TRANSVESTIA

No. 44. 1967

Sharon - Calif.

By HARRY LEGG

In Los Angeles, Chicago, New York, and Miami, sorority sisters of Phi Pi Epsilon gather each month at Chapter meetings. But these prim-looking, well made up, and fashionably dressed members are not like any you will find at universities and colleges across America.

These "sorority sisters" are limp-wrist transvestites, playing out the part of the females they claim they really are. And this sorority is rapidly spreading across the country, with hundreds, possibly thousands of members engaging in their perverted pleasures in a new formal organization CONFIDENTIAL now brings to public attention for the first time.

Rumors of this transvestite organization have been circulating for some time, and CONFIDENTIAL's editor assigned this investigator to find out the true facts, no matter how shocking. He turned up a group so way out that even "normal" lesbians and homosexuals refuse to have anything to do with it!

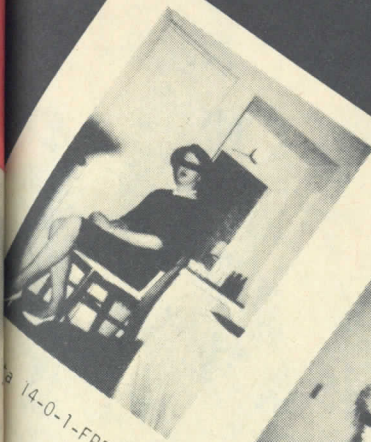

Phi Pi Epsilon and its publishing house, Chevalier Publications, is the brain-child of an acknowledged transvestite, Charles "Virginia" Prince. From offices in Los Angeles, a regular flow of letters, printed material, and news releases are sent to transvestite members in Canada and the United States. At almost regular intervals, Prince ventures from his scented bedroom dressed in satin dresses and bouncing falsies, to speak at clubs, radio stations, or any other place that will listen to his way-out line of thinking.

Since 1960, this sorority has encouraged it's "drag queens" to be unafraid when they dress as women, and to practice "full personality expression." From these last three words come the Greek symbols which are used as the sorority name.

Why did "Virginia" Prince begin this sorority? He reported to his following that Phi Pi Epsilon was formed so that "we would not remain a bunch of questionable odd-balls, who just like to dress up and parade around in skirts."

In one issue of their sorority magazine, "Transvestia,"

Prince stated that "we hope to build an organization which will provide fun, open social expression and acceptance, and personal contact." Which is another way of saying that these she-men should put on their best dress, and walk the streets, attempting to force normal Americans to accept them for what they're not—at least beneath the frilly clothes.

How does a transvestite become a member of Phi Pi Epsilon? It's very simple. After purchasing 5 copies of their magazine, the applicant is sent a personal history form which asks such questions as, "Do you wear a sanitary napkin when dressed?" and "If you had the opportunity, would you change your sex?" When he returns the form to Los Angeles, the transvestite is a full-fledged member, entitled to wear the gold sorority pin of a sea-horse. No investigation is made of the applicant.

Recently, the sorority started a campaign to find "husbands" for the unmarried members! The following advertisement is a sample of the methods they intend to use in an attempt to attract available women:

"There is a particular group of men who have even more to offer a wife than usually expected. Would you be interested in learning more about men who would make you prouder of being a woman than ever before? Write for free folder describing these men and telling how you may contact them."

Of course, no mention is made about the fact that these women will have to share their wardrobes with their husbands. Or that these men make excellent jail bait no matter where they live.

Every other month, the sorority magazine, "Transvestia," is published by Chevalier Publications. This 92-page booklet is loaded with photos, stories, and letters from swishing transvestites around the country. It is available to anyone willing to pay $4.00 in advance, but no charge accounts or COD's are allowed.

A feature article appears in each issue, describing in detail one of the "sorority" members complete with photos in every stage of dress and undress. These transvestites always have the latest wardrobe, from baby-doll pajamas and padded bra to the most fashionable cocktail gowns.

