Tom Cruise calls in his legal eagles — again
— to fight
gay rumours

Tom Cruise is beginning to rival the late, great Liberace in the "I'm not gay!" lawsuit department. For the second time in two months, Cruise has filed a $100 million lawsuit against someone who suggested that he is a big homo. This time the defendant is Michael Davis, the 32-year-old Los Angeles publisher of a little publication called Bold magazine.

Davis, who says he patterns himself after Hugh Hefner and Larry Flynt, apparently sent out an e-mail to the media recently saying, "Bold magazine has offered $500,000 for any proof that Tom Cruise is gay." According to Davis, he then heard from "a real person stating they had witnessed and have video proof that Tom Cruise is in fact gay."

Although he didn't have said tape in hand, Davis says, he alerted the Associated Press about his potential find, insisting that "if such a tape does exist I will turn it over to counsel of Tom Cruise or [Nicole] Kidman and do what I can to prevent such a potentially damaging tape from going public. After all, Tom Cruise is a family man."

Tom evidently did not appreciate Davis' humanitarian gesture. Claiming that Davis had contacted a dozen different news outlets with his allegations, Cruise's legal eagles went into action, slapping Davis with the same kind of $100 million libel suit that gay porn star Kyle Bradford was rewarded with in April after he allegedly told a French magazine called Acustar that he'd had a wrestling-mat fling with Cruise.

"He's going to keep going after people who do this," said Cruise's attorney Bert Fields.

Already pleading his innocence in the court of public opinion, Davis said, "We only alerted certain media that there is potentially a tape and we're investigating it." Meanwhile, much of Hollywood is baffled at Cruise's legal strategy, and some are beginning to question his integrity. In his effort not to be labeled a closet case, he's on the verge of being labeled a homophobe. Q wonders, if there's nothing wrong with being gay, then why is it so defamatory to question whether someone likes other boys?

Cruise news, Part 2: While the latest Cruise lawsuit was conveniently filed after last week's tabloids had already gone to press, the National Enquirer featured an altogether different gay story on Cruise. On last week's cover was a topless photo of Tom with the blaring headline: "Tom Cruise Shocker! Gay magazine photos he doesn't want you to see."

The article inside, unfortunately, doesn't deliver the goods. According to the tab, non-pornographic photos of Cruise appeared in Parlee, a gay bar rag that existed in the New York City area way back in 1981, when his career was in its infancy.

Mysteriously, the issue in question has disappeared from Parlee's archives, says the Enquirer. However, a June 7, 1983 issue of the publication containing an "Anniversary Flashback" highlighting past issues — including the one with Cruise — was found. The photos, which for some reason are not shown in the Enquirer, are said to feature Tom shirtless "with his legs open toward the camera" in one shot, and wearing "crotch-hugging mini-shorts" in another.

Better late than never, here's a brief Tony Awards recap: Openly gay actor Nathan Lane was fabulous in his role as co-host of the show with fellow Producers star Matthew Broderick. His opening line — "We're so excited. We feel like the Bush twins at happy hour!" — had the audience in stitches.

Later in the show, Lane won for Best Actor in a Musical, dragging fellow nominee Broderick out onstage with him to accept the award. As he delivered his emotional speech, Lane had lipstick all over his forehead after congratulatory smooches from the award's hilarious presenter, Dame Edna (who just closed in Houston and will bring her show to Dallas next month, by the way).

In the audience at the Tonys was a beaming Liza Minnelli. Swathed in a big hot-pink wrap of some kind and sporting a new flipped hairdo, Liza told Entertainment Tonight that she is on the road to recovery from her recent health crisis. "I feel great, and I'm walking even, and my legs are working, and I'm ready to race again!" she gushed.

The Producers owned the night, sweeping to a record 12 Tonys.

Now that it's a completely open secret, Melissa Etheridge has finally gone public with her new relationship. In last week's People magazine, Etheridge spoke openly about girlfriend Tammy Lynn Michaels, who appears on the WB network's series Popular. "I want to jump up and down and go 'Woo woo!'" says Etheridge.

Michaels, who is 14 years younger than Melissa, was on hand for Etheridge's recent 40th birthday party, where friends like Meg Ryan, Helen Hunt and Kathy Najimy helped the rocker celebrate her big four-oh. Etheridge's birthday gift to herself was a '67 Camaro convertible — white with a blue stripe on the front.

"It's such a muscle car!" she said. "I figure I'm doing the early midlife crisis, dating a 26-year-old and buying a Camaro. Why not?"

