UP FRONT

Greetings, gang.

Last weekend's whirlwind statewide tour by several national gay activists was considered a success by everyone involved. The Texas Gay Task Force, in its multi-city tour, raised approximately $12,000, which will be divided 1/2 to No on 6 in California and the other 1/2 to the TGTF legislative lobby.

The Houston GPC-sponsored visit raised approximately $6,400, 1/2 to No On 6 and the other 1/2 to GPC.

The tour included former USAF TSgt. Leonard Matlovich, former pro football player Dave Kopay, feminist/author Del Martin and the Rev. Elder Troy Perry, founder of the Metropolitan Community Church.

These celebrities visited San Antonio, Austin, Dallas, Lubbock, Denton, Fort Worth and Houston.

Over 300 persons attended the No On 6 banquet in Houston; several hundred were at the picnic and various other functions. All major gay groups were represented and were well-organized. Texans deserve a round of applause for their efforts.

Thanks, Texas!

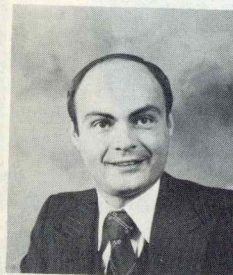

Here's number 186.

Dig in and enjoy!

STARSCOPE

Week of October 21 - 27, 1978

FOR ALL SIGNS: The major astrological happening this week is the movement of the Sun from Libra into Scorpio at 12:40 p.m. this Monday, October 23. Your behavior will be markedly different on Monday from Tuesday.

SPECIAL LOVE MESSAGE: Sunday, October 22 at 4:35 a.m. a very important conjunction takes place which can effect your love life. Venus and Mars make a conjunction. Venus rules love. Mars rules your sex drive. Therefore, when these two planets combine forces this weekend, everyone can be pushed into a sexual high. Friday and Saturday will see the conjunction coming, making this love/sex force operative for two days prior to actual conjunction.

SCORPIO: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can make you extra attractive to others this weekend. This love-sex conjunction can make you charge!

SAGITTARIUS: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can lead you into a hot new love affair in some unexpected place. This love-sex conjunction is electric.

CAPRICORN: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can put you into a social event which can produce an affair. This love-sex conjunction is very social.

AQUARIUS: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can make this a weekend when business mixes with pleasure. This love-sex conjunction is total.

PISCES: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can yield a torrid new affair, especially if you're taking a journey. This love-sex conjunction is magnetic.

ARIES: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can yield money as well as romance. This love-sex conjunction is also lucky for finances.

TAURUS: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can uplift your self-image as some new affair can come aboard. This love-sex conjunction is a pleasant change.

GEMINI: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can yield a reward when it comes to a special project. This love-sex conjunction is promising for results.

CANCER: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can find single Moon children meeting a future mate. This love-sex conjunction further strengthens existing marriages.

LEO: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can see a social gathering producing a new love affair. This love-sex conjunction is most powerful.

VIRGO: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd can send a new affair to you from afar. This love-sex conjunction can make you happy again. If married, all is sound.

LIBRA: The Mars/Venus conjunction on the 22nd will put you in the mood for lust. This love-sex conjunction makes you unable to get enough.

STAR GAZER: This Saturday, October 21, the Orionid meteor shower reaches its peak in the early morning hours, spewing forth some 20 to 30 meteors per hour. Because of a bright moon, only the hours from 10 to midnight will allow observation low in the eastern sky.

TELEVISION

In the event that you find this column (and its author) cynical, pompous and unwilling to grant favorable reviews to the majority of debris which travels across the airwaves into your homes, your observations are flawless. However, as I was about to anesthetize myself in order to endure another evening of television viewing, I discovered, to my great pleasure, that there is a truly fine program aired every Sunday night.

NBC's Lifeline is a medical documentary which possesses more dramatic tension than any hospital melodrama. The format of the show is simple. Each episode is a revealing profile of a doctor engaged in the diagnosis and treatment of complex medical problems. Only there are no actors. The actual people involved in the crisis are the heroes of the story.