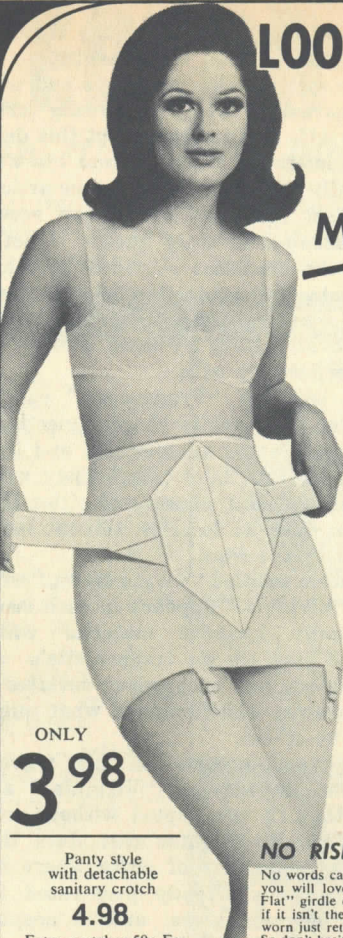

The Phi Pi Epsilon member of the month usually describes how she, he or it started wearing dresses. They brag as they tell how they first stole their mother's or sister's clothes, and what they did when they were discovered. They express no regret over having been caught, and state that they are quite normal. Medical authorities say they are normal, too; normal transvestites.

These articles almost always end with the transvestite telling in glowing terms how his wife and family accept this deviation. Sometimes a letter from his wife and family is included in the same article.

The fact that few women can accept their husbands as drag queens is borne out by the statistics recorded by many sexologists, indicating that 98 out of every 100 marriages end in divorce where the husband insists on being a sister or girl friend to his wife.

Each issue of "Transvestia" carries reports of the sorority chapter meetings, where new clothes are modeled and they trade the latest "girl talk." They swap information about places and cities that they can visit as females without being annoyed by the cops.

A column entitled "Virgin News," written by "Virginia," appears in each issue. He usually includes material which claims to back up the transvestite's desire to dress, and encourages deviates to be themselves and disregard what might be said by others.

He always reports on his travels, where he appears as "Virginia," and boasts that he is accepted without comment. This investigator can state that there are a number of cities where the vice squad has already penetrated the sorority chapter there, and is keeping close tabs on it's members.

Out of the organization has come an entirely new vocabulary.

Femmepersonator, Femmepink, Femmepass, and Femmedress. You won't find these words in any dictionary, as they are used only by those in the "know." However, a complete dictionary has been uncovered by this investigator which lists the meanings of their vocabulary.

At sorority meetings, the members don't consider themselves as female impersonators. Their word is Femmepersonator. A truly feminine gal delights in wearing pink panties. But that word is not good enough for these "sorority sisters." They call them Femmepink. Femmepass? To a "Femmepersonator" the word means that they have succeeded in appearing in public wearing their latest dress and panty girdle without being caught by the police. There's also Femmephobia. There are all kinds of phobia running around, but chances are that you haven't heard of this new one. Femmephobia means that they are afraid to admit that they have a "female" side.

Once the transvestites have learned their new language, the sorority is ready to allow them to put it to use. In every issue of Transvestia, a column appears called "Person to Person." Every member, for a fee, is allowed to place an ad in this section. Two dollars buys an ad telling of the availability of a "Femme-personator."

It's not necessary to state just what these "sorority sisters" are available for. Each one of these swishing she-men consider themselves a complete woman when dressed up, just waiting to be dominated by an understanding male.

What sort of ads are published? Here's two examples which speak for themselves:

"32-g-2 Former boxer, 42, wants a full time position as housemother in club or apartment maintaining quarters, clothing, exchange for living area. No salary. Tessie, N.Y."

Can you imagine a boxer wearing a mini-skirt or maid's uniform? How about this one:

"51-m-1 Inexperienced but eager college grad, 22, interested all aspects impersonation."

If these "Femmepersonators" are to be properly dressed, they must have the necessary garments to provide curves which are obviously lacking.