Photos of LeeAnn Rimes shopping at The Pleasure Chest, a West Hollywood sex shop, were published recently. The 18-year-old country crooner and Garland, Texas, native looked funky in dark glasses, black pants, flip-flops and a camouflage tank top that read, "Make Love Not War."

LeAnn's spokeswoman, Amy Van Iden, told the Star that the singer was in the store "shopping for a present for a friend for a bachelorette party, as many women do."

Hopefully she also took the opportunity to pick out something for her super-cute boyfriend Andrew Keegan, who played gay opposite Dean Cain in The Broken Hearts Club.

The National Enquirer's gossip editor, Mike Walker, says that after a recent concert in San Francisco, U2's Bono gave actress Winona Ryder and former first daughter Chelsea Clinton a "champagne flight" back to L.A. on his private jet. During the flight, the plane encountered major turbulence, causing Bono to suddenly shout out, "I'm gay. I'm gay." He was, of course, referring to the memorable scene in last year's rock'n'roll movie Almost Famous. Chelsea and Winona reportedly got the joke, and the plane landed safely.

by michael kasten

Michael Kasten is a certified fitness instructor and writer based in Fort Lauderdale. His column appears weekly in QTexas. He also writes for Men's Fitness and Exercise for Men Only. He may be reached by e-mail at Mkworkout@aol.com.

I am including this letter in my column this week in my effort to continue to provide you with the best information possible about all health and fitness issues.

A physician responded recently to my column a few weeks ago about Biopolymere and silicone injections for facial wasting in people with HIV.

The letter has been edited slightly for continuity and space considerations. The physician's name has been withheld at the doctor's request. Here are his comments:

After reading Michael Kasten's

article about silicone and Biopolymere III treatments in his fitness column I feel compelled to offer another view. I have seen improvements in men with facial wasting using Biopolymere III, but I am also aware of risks and have seen complications.

Silicone polymer is a clear, oily fluid that has been around for decades. It is widely used as an industrial lubricant. While it has been used cosmetically, the complications are frequent enough that very few reputable dermatologists will touch it.

What are the dangers? First, liquid silicone oil may follow gravity or local pressure and ooze to other locations. The tendency of silicone to flow is well known (that's the reason for those "bags" they use for breast implants — to keep the silicone in place). I have seen this occur in men who have used silicone, only to wind up with "wattles." When silicone "shins," it may be impossible to remove. Despite the claims of Biopolymere vendors, there is no "antidote," though injections of corticosteroids may temporarily reduce swelling.

A larger problem is the unredictable occurrence of bizarre immune reactions. Patients may have severe swelling, with the skin over the injected area becoming red and swollen. The surrounding skin may become hard, lumpy and fibrous. The body may reject the silicone, leading to an uncontrollable inflammatory reaction. Sometimes, chemotherapy drugs must be injected to try to control it, as again, it is next to impossible to remove completely silicone oil by surgery. In very severe cases, the body may try to expel the oil and surrounding tissues like a giant splinter. It isn't pretty.

At one point, I spoke with an underground contact for "Biopolymere III treatments," and I was given literature about the product. The brochure was in Spanish and badly translated English (at least the letterhead was in French, which is more usual for a Swiss company), which elaborately described the material as the "newest generation biological polymer," and simultaneously described it as our old friend, silicone oil. The contact said it was a mixture of "all-natural ingredients."

Supposedly, this wonder product is manufactured in Geneva, Switzerland, by a company named Biocell. I haven't been able to find a phone listing for the company there, and friends working in the pharmacy industry in Switzerland have looked unsuccessfully, too. The address given is actually in Vaduz, Liechtenstein, at a mail drop. The company has no Web site. If the company has an office in Geneva, it is as hidden as a CIA branch office. You have to ask why a company manufacturing such a "miracle drug" would be so elusive.

Physician contacts in Europe assure me that Biopolymere III is not approved there, and that silicone, as in the U.S., is only approved for retinal surgery. I called the division of the FDA that investigates medical devices, and was told that there is no New Drug Application pending for this material. The spokesperson I talked to assured me that any application for a silicone-based implant would be rejected immediately due to safety concerns.

I will say this. I have seen HIV positive men who have had Biopolymere III injections, and, at least in the short term, many do show dramatic improvement. Unfortunately, I have also seen some pretty unpleasant complications, including shifting of the material, inflammation and formation of hard, lumpy nodules. I know of three men locally who have had operations to scrape out silicone. Local dermatologists report seeing various complications, including disfiguring fibrosis, and complications of silicone injections have been a subject of conferences at the University of Miami's Dermatology Department.