In this particular episode Dr. Theodore Kurze, a neurosurgeon at a Pasadena, California hospital, must perform a delicate operation on a five-year-old boy. The decision to operate is explained to the parents and the patient. Details leading up to the surgery are carefully worked out and the complex operation is successful. Full recovery, however, will be a long, arduous process.

This series is unique in many ways. It is neither an array of tedious case studies nor is it a drama based on a "real-life situation." A narrator provides necessary medical explanations in concise, understandable language. Actual dialogue is sparse and is used primarily to reveal the doubts and frustrations of the characters, including the physician. The camera work is crisp and sharp, alternating between subtle mood shots and precise depiction of the surgical technique. Unlike the usual hospital fare, a happy ending is not a foregone conclusion and, while the final scenes may be a bit romantic, they are necessary to relieve the uncertainty which has been created during the program.

Lifeline is not simple-minded TV fluff. It set a much needed and much welcomed programming trend.

MOVIES

"Paradise Alley" appears to be another hit for Sylvester Stallone. Written and directed by Stallone, this movie is a good-natured story set in New York's Hell's Kitchen during the 1940's.

Stallone and his two brothers want to escape the poverty of the ghetto and decide to wrestle their way out, literally. The key to this scheme is the muscular, but dumb brother, played by Lee Canalito. Together with the third sibling, Armand Assante, Stallone convinces the kid that their brains and his brawn will provide a one-way ticket to the Upper East Side. As in so many movies of this ilk, the big match is the last scene with the good guys taking on the bad guys.

The plot of "Paradise Alley" may be old hat, but Stallone uses it for all it's worth. The characters of the three brothers are vividly drawn and placed against a backdrop of strange "New York" types who parade through the film. As an actor Stallone will have to find other than sensitive toughs to portray, but he has proven beyond a doubt that he is a skillful writer and a sensitive director in this, his latest effort.

TEXAS RENAISSANCE FESTIVAL

One of the most unique events of autumn is the Texas Renaissance Festival. This event began four years ago as a type of fair with a few acts and some food stands. Now the annual event, which will continue throughout the month of October in Magnolia, contains a whole array of entertainments. This year the festival will attempt to recreate the atmosphere of a 15th century merchant village at fair time. Featured will be arts and crafts shops, drama, music, dance, jugglers, magicians, mimes, fencers, horse racing, horse games events, wandering minstrels, and period games, as well as a wide assortment of food and drink. For the price, a mere $5 admission,

COMMENT

Dear TWT:

Of the estimated 100,000 gay women and men living in the Dallas/Denton/Ft. Worth area, not even .1% are members of the Dallas Gay Political Caucus or make any contribution to the gay movement. Why? Most people are not interested in what's good for "the movement," rather "what's in it for me?" They're not interested in ten or even five years from now. They want something in return for their money and effort — now!

Thousands of our people crowd into the bars every weekend. They go to find a lover, a new friend, or a trick. They may or may not make out. But at least the potential is there. At the very least they spend a pleasant evening drinking and socializing with friends. They get something! Ask any of these people why they are not part of some effort to repeal Section 21.06 of the Texas Penal Code or to end discrimination against gays, and the response will probably be, "Don't bug me, man. I'm not interested in politics." Yet if one of those not interested in politics were to be arrested, fired, or become the victim of bash-a-fag, they would yell, "Why doesn't somebody do something?!"

If we could unite our people, discrimination would end almost instantly, not decades from now. For instance, just suppose every gay man and woman in the nation anonymously contributed just a penny a day, in a year's time we could have 77 million dollars!

Money is power. With that kind of money we could hire a battery of lawyers in every major city to fight every case of police harassment or discrimination. With that kind of money we could have an army of lobbyists working for our efforts in Washington.

When we unite our people, when we unite our efforts, we will get what we want. And what is it we want? Not special privileges. We want only the same rights and responsibilities non-gays take for granted. In time this will happen, despite Anita Bryant and setbacks.

In the meantime, the Dallas Gay Political Caucus is trying to get 1,000 paid members by Gay Pride Day — 1979. We do not ask anyone to risk their jobs. Members may use pseudonyms if they choose. Our monthly newsletter is always mailed in a plain white envelope. Memberships are $15 a year, $5 for those with limited incomes.

