participation in the San Francisco parade was absolutely exhilarating.

“Gay pride in San Francisco is huge, and I remember going to the parade all through my teen years,” she recalled. “To go back and be grand marshal was really exhilarating. I love gay pride and I get very emotional because to me it is the holiday that means the most. For so many people, it’s the moment in time when we can feel like the majority instead of the minority, which is an incredibly powerful feeling.”

Expect Cho to really let her hair down for the new show, described as Margaret’s version of Madonna’s Sex Book. The dark and edgy performance plays Dec. 15-16 with two shows nightly, at 8 p.m. and 10:30 p.m., at the Laff Stop in River Oaks, in the River Oaks Shopping Center. For tickets, call 713-524-2333.

Cho’s planning to take the new show on the road next summer.

Lesbians, take note: Madonna was recently seen modeling a new T-shirt you’ve just got to have. Promoting her fiancé Guy Ritchie’s new jewel-heist movie, Snatch, starring Brad Pitt, the one-of-a-kind black T was boldly emblazoned with the message, “SNATCH — Coming Soon.” What could be more perfect? Dykes with holiday shopping on their minds should watch the stores. A knockoff version is said to be, ahem, coming soon (and maybe your girlfriend, too).

While on the subject of the former Material Girl, Q must sadly own up to a recent lapse in one of our rarer-than-a-blue-moon attempts to be fair and balanced (what fun is there in that?), we recently printed M’donna’s denials of our previous story that her planned Scottish vacation later this month — with rented castle and a cast of thousands of family and friends to boot — was for the purpose of a gala nuptial ceremony with Rocco’s dad.

Well, so much for journalistic integrity. Turns out Q was right the first time. Madonna recently admitted that the ceremony is on after all, and set for late December. Now if she’d only confirm those tantalizing rumors that a honeymoon suite is being prepared in the castle’s dungeon. Whips and restraints might mak the perfect wedding gifts.

It's lesbianville in the tabloids this week (editors snorting too much ink, perhaps?), as the Weekly World News claims to have found a newly-unearthed diary from the coffin of Edgar Cayce, "America's greatest prophet." According to the tab, Cayce predicted that in 2005, Hillary Clinton and a "lady friend" will become the first gay couple to occupy the White House. Sensible shoes at an inaugural ball? Puhleeze!

Meanwhile, the Globe reports that Nashville legend Porter Wagoner (the subject of Dolly Parton's smash hit "I Will Always Love You") used to watch Parton engaging in steamy sex with another woman. Why is it that straight men are so obsessed with lesbian sex? But Porter Wagoner? Sounds like a voyeur's hell to Q.

These days, Rodney Daingerfield gets more respect than these four. We're talking, of course, about the Spice Girls, post-Geri "Ginger Spice" Halliwell. Their new album, Forever, was supposed to re-establish the remaining foursome — "Baby," "Scary," "Posh" and "Sporty" Spice — as the queens of pop. Well, it hasn't worked out that way. Their first two albums, Spice (1996) and Spiceworld (1997) sold more than 38 million copies worldwide. The new effort? In the toilet. Since its November 6 release, Forever has sold only 33,000 copies in the U.S. (even though Q's own critic Jimmy Smith gave the album a thumbs-up). Now Miss Sporty (Melanie Chisholm, whom the Brit tabs have re-named "Sumo Spice" and pegged as a lesbian) is making noises that she'll be the next to leave the group.

Michael Jackson has struck up a friendship with New York Rabbi Shumley Boteach. The reason, according to the rabbi — who hosted Jackson and his two children, Paris, 2, and Prince, 3, for Thanksgiving Dinner — is that the two are collaborating on a book about what parents can learn from children. Out of Q's respect for the Jewish religion, we'll refrain from mentioning the 5,000 or so double-entendres that immediately spring to mind from that story.

By the way, Rolling Stone reports that Jackson's Thriller has tied with the Eagles' Their Greatest Hits 1971-1975 as the best-selling record of all time, with sales of 26 million copies.