I do know of dermatologists who have used medical-grade silicone in patients, apparently without problems. And, like Michael Kasten, I have seen some impressive improvements. But the rate of complications is unacceptably high, and information provided about the products is fragmentary, false, and misleading. I would urge anyone considering these treatments to think very carefully about it. They could wind up worse off than they are now — in some cases, much worse.

This is Michael speaking again. As I continue to say to you guys over and over again, we all need to be able to make the best decisions for ourselves. And the only way to do that is to be educated fully. I believe we all have the right to decide what works for each of us — and also what doesn't. Be smart and listen to every side of every issue before you decide. Thanks to the doctor who wrote me this letter. We always welcome your input.

As always, I wish you the best in your quest for the best for yourself!

Ever-evolving diva

International dance music
star Ultra Naté
appreciates
gay fans' willingness to let her experiment

by jimmy smith

When Ultra Naté first appeared in 1989 with the international club anthem "It's Over Now," no one could have possibly predicted what would become of clubland's original diva of despair. As is often the case with the typical dance music artist, artistic longevity is not considered to be part of the overall plan. Of course, no one had any idea that Ultra Naté wasn't the typical dance music artist.

"I didn't end up in never, never land like many expected," says Naté, giggling.

In her 11-year journey as a singer-songwriter, Ultra Naté has completely shattered the image of the cookie-cutter dance princess — with much perseverance, hard work, and talent. Along the way, she confidently erased borders that divided pop, rhythm-and-blues, and dance. For proof, look no further than her late-'90s hit, "Free." Selling over one million copies worldwide, the spiritually uplifting "Free" was a Top-10 pop single throughout much of Europe. In Spain and Italy, the single reached the Number 1 spot on the national charts.

In the U.S., "Free" soared to the top of the Billboard Club Play and Maxi-Singles Sales charts before crossing over to Top-40 radio. With the global success of "Free," it wasn't long before Ultra Naté found herself sharing the stage with such diverse artists as Busta Rhymes, Tori Amos and the Backstreet Boys.

Now, Ultra Naté is embarking on the latest phase of her ever-evolving career. Her second album for Strictly Rhythm Records, "Stranger Than Fiction," which follows in the footsteps of 1998's "Situation: Critical," finds the singer further pushing the limits of popular music. A feisty mixture of dancefloor-rooted grooves, alternative-leaning pop and acoustic soul, "Stranger Than Fiction" features collaborations with the likes of Arnthor & Bloodshy (98s), D-Influence (Shola Ama), Lenny Kravitz, Brian Alexander Morgan (SWV, Eric Benét), 4-Hero, Nona Hendryx, Nick Nice & Anders Barren, Gerry DeVeaux (Angie Stone), Craig Ross (Lenny Kravitz), Mood II Swing, Jill Jones, Robert Clivilles, Attica Blues and N'Dea Davenport.

We recently had the chance to catch up with Ultra to talk a bit about her new album and other tidbits:

JIMMY SMITH: So you're now on your second album with Strictly. How do you feel about it?

ULTRA NATÉ: I'm feeling really good about the new album — glad it's done, glad it's finally out more than anything. I'm happy that people can finally hear it and give me feedback. It's like I'm in another cycle of the project now. And, you know, this is a different album from before. But like any record, it's born out of who and where you are at that moment in time. It's interesting once it's all done to sit back and listen to it and, like, really get it from a different perspective.

JS: Tell us a little bit about "baby Ultra."

UN: Pretty much the same as adult Ultra. I was always pretty much an independent kid. As my mom will attest to. I wasn't a needy, bratty kid, naturally inquisitive, and wasn't one who was concerned with sex, drugs and rock'n'roll. I was a bookworm, and went to church every Sunday by my own volition.

JS: What about school? Did you always want to be a singer?

UN: Well, believe it or not I was never involved in music during my high school years. I went to high school in Baltimore that was geared toward the medical profession. It was really hard to get into and once you did, you had to maintain your GPA or you were gone. It was pretty intense. But by the time I was in my senior year, I was only going to school for half of the day and reporting to a job site the other half. As it was, I got placed in the OR, which was an experience, to say the least.

JS: So what happened? Did some record label executive end up in the OR one night and discover you?

UN: (Laughs.) Once I started going out to clubs after high school, I met the Basement Boys. They were putting tracks together. One of them became a pretty good friend of mine and he just asked me to come down and do some stuff. Just to give it a try. So I did, because I felt like I had nothing to lose and it might be something fun and different to try. I started writing songs for their projects and demo-ing them up. And the first track that I did, they sent it to Tony Humphries and he started playing it on KISS-FM in New York and London. It started creating mad noise, and the next thing I knew I was off with a record deal.