Please help us — your gay brothers and sisters — and yourself.

LIFE WITH VERA

by John Gardner

Zachary pattered around the kitchen, preparing his usual Sunday morning breakfast. Zipping around the table in his skimpy, skimpy track shorts, he methodically consumed his 40 grams of wheat germ, six raw eggs and the carrot. It was the sort of breakfast that could make an outsider question Zach's mental capacities. What kind of man would eat crap like that for breakfast? A healthy man, Maude, that's who! And Zach was healthy, there was no denying that. REAL healthy. Between the health food, running track and lifting absolutely tons and tons of weights each day, Zach was undoubtedly Number One on the city's "Hunkiest Number With A Lover" list.

This was a big day for Zach. In about thirty minutes he was going to head out for Rice to accomplish the monumental task of increasing his Sunday jogging distance from 15 miles to 18 miles. For Burt, this day would not be quite so ambitious. Burt's goal for the day was to stay awake with a minimum of pain. Too much heavy food, too much heavy dope and too much Late Show — he was a mess. It was a good thing they were lovers and not Siamese twins. The overflow of health from Zach would have killed Burt in a flash.

With his chair propped up in a manner that permitted his presence at the kitchen table with a minimum of effort, Burt sat huddled in a floppy robe and a Hangover.

"Anything exciting in the paper?" Zach asked, glancing toward the sheets and sheets of Sunday Post spread over the table top.

"I'm not sure," Burt replied, leaning forward in the hope that the steam from his coffee might erase the devastation from his face.

"My eyes, like all my bodily parts, are not cooperating this morning. I can squint hard enough to read the headlines, but if I squint hard enough to read the fine print, my eyes shut altogether."

"That doesn't sound very pleasant," Zach sympathized.

"Actually," Burt admitted, "it can be quite intriguing. This headline for example: 'Queen Orders Palace Redecorated.' I don't know if that's about..."

England or a belligerent Garland fan in New York!"

"Where are the funny papers?" Zach asked.

"I used them all up last night," Burt informed. "Plus two packs of Zig-Zags and one E-Z Wider."

"Not those funny papers. The comics. The newspaper. The cartoons."

"Oh, those! Ah. . . Ah. . . I threw them away," Burt admitted.

"Threw them away! Why?"

"All the color was killing my eyes. Migraine, you know."

"You know I love Peanuts."

"Well, it's not my fault they print it in color on Sunday."

"You could have saved it for me!"

"I tried to clip it out. But it was too close to Mary Worth, who was just too, too dazzling!"

"I'll dig it out when I get back," Zach decided, lacing up his track shoes.

"By the way," Burt said. "Better not wear track shorts that are too skimpy. The vice is cracking down again."

"What do you mean?"

"Here, read this story to me. The headline is titillating but the print is microscopic."

"Okay. . . let's see. . . which one? . . . ah. . . oh! . . . I see it!"

"Marvelous! That's the general idea! Now, read, read!"

"Okay. 'In what is being described as the biggest porno crackdown in the state's history, Houston Police yesterday raided a major film-making operation along the Houston Ship Channel.'

'The company, Sphincter Studios, is believed to be the primary factory of pornographic movies in the southwest, perhaps the entire country.'

'Using an undercover agent posing as a janitor for the warehouse in which the studio operated, police apprehended underground kingpin Hott N. Cole, as well as several of his associates. Also taken into custody was film equipment and files and records. IRS agents are reportedly anxious to study the firm's books.'

"The Best Little Whorehouse In Texas"

When I first saw the album cover (The Best Little Whorehouse In Texas Original Cast, MCA-3049) at a friend's house, the first thought that passed through my stoned mind was, "My God, somebody's produced a record about Mary's!" I think my reaction was a combination of good grass, the word "whorehouse," and the Cassandra-esque legs gracing the jacket front. Anyway, I could hardly wait to hear the record, and my friend obliged and put the disc on his fabulous four-channel hi-fi. Hi-fi or no-fi, I was blown away! I can't remember being in such uncontrolled hysterics since the ushers had to remove me from the Delman Theatre when I broke up at the Last Supper scene in M*A*S*H. The next day I ran out and bought my own copy and listened to it three times consecutively without filtering it through a weedy haze. And, folks, it was — and is — a winner! Anyone who owns a record player should own this album.