Quick bits: Most un-funny item in a gay magazine: "69 Reasons to J/O over Eminem," in November's XY . . . Dallas personal trainer and sports nut Jeffrey Tambor (who loves "any sport with a ball") is featured in the January 2001 edition of Heat magazine, with a sexy full-page photo accompanying an interview about his plans to attend the 2002 Gay Games in Sydney. The same edition contains a page of travel tips on Dallas, penned by local writer Christopher Wynn . . . Gay actor Rupert Everett and Judi Dench will costar in The Importance of Being Earnest, new film adapted from the Oscar Wilde comedy of manne. Everett will play Algernon, young man intrigued by a mysterious character named Ernest. Cher is scheduled to participate in a one-hour live chat with gay fans at 6 p.m. CST December 20 on GayWired.com.

Sorting fact from fiction

The market is crowded with supplements, but which ones really work?

by michael kasten

It seems that every year there are about two or three really popular supplements touted as the best way to gain muscle. Performance-enhancers like creatine are advertised as being the best way to beat the competition.

With all the marketing materials aimed at people like you and me, it would be great to have some concrete way to judge whether a supplement will help or not. Furthermore, it would be make no claim as to effectiveness without proper documentation. This doesn't mean they can't say, in roundabout ways, that their products may help you to lose fat, improve stamina or build muscle. So the only way you could really judge any over-the-counter supplement is to wait a few years after it is released to the public to hopefully get some anecdotal evidence or scientific research about efficacy.

With all this said, here are beneficial to anyone who has decided to engage in a fitness routine to really know what's best for them in the form of performance enhancers, muscle builders and fat burners.

I think it's really difficult (perhaps next to impossible) to develop a model by which we could judge these products. The problem is that we are not dealing with medicines. Food, vitamin and mineral supplements are not directly under the jurisdiction of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. These products are not directly regulated by any federal agency. The government gets involved only when the maker of one of these products makes claims that are unproven by clinical studies.

Medications, on the other hand, are tested for safety and effectiveness through a set of rigorous clinical trials before they make it to the drugstore shelves. Food, vitamin and mineral supplements, however, are not subjected to the same rigorous testing. Their makers can sell whatever they want, so long as they summaries of the supplements that seem to be the most popular these days, and what's known about their effectiveness.

Creatine

This is probably the only performance enhancer that really may help you lift more weight or run faster. According to Edward G. McFarland, M.D., director of the Section of Sports Medicine and Shoulder Surgery at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, studies do show that high-dose creatine supplements (approximately 20 grams per day) can increase the amount of creatine in muscles.

But performance data are mixed, says Dr. McFarland, with nearly as many studies showing negative results as positive ones. If creatine does work as an ergogenic aid, its benefits will most likely be seen in high-intensity short-burst athletes and in vegetarians.

Still, despite its often favorable reviews in the popular press, creatine's long-term effects are unknown. And because creatine is excreted by the kidneys, there are concerns about possible harm to that organ after long-term use. For this reason, if you take creatine, a good rule of thumb is to double your daily water intake.

Protein

Because muscles are composed of protein, some athletes believe that eating more protein will translate into building more muscle. Although athletes may require slightly more protein than non-athletes to build muscles (but not enhance performance), this extra amount is usually fulfilled by a balanced, varied diet. In fact, the federal government's national food guidelines say that the typical American diet usually provides more than the recommended 15 percent of calories from protein — more than enough to aid muscle integrity.

According to the RDA, unless you're a strict vegetarian, you don't need to increase protein consumption to boost athletic performance. I believe that we need as many protein grams as our weight, daily. If you weigh 160 pounds then you need 160 grams of protein in your diet daily.

Amino Acids

Over-the-counter amino acids have become a popular ergogenic supplement sold in health food stores because their manufacturers claim they help to build muscle, accelerate the rate of recovery during training and generally improve both psychological and physiological responses during endurance training. Yet research studies have not demonstrated benefits to most athletes. Amino acids probably are ineffective as a supplement, and their long-term health effects are unknown.

Coenzyme Q10

Coenzyme Q10 (also known as CoQ10) is a type of lipid found in the energy-producing mitochondria of cells. Some benefit of CoQ10 supplementation has been seen in patients with heart disease. These benefits include improvement in exercise capacity. But ergogenic improvements are generally not seen in healthy subjects. Unless you are taking this specifically for heart disease, don't waste your money.