JS: You know it's no secret that the gay bois absolutely adore you, right?

UN: That's a wonderful feeling because the gay community has always been a really loyal fan base for me. And I think they give you room to grow and develop where mainstream culture doesn't always. It's like whatever phase of development you were in when they caught on, that's where they want it to stay forever. The gay community understands the artistry that you put into making music and is more open to you experimenting and trying things and being versatile — evolving. Plus, you know I just love to get up on a float and be a part of all the Pride festivities. When I'm done in Houston [Naté will perform in the Bayou City next weekend and ride in the Gay and Lesbian Pride Parade next Saturday night] I'll head out first thing Sunday to perform at San Francisco Pride at 1 p.m. Sunday, then haul up to Seattle for a 7 p.m. show at the Pridefest there.

JS: So are you happy with your success so far?

UN: It's funny, but I've always looked at my career as something that was meant to happen. I say this because it was something I didn't go out and seek. Doors opened for me and I entered them. How far I'm meant to go and how much success I should have remains to be seen. And I don't judge success by how many records I've sold. In fact, I may not sell as many records as other artists, and I may not have as much money, but at the end of the day I'm happy doing what I'm doing. It all comes from within, which if you think about it, is successful in itself.

Stranger than fiction? Not really. It's simply Ultra Naté being true to herself, living life the only way she knows how.

Jimmy Smith writes the Beat column that appears weekly in Qtexas.

Ultimate compilations from the ultimate label

Groovilicious Music offers up two exciting hit-packed CDs next month beat

by jimmy smith

Native Texan Jimmy Smith writes about club music news and trends. His column appears weekly. He can be reached by e-mail at Qbeatstx@aol.com.

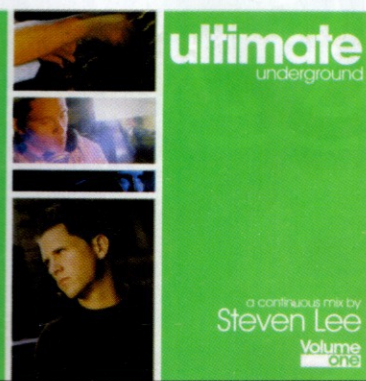

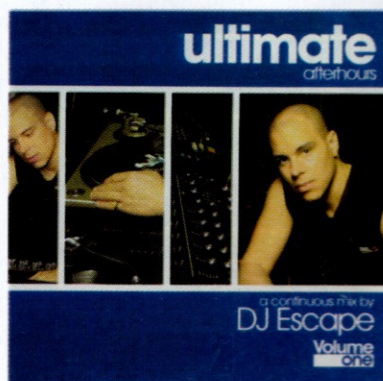

When it comes to putting out the best dance music on a consistent level, one need look no further than Groovilicious Music, the Number 1 dance music label in the business. The label's roster of talent reaches far and wide. Whether it's the cheddar-pop of the Vengaboys or the titillating trance-tipped Darude, the voice of Abigail (sent from heaven, if you ask me) or the magnificent progressive (yet radio-friendly) Fragma, there's one thing for certain. More often than not, if you are out at the danceteria and you hear a record that jiggles your beads, it's probably on Groovilicious.

When you go down the list of talent found on this label (a subsidiary of Strictly Rhythm), it's certainly no wonder that they are at the top. Besides the talent found on the records, there's also some amazing talent sitting behind the desks of the Groovilicious office — at least during the day, because at night they trade in their Palm Pilots for headphones and work it behind the turntables at some of the best clubs around.

As such, mark your calendars for the first week of July, when the Ultimate Underground and Ultimate Afterhours CDs hit the racks of your favorite retailer. Both of these CDs are over the top like nobody's business.

For the Ultimate Afterhours Volume 1 compilation, DJ Escape (who does A&R for Groovilicious during the day) has whipped up a non-stop concoction of disgustingly wonderful melodies — full-blown loveliness! The mix starts off with one of the biggest buzz records of the month, "Take Control" by Sono. Next up is the Aubry track entitled, "Stand Still." This record was done by Hex Hextor and is one of his rare original productions.

One of my favorite records in this mix is the Aurora featuring Naimee Colemann's "Ordinary World," a cover of Duran Duran's classic — completely fabulous! (You should hear her import album, by the way.) Out of control "circuitry" is found on the "Derb" track which, if you were at Gay Disney, you heard everywhere.