With a book by Houstonians Larry King and Peter Masterson, and with technical assistance from Miss Edna Milton, LaGrange's most famous madame, "Whorehouse" chronicles the LaGrange (in the play, Gilbert, Texas) pleasure palace from the Great Depression through its closing in 1973 at the hands of a yapping, growling, flashlight-toting watchdog Melvin P. Thorpe (Channel 13's moral crusader, Marvin Zindler). The opening number, "20 Fans," leaves no doubt as to where the author's sympathies lie. In sage, witty, hummable lyrics, the cast paints a picture of a clean, well-kept country house that "lay in a green Texas glade where the trees were as cool as fresh lemonade." Fevers were "a-burning, and they had to have a way to cool down." A fan was turning in every room, and the clients were served fresh watermelon in the parlor where the girls and the customers could dance to music from a jukebox.

In the next song ("A Lil' Ole Bitty Pleasant Country Place"), Carlin Glynn, as the chic, transcendently camp Madam, Miss Mona, explains that there's "nothing dirty going on" — just a nice quiet crowd, no drinking allowed — maybe one small thrill and lots of good will. Then Miss Mona lays down the House Rules that all of her girls of good will must memorize. "No whips or rough stuff — this ain't the Marine Corps. Beds aren't made to waller in — that's the kind of thing that big, fat, lazy hogs do, and it don't make money. No tattoos, no hearts and flowers on your thighs — it's downright tacky. Brands belong on cattle — and that's not what we are selling at Miss Mona's." Glynn sings Miss Mona's songs in a reedy, nasal, authentic Texas drawl that is at once sassy and ingratiating. Miss Mona is just a successful country businesswoman concerned about the welfare of her customers, her employees, and her community.

By contrast, watchdog Melvin P. Thorpe sounds like a hypocritical evangelist who inveighs against the sins of "loveless copulation" by day and "loves that copulation" by night. Somehow, all the assurances of the Melvin P. Thorpe Singers that "Watchdog ain't no fool" ring hollow. Watchdog turns Miss Mona's "one small thrill" into "carnal lust" between "mean-eyed, juiced-up, honky-tonk cowboys and green-eyed, little-lipped peroxide blondes" acting all loose and wild. In an inspired juxtaposition, the song that follows the crusading Thorpe is Delores Hall's rich, throaty black vibrato rendition of "Twenty-Four Hours of Lovin'." Her song is only 4½ minutes long, but when she's through, you're breathlessly wishing every town had some sort of chicken ranch and that the Melvin P. Thorpes of the world would just go away.

"Doatsy Mae" convinces us that Miss Mona's girls aren't empty-headed peroxide blondes but real people with dreams and frustrations like everybody else. "The Angelette March" pokes not-so-gentle fun at a Texas institution, the Aggie football game. It's followed by "The Aggie Song," a wildly macho tune in which a troupe of Aggie football players march and tap dance to the Chicken Ranch where "history and Aggie boys get made." Surely Meco, C. J. & Co., or the Salsoul Orchestra is going to pick up "The Aggie Song" and turn it into a giant disco hit.

You'll just have to hear "The Sidestep" for yourself. Every line is a finely polished gem capturing the real flavor of Texas politicians as Jay Garner's governor slithers just out of the grasp of the inquisitive reporters.

Next, "No Lies," and "Good Ole Girl" find Miss Mona and the Lanville county sheriff after the Ranch has been closed. If you expect bitterness, you'll be disappointed. Miss Mona explains with philosophic good humor that "I just started out poor and worked my way up to outcast." The sheriff intones, "We ain't no damned fools" — and you know exactly who the fools are. In "Hard Candy Christmas," Miss Mona's good will girls appear determined not to let sorrow get them down as they go their separate ways on new careers. In the finale, the whole troupe appears as amiable as in the introduction. Our sadness is not that the Chicken Ranch has been closed, but that the record is over. You wish the songs and laughs could go on and on. A really refreshing change from the usual original cast recordings the record companies have been serving up lately.