Caffeine

Affordable and readily available in coffee or tea, caffeine seems to be among the few ergogenic aids that have been shown to work in a number of scientific studies. The caffeine equivalent of two cups of coffee ingested before exercise increases endurance in both well-trained and weekend athletes. The theory is that caffeine stimulates the breakdown of fats for energy, which slows the depletion of glycogen, the main energy stores of the body.

Caffeine doesn't seem to improve performance during conditions of high heat, and it can have harmful side effects if you have heart disease. So if you're already a coffee drinker, have two cups about two hours before physical exertion.

Chromium Picolinate

This trace mineral has generated a lot of interest — and publicity — for its alleged ability to build muscle, burn fat and increase energy. Research has not supported these claims. Chromium picolinate is unlikely to improve athletic performance or help burn fat.

Ginseng

Ginseng is an herb that has been in medicinal use for thousands of years in China and Korea. More recently it has been "discovered" in the U.S., where it is touted as a possible ergogenic. It's available in supermarkets and health food stores as supplemental pills, powders and teas. Research has found that ginseng does not improve oxygen use, aerobic performance or exercise recovery rate.

Anabolic Steroids

Anabolic steroids are substances that are similar to the naturally occurring hormone testosterone, which helps regulate growth and sexual development in men. Steroids are popular among weightlifters and track-and-field athletes because of their ability to increase muscle size and strength.

The costs probably far outweigh the benefits. Serious and possible irreversible side effects include liver damage, liver cancer and heart disease. In addition, the improvements made with steroids usually disappear when their use is discontinued.

If you are not using these substances for medical reasons, speak to a medical doctor to find out what you are really up against if you are interested in taking anabolics. Anabolics should never be taken without a physician's supervision.

Growth Hormone

The ability of growth hormone to improve athletic performance cannot be substantiated. Again, as with steroids, if you are not taking this substance for medical reasons, you need to speak with a medical doctor who can guide your decision about whether to take it. My experience with local physicians is that any of them would be happy to speak with you about growth hormone, anabolic steroids and their uses and their abuses.

So that's it. I hope this helps provide you with more information so that you can make informed decisions about the supplements you take. Best of luck to you in your quest for the best for yourself!

maybe it's the time of year that's making me overly sentimental. Or perhaps it was the fifth of vodka. In either case, there are two preachy, saccharin-loaded television movies that have won me over despite their hokiness. Both set out to prove the importance of individuality and family as realized through the otherworldly powers of drag queens (a secret we've known for years, right?).

The first film to prance across the glittery celluloid stage is Bruno, the feature film directorial debut of Shirley MacLaine. The quirky comedy centers on the title character, a young boy (Alex D. Linz) who is the constant target of his Catholic schoolmates and the crotchety nuns put on earth to make his life hell. From Mother Superior (Kathy Bates) to his own teacher (Brett Butler), no one understands the "little sissy" except his severely overweight mother (Stacey Halprin) and the school's (apparently) only black girl (Kiami Davael).

Bruno enjoys being different and expressing his uniqueness — so much so that he feels compelled to wear dresses to compete in spelling bees, contests which he was born to win. Despite his gift, his emotionless father (Gary Sinise) and tough-as-gallstones granny (MacLaine) are determined to stifle his inner girl — at least until Grandma ends up with custody of the tyke for a week and has a change of heart.

The whole story feels reminiscent of the brilliant Trevor, a short film from the Boys Life series of gay movies, with a little What's Eating Gilbert Grape? thrown in for good measure. Much of the drama is so over-the-top that it's laughable (except for the evil deeds of the Catholic church which I'm sure are true), but the eager performances by Linz and the rest of the cast helped weak my forked tongue.

MacLaine is at her sailor-mouthed best, and it's nice to see Butler back on the screen after her personal turmoil surrounding Grace Under Fire. The film really turns around once MacLaine enters the picture for the first time, so if you can stick through the first 40 minutes, you'll be rewarded. Little Bruno's drag costumes are truly the reluctant star of the film. If only I'd worn hoop skirt at my fourth grade spelling bee, perhaps I could have taken first place instead of second.