Naturally their sorority headquarters is happy to meet the member's exotic items, at a substantial fee. Their 4 page catalog includes a number of personal items which I can assure you won't be found in any department store in the United States. Every member flips his falsies when he reads about:

"Item #8. Store Front Pad with Grove. This pad is made of foam rubber pre-shaped and beveled and with a grove in front. It is rough finished allowing for further trimming by scissors to the desired shape and smoothness. The grove receives the penis when it is held upright against the stomach and makes allowance for its thickness so there is no noticable bulge beneath ones girdle. There is an enlargement of the groove to hold the testicles. Some 'girls' prefer to wear Kotex. Pad $3.00

"Item #1. Bra with inserts. These are nice cotton bras with elastic straps. They have a special pocket sewed in the back of each cup which carries the polyvinyl inserts. Bra and inserts $5.00

"Item #2. Jelly Kit. This consists of two bottles of chemicals, one liquid and the other powder. When the powder has been soaked in water over night and injected into the inserts, a soft non-flowing jelly results. With elastic straps on the bra a natural bounce and flow occurs when one walks. Jelly Kit $5.00

"Item #9. Special lubricant. In a closed-in condition as when wearing the front pad, both penis and stomach skin perspire slightly. It is suggested that one wear a contraceptive with a little special lubricant in it. This provides a smooth frictionless surface and is very pleasant and comfortable. Special Lubricant $3.00."

As may well be expected, there are many other items available from headquarters, which are made especially for these "dream world females," all priced to empty their purses.

But, have you heard about the Phi Pi Epsilon's best seller list of popular fiction? They don't appear on The New York Time's best seller list but they are making the scene at every sorority meeting. You're on the outside if you don't dig some of these titles:

Red-Hot Stories

Not after she considered his poppa's power in showbusiness where she hoped to become a big star. So she lied.

"Sure," she said. "What's your rate?"

"How about 75 cents an hour?" he asked.

"Good. You can help the gardener any time you're free."

He did help, too, for about a week. Even made four or five dollars at it. But then, during one boring afternoon when she was supposed to be studying the script for the next day's filming, this 5-foot-3, 38-24-34 beauty noticed how tall, how muscular and how tempting the tanned teenager was as he worked out in the sun-drenched yard without a shirt, wearing only his tennis shorts.

He was almost 14, but...

One thing led to another so fast—and over a glass of lemonade, too—that junior knew more about the ins and outs of sex by the time he was 13 and a half than most men know by the time they are 30.

And the father was happy, too.

"Look at that kid work," he would crow to his friends. "He's over there every afternoon breaking his back doing odd jobs. Sometimes even on Saturday and Sunday."

If father could only have seen some of the odd jobs junior worked at on the satin sheets beside his lovely lollipop!

The odd jobs might have gone on forever, too, and nobody would have been the wiser, but the silken-smooth sextress realized after a couple of months that her passionate playmate was still only a kid.

So the lush-bodied beauty called for outside help—an old friend of hers, a Hollywood stunt man who had romanced her before she became famous, and he began roaring over to the mansion on his motorcycle every afternoon.

Then junior really learned the far-out facts of life! He was jilted for a real he-man.

Then his father wasn't so happy. "What's wrong with you?" he asked the youngster one evening after noticing his big, beefy son was crying.

Instead of replying, the boy broke into crocodile tears and ran howling to his room.

"My kid?" the star asked incredulous, "Is a sissy."

After a long talk with the kid, he realized the kid was a mess emotionally and couldn't cope with a love affair.

Naturally, the first thing he did was take time off from all his TV and movie jobs to drag junior to a headshrinker. The second thing he did was inform the passionate pussycat down the road that she'd be lucky to get a job as a carhop when he got through with her career. And the third thing he did was break the stuntman's nose—while the stuntman's arms were being held by two of his cronies—for cutting in on his son.

That's where the situation stands. Junior's on the couch. Sexpot's on the run. Daddy's on a rampage. The stuntman's on the mend.

And Hollywood? The town is on the telephone running the story through the gossip mill and adding the cynical comment that one big-time comedian made when he heard it:

"It just goes to show you what kind of lousy help you get for 75 cents an hour these days."

Story #2—Calm, Cool and Corrupt

She's the very model of an important official's wife—calm, cool and perfectly poised when she turns up on television, the speaker's platform or in the many photographs of her that appear in newspapers and magazines.

Just beautiful. So chic. So slim and elegant. So perfect.

But then there's that story of what happened to her and the photographer on the kitchen floor.

It happens that this long-legged lovely is the much-younger wife of a vigorous but mature member of the Congress who is up to his ears in the constant struggle to stay in the public favor, shake a lot of hands, get a lot of publicity, make a lot of speeches and get a lot of votes.

Many people shook their heads when he chose her for his bride, thinking that he just wouldn't have time even if he did