But I have to say that the pick of the litter is the new Abigail record, "You Set Me Free." We've been watching this babe since the early '90s, when her cover imports on Klone Records found their way to U.S. soil. This single finds her at her best! There's also the new Darude single, "Feel the Beat," plus a quite clever track called "Got to Have" as well as a few other items that will truly have you in an uproar! Truly one of the best mix CDs I've ever heard!

On the other side of the coin, we find the freshman offering from Groovilicious mixologist Steven Lee, Ultimate Underground Volume 1. Steven actually does marketing and club promotion during the day for Strictly Rhythm/Groovilicious. And listening to this CD, you would hardly know that he's only been DJing for 2 years! Lee glides through a set of house music nuggets for your nerves.

Highlights include the new Michael Moog record, "You Belong to Me," and "Tracy In My Room" (which features vocals by Everything But the Girls' Tracy Thorn). The Karen Ramirez "Looking For Love" track is a killing. Then there's the Soul Jour track "Here We Go Again," which is similar to Daft Punk. The Boris Dlugosch track "Never Enough" really works too. Other tracks by X-press-2, Datar and Rui Da Silva make for a well-balanced and perfectly programmed mix of house morsels.

Both of these CDs come out in July. But you don't have to wait! We're having a little contest. The first 10 people to email me with the correct answer to this question will win a copy of each CD. Here we go:

Bobby Orlando (Bobby O) was one of the biggest producers in the '80s, producing hits not only for himself as a solo artist, but for Divine, The Flirts, Oh Romeo, Waterfront Home, Claudja Barry, and Roni Griffith. He also produced "West End Girls" for the Pet Shop Boys.

The question: What was the follow-up single to "West End Girls" and what label was it on?

E-mail your answer to Qbeatstx@aol.com, and don't forget to include your address and phone number.

And that's the beats this week.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) Most of you Geminis should be feeling extremely creative right now, but enough with the lumber! At least give Home Depot a chance to restock. What on earth are you planning on building anyway, a second story? Get out there and have your self a serious good time.

Cancer (June 22-July 22) The week is likely to begin as a roller-coaster ride, but should settle back down by Friday night. Lunar aspects could have you feeling reminiscent about an old flame. But don't be tempted to go down that road again. Your vehicle is a mess. Have it detailed.

Leo (July 23-August 22) Once again you're likely to be the center of attention this week. How can anyone even think of throwing a classy bash without inviting a Leo, or two or three? Just make sure to stay home at least a couple of nights to recharge those batteries. Don't strain those vocal cords.

Virgo (August 23-September 22) The idea of going into a business partnership with a good friend may seem scary, but if you pass up this chance, who knows when another will come around. At least give it serious consideration. Be very careful driving on Thursday. Resist the urge to speed.

Libra (September 23-October 22) If you'd stop drinking that super duper double cola so close to bedtime, you might actually manage to get some sleep (and maybe blink, too). That idea you've been sitting on needs to be advanced quickly. Someone else could beat you to the punch.

Scorpio (October 23-November 21) That "dream vacation" you've been planning forever has been postponed so many times, you probably thought it would never happen. Well, pack those bags, Scorp, and get ready to fly! Don't forget the tickets, travelers cheques and an airport ride.

Sagittarius (November 22-December 21) It sure does seem like the calm and sunshine after that gaggle of storms that had been pelting you. Most everything looks great, Sag, except that your place is a real mess. Unless you plan to use it as the set of Alien 5, give it a good going over

Capricorn (December 22-January 18) Another idea comes to you and it becomes a major success. We guess you've just got the "magical touch," at least when it comes to career matters. As to your love life, well, that's another story. You need to get out there and make the rounds, dude!

Aquarius (January 19-February 18) It's about time you considered throwing a big bash for no reason at all. But don't try to plan all of the details yourself. Ask Aries to lend a hand. A bad tooth is about to flare up and cause you a lot of grief. Get thee to a dentist, and pronto.

Pisces (February 19-March 20) It's an absolutely incredible sight to behold, Pisces. For the longest time, you were flying solo, and now you've got two sweeties — or is it three? Enjoy yourself while it lasts, and have a blast for now. But make a choice later on.

Aries (March 21-April 19) This looks to be an all-around good week for you, Aries. Now that finances are a little more stabilized, you'll be able to redecorate your pad. Don't allow that pesky roommate to get on your nerves. If he keeps misbehaving, give him the old heave ho!

Taurus (April 20-May 20) It's high time that you faced the facts, Taurus. That relationship simply wasn't meant to go the distance, and you need to begin getting over it. This is the time to be hanging out with friends rather than staying home alone. Buy yourself something expensive.