But I suppose I still have yet to make up for the lack of sequins and ribbons in my wardrobe. At least that's the lesson I learn watching Holiday Heart, which also the stage name of the aging drag queen played by the usually macho Ving Rhames. Life for Holiday is difficult enough after the loss of his boyfriend 15 years earlier, but fate gives him the opportunity to care for a down-and-out crack whore named Wanda (Alfre Woodard) and her daughter Niki (Jessica Quynn Reynolds).

Teaching them the true meaning of family comes to Holiday as naturally as Tiny Tim's limp, but Wanda's drug-dealing boyfriends and her out-of-control addiction ensure that nothing will be easy for the larger-than-life diva. It's gonna take lots of church and many a disco anthem to drive the moral to this story home.

Directed by Robert Townsend, this movie also has an after-school-special feel to it with its predictable dilemmas and cookie-cutter resolutions. But again, the performances make it a deserving guilty pleasure. Rhames is a sight to behold in his extravagant costumes and ever-present sculpted nails. He's actually considerably better than many seasoned drag performers, so maybe there's a little more to this guy than we thought.

As for Woodard, she's like the Pet Shop Boys in my book. She can do no wrong. She's completely believable as the battered cracked-out Wanda, one of the least glamorous roles of her career. Even newcomer Reynolds shows skills beyond her years to round out the likeable cast.

So in between parties, wrapping packages and figuring out where you're going to put all those relatives, take an hour or two for some mindless holiday entertainment. These films are considerably less filling than that plate of fudge on the counter, and they might just fill you with a festive spirit to do something nice for someone else. (You may send your gifts to me in care of the address at the front of the magazine).

It's another slam dunk for Louie DeVito's N.Y.C. Underground Party series as Volume 3 ships out in time for the holiday season. Considering the fact that the label, E-Lastik Recordings, is only an indie, it's truly remarkable what they have been able to do with this series.

Looking for a party? You will certainly find one here! The CD boasts such morsely tracks as "I Turn To You" by Mel C, "Spente Le Stelle" by Emma Shaplin, "Kernkraft 400" by Zombie Nation, not to mention "Dive In the Pool" by Barry Harris (featuring vocals by Pepper Mashay) and tons more — 17 tracks in all. This CD will turn any tupperware party into an orgy.

In other compilation news, DJ Wayne Shepherd mixes a lovely assortment of circuit hits on A Better World, released by Megahit Records. Wayne has been the resident DJ at Our Place in Indianapolis since back in '93. A 22-year veteran of the booth, this Billboard-reporting DJ is thrilled to have his first CD in the stores.

And when you grab your copy, you will be thrilled to have it in your CD player! Wayne's mix goes a bit left of center, picking an assortment of tracks and mixes of those tracks that, simply put, just aren't the same ol' run-of-the-mill circuit tracks. I love this CD! It takes a certain type of DJ to be able to pull this off, and Shepherd does so with flying colors — lovely!

Speaking of great circuit records — brace yourselves for January when Tommy Boy Silver will release the "Papa's Got a Brand New Pig Bag" by Thunderpuss. This is the guy's first original debut on the label. Many of today's biggest artists have the Thunderpuss name in their credits. Dance mixes of songs by Celine Dion, Whitney Eurythmics, Pet Shop Boys, Jennifer Lopez, Christine Agulara, Enrique Iglesias, Donna Summer, Jennifer Holliday and Amber all owe much of their success to mixes by this dynamic duo of remixer (Chris Cox and Barry Harris). These guys have already scored an amazing fourteen #1 hits on the Billboard dance chart.

When asked about their hit-making philosophy, Harris says, "We like to create cutting-edge tracks with crossover potential." Cox adds, "And one of our strongest points is that we're pretty self-contained and able to do all the work ourselves." Both Chris and Barry are keeping in touch with their DJ roots by touring the country and spinning at many of the biggest clubs in the nation. Be on the lookout.

Switching gears: Here's a real treat for the holidays. Check out the new Enya album, A Day Without Rain. Asked about the album, Enya says, "The title refers to the mood on a particularly peaceful day on which there was no rain. We do get a lot of rain in Ireland in all seasons! We had a run of days where it had done nothing but rain. Then one day the sun came out. It was then that I wrote the title track, so what else could I call it?"

The end result is a superb return after five years of an artist whose name is synonymous with a whole genre of music. This album is a mix of heavenly, ethereal vocals, cinematic atmospheres and lush harmonies, adding another fabulous bookmark to Enya's fascinating and unique career. Add this one to your collection now.

And that's the beats this week.

Hungarian feast

The men of Hungary are hungry for each other in Falcon's latest release

splat

by matt brady

The Hungary Men in this Falcon Studios' December release are awfully hungry for each other. And awfully handsome and sexy, too. This video from the Falcon International Collection almost serves as a travel advertisement for that Eastern European nation.

This video is also excellent for those of you (we know who you are) who watch XXX videos with one hand. There is almost nothing in the way of dialog, and what there is comes in subtitles since these hot, horny men speak in their native tongue throughout. The story is also a bare-bones explication merely intended to get the performers from one sexual encounter to another.

As the video opens, a furious three-way is underway, starring buffed, tanned, super-handsome George Vidanov, a Falcon International exclusive with the "credentials" to deserve that rating. He, Alan Lambert and Miklos Soledad go at each other on a sofa, with the bright sun shining in through the windows and fully illuminating the well-shot scene. The men go through the usual motions, frequently changing off partners and positions. Their unisonal moans (readily translatable in any language) spiral in intensity until all three shoot and they collapse onto each other, rewarding each other with manly kisses.

David arrives and invites his buddies to accompany his group on a trip to the mountains. Alas, the trio have other plans, and David departs. The travelers hit the road, stopping at a diner to take a break. Kurt Schwartz excuses himself to go to the can, but takes a wrong turn and finds himself in the kitchen. There, the cook, Daniel Castnov, has just finished a meal and, finding some time on his hands, pulls a gay porn mag out of a drawer, whips it out and begins pleasuring himself. Kurt can't resist the tempting meal unfolding before his eyes and he joins the cook as they make a meal of each other. And who could resist chef Daniel, with his beautifully-proportioned, hairy torso marked with wide chest and broad shoulders? They're displayed to perfection as he lays Kurt over a table and slides it in.

Back on the road, the traveling foursome finally arrive at a mountain lodge. David, Stefan Racz and Kurt decide to take a hike through the surrounding mountains, getting brushed by a light snowfall, but Stefan Stano remains at the lodge to take a shower.

On the way, wrapped only in a towel, Stefan hears the unmistakable sounds of mansex through the closed dining room doors. He listens for a while, rubbing himself to hardness, then peeks inside to see Janos Volt and Adam Gossett in each other's clutches, and each take turns orally pleasuring the other before Adam stands behind Janos and gives it to him. The action continues as Janos lies back on the dining table, eagerly receiving Adam's hardness. Stefan can't contain himself, and masturbates to the hot scene unfolding before him until all three men shoot.

With the weekend over, Stefan and David meet their friends in a bar and begin to tell tales of the weekend. But for the eight men gathered here, there's no place like home, and they pair off into twosomes as sex erupts, on sofas, stools and pool table. Partners begin trading off, then finally four of them get together for a wild, well-filmed encounter into three- and four-men fuck chains. Finally, George gets down on the floor and the other seven men surround him, eventually showering him with their gifts.

This flick contains only four scenes instead of the usual Falcon five, but all display the studio's usual panache for great sets, outdoor scenes (all filmed on location in Eastern Europe) and top-notch photography.

Another thing unusual for a Falcon film, although the studio seems to be shifting its philosophy on this somewhat, is that not all the men have been through what ChiChi LaRue calls the "Falcon carwash." They're not all totally shaved, totally smooth. And the hairy chests and genitals are a welcome sight, adding to the virility of the performers so endowed.

You'll be hungry for Hungary after you view this well-made, sex-filled film.

Sagittarius (November 22-December 21) That sure is an awful lot of food and liquor you've been putting aside for the Christmas Eve bash you're hosting. It's probably better to hoard too much than not enough, right, Sag? Splurge on some new sneakers soon (the favorite old pair is in shreds). Alter your workout routine by adding aerobics.

Capricorn (December 22-January 19) With the Sun transiting to your sign on Friday, a day power boost is sure to be felt strongly. This energy is best utilized in the areas of business and finance. A potential investor has the backing but may request some unusual terms. The sinuses will calm down if you avoid smoky environments.

Aquarius (January 20-February 18) Although that last "near miss" had you feeling a little down, we guarantee you're going to like what's coming over the romantic horizon (and just in time for New Year's, too). As usual, your place is impeccably decorated this season. Don't sulk too long at the office party or there might be some trouble.

Pisces (February 19-March 20) Think of an obstacle course and you'll get a pretty good idea of how the first half of this week will be going. It sure won't be dull, by any means. I suggest some extra sleep on Friday night to charge up for a really busy weekend. Be sure to put some of that bonus money in the bank, just in case of an emergency.

Aries (March 21-April 19) The Winter Solstice on December 21st will likely see the beginning of a very strong money-earning cycle for you. There should be much more to play with. Don't be tempted to look before you leap on Wednesday. Put that feud with a family member to rest. Don't drop by anywhere uninvited on Sunday.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Once the Sun transits to Capricorn on Friday, things will go more to your liking. This is a good time for completing most projects or simply putting the finishing touches on holiday plans. It should be a very fast-paced week in general. It may be time for a new business card design (try something a little bold).

Gemini (May 21-June 21) Planetary influences are going to make this a week made up mostly of starts and stops (kind of like driving with speedbumps). Much will be accomplished, just not as easily as you would like. Watching your temper (and what you say) on Thursday will save you a lot of trouble. Obey the speed limit on Sunday.

Cancer (June 22-July 22) Just because you're not constantly being showered with praise, don't believe that the boss doesn't appreciate all of the work that you've been doing. It will show up in that holiday bonus really soon. Try eating lighter lunches so that your metabolism speeds back up. Tackle all of that gift wrapping on Saturday.

Leo (July 23-August 22) Once again you'll get to dazzle the masses (especially any client with your charisma and know-how. There's hardly a person alive who is able to resist Leo's sassy pitch. Unexpected business from out of state only adds to your reputation. Take care with the calf muscles when doing any sort of weight work.

Virgo (August 23-September 22) The week starts off kind of sluggish, but the energy kicks in after two days. A minor legal matter should be settled within a few days. Save that overactive imagination for creating instead of worrying. That oh-so-cute guy you've been eyeing is kind of shy, so if you don't ask him out, it's not going to happen. Treat yourself to a full-body massage sometime during the week.

Libra (September 23-October 22) Although it's likely to be an active week, there's a good chance you'll be dealing with some outside interference from family members. Try not to pay much attention to this fallout. (After all, it's your life). A dinner date on Thursday is likely to turn out to be so much more. Be sure to look your classiest.

Scorpio (October 23-November 21) The week in general looks like a roller-coaster ride for you, although it'll bring the desired end results. Stop accepting all those blind date setups for awhile. It just doesn't work for you. Be sure to have your car's exhaust system checked along with that oil change. Keep a low profile on Sunday.

DAL Seeking friends of all ages to hang out with, only had limited friends here in Dallas, therefore would love to make use of the chance to make more new friends here in Texas. I enjoy playing volleyball, bowling and arcade games. If interested call. Box 35585

FW New to Fort Worth. Enjoy quite times together watching a good movie or TV relaxing with each other. Looking for a friend, maybe more later. Enjoy going out occasionally. You be H/W male. Box 35584

DAL Me: Single femme lesbian, 5'5", br/bl. I enjoy being outdoors with my dog, enjoy going out occasionally, enjoy dancing, laughter, but I'm not into the club drama. Enjoy the movies, dining out and other fun things friends do. Call for more. Box 35582

DAL Well educated and well travelled Texan seeks international friends. I've spent a lot of time in Europe and Japan. I miss having friends who know something more than just American Pop Culture. Arabs, Asians welcome. Box 35576

DAL Looking to meet new people and start new friendships. I enjoy the movies, dinner, dancing, or just sitting and talking. Love going on drives looking for new places to do things. I enjoy outdoor activities, kayaking, camping, sports. If you have similar interest and your own, I am open to new things and adventures. I have a very good head on my shoulders, not into games or into drama. Looking for friendships only. Box 35577

women relationships

DAL GWF, 39YO, 120#, I like movies, sports, animals and romantic dinners. Looking for GWF 30-40YO, ht/wt prop., easygoing, with a great sense of humor. Are you out there? Call. Box 35605

women relationships

DAL I'm 5'6, an attractive white/Hispanic mix, dark hair, hazel eyes, 125# ht/wt prop. I'm a loveable, quiet kind of guy. Prefer a monogamous relationship, not into the bar scene. ISO of someone to love and snuggle with every night. Box 35616

DAL Looking for a travel partner, maybe with potential for ITR, or just friendship. Someone athletic, nice built, who enjoys working out, snow-skiing. Seeking down to earth person, financially secure to take trips together. Box 35611

DAL I'm an attractive, easygoing guy, enjoys friendship, conversation, dining, spending quality time together. Am versatile, sexy, and I take care of the one I'm with. Mustache, nice chest and arms. Seeking men over 40YO, slim to athletic build, slow to anger and makes the best of life. Box 35610

DAL Let's make this holiday season special together, I'm 5'8", E/F secure, HIV+, college educated, 160#, blk/br, not into the bar scene, drugs, alcohol or smokers. Love to entertain at home, looking for man with similar qualities, ht/wt prop., honest, loving, and committed. Box 35606

DAL Looking for my MVP (most valuable player). 30YO, GWM, 6'4", 220#, br/bl, attractive, athletic, into sports, enjoying companions company. It seems the only thing I have in common with gay men is the actual attraction to men. You: GWM, 25-40YO, attractive, athletic, sense of humor, ht/wt prop., masculine. Box 35618

DAL Well built GWM seeks GW/HM for monogamous relationship: Looking for someone attracted to me and I'm attracted to him. You're willing to send recent photo; 25-40YO, or a very young 41-50YO, ht/wt prop. I'm smaller stature, runner's build, considered cute, muscular, very young 48YO. We're both masculine, HIV-, nonsmokers, honest, sincere, high morals, affectionate, considerate, and faithful. Box 35602

DAL SGD (single gay dad), ISO fellow SGD raising kids on your own. It takes hard work and dedication, something I appreciate and admire. We both live life based on commitment, perseverance, patience, and affection. Maybe we can share support, camaraderie and TLC. Reach out and take a chance. Box 35599

DAL Make my house a home. GHM, 46YO, 5'2", 165#, nonsmoker, seeks GWM, 36-56YO, for dating with the possibilities of ITR. Make my house a home. Box 35600

DAL Hey guys. I'm just an everyday average guy, looking for just that, an everyday average guy. Me: Very laid back, love and live life to the fullest. ISO a man who's intelligent, kind, honest, spiritual, fun and monogamous. I want someone to lay on the sofa and watch TV, someone to have dinner with. Looking and wanting to find my soul mate. I know you're out there. My interests include movies, dinner with friends, Will & Grace, travel, walks, rainy days in bed [yummy]. Box 35595

DAL Moving to Dallas in April, 2001, would like to meet a decent guy who's trustworthy and in need of the same good friendship. Call to discuss details. Box 35598

DAL GWM, 46YO, 6', 180, #, bl/bl, drug free, HIV-, E/F secure, nice build, muscular, masculine, attractive, affectionate, honest, loyal, caring & considerate. Seeking same, race & age unimportant, must be in good shape, nice build, active and energetic. I am a very joyful and fun-loving man and you should be too. You should also enjoy travel and the outdoors. Box 35597

DAL 31YO, GWM, 5'8", 155#, seeking GWM, 19-30YO, for ITR. Looking for someone who's honest, sincere, and truly looking for that someone special. You should enjoy movies, shopping, nights out, or just spending time together. If you're looking for the same, take a chance. Box 35586

DENTON Love, like life is fraught with many perils. Wouldn't it be better to walk with another, than walking alone? Me: 37YO, 6'1", 31w, 42c, inked and pierced, HIV-. You: Ht/wt prop., understands that the simplest things in life are the most complicated to understand, and knows the definition of ployamory Box 35587

OK If it doesn't destroy you, allow it to strengthen you. Hi, I'm a gay man of color, attractive, 39YO, 6'3", 195#, nice physique, positive attitude, romantic, mustache, friendly and easygoing.