But here is the real treat: early in 1979 Masterson and King are bringing The Best Little Whorehouse In Texas to Houston. And where else but the Tower Theatre — right across the street from Mary's. I don't think I can stand it.

HOT TEA by Chuck

WW II starts next Monday at Numbers and runs for four days. The live show, produced by Stagestruck, recapture the 1940's and the war years (see photo essay on following two pages). Plans include taking the show on the road to other cities. D-Day invasion time is 9pm 23 Oct. '78. Achtung!

MR. NUMBERS is Rick Price, (photo above, middle), who was crowned in the recent muscle contest at Numbers Disco/Theatre. Rick, who is 26 and a Scorpio, went on to win the Mr. Texas title in TWT's annual pageant in Dallas October 8. First runnerup was Mike Koth (left) age 21 and an Aries. Second runnerup was Don Nieto (right) age 25 and a Libra.

ENTERTAINER OF THE YEAR is coming Tuesday, November 14 to the OP Houston. The annual TWT pageant is the popularity contest of the year as you, the public, decide the winner. You are the judge! Who is your favorite? You can cast an official vote when the TWT ballot box comes to your city in the next four weeks. For a list of vote nights, see the ad on pages 28 - 29. Start watching the drag shows very carefully so you can decide who your favorite is for Entertainer of the Year '79.

NEW BARS: Houston's new women's club, Marion's Too, opens next Monday at 109 Tuam. . . a new Houston disco, The Tool Box, is slated to open soon on Montrose near Richmond. . . a new Baton Rouge bar which will be part disco and part country is on the way. . . The new Chances and Split Image bars in Fort Worth are off to a running start. . . And, yes, another disco and another bath are coming to Austin!

THE INSIDE/OUTSIDE Off-Westheimer Theatre presented an engrossing play this weekend called "Jesse and the Bandit Queen" (photo above). Produced by the Capital Acting Company of Austin, the play portrays the life, loves and death of Jesse James. Coming November 3 - 5 will be "Comedia de Austin," which promises to be a hilarious romp of black out skits.

CLUB AUSTIN has a new manager who has come to the Capital City from CBC Newark. He's Gary Schaub (photo below), 29, a Moonchild whose hobby is raising and breeding exotic birds. Gary says the remodeling and renovation of Club Austin will continue. Incidentally, the self-expression room at Club Austin is something else!

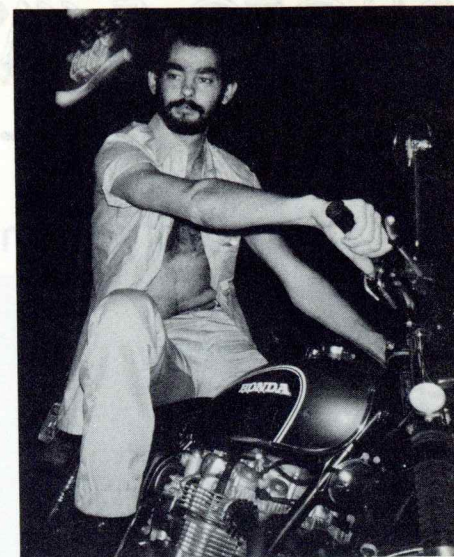

FORT WORTH AWARDS: October 9 marked the date for the second annual bar awards which was held at Patches. Pat Wyatt was elected comedy E-O-Y and overall E-O-Y, Raina Lea of Aub's was awarded disco E-O-Y, Barbie Doll won country/western E-O-Y and Patches won bar-of-the-year. . . Hot tea from news reporterette Ms. Gellman.

THE FARMHOUSE in Beaumont celebrated its first anniversary October 11 by introducing a new light show and more remodeling. The Cruise Camera was in Beaumont anniversary night to photograph Lynn Ganey, (photo below), who is co-owner of the FH with Gene Howell. It's a hot bar with hot disco music by dj Mark who reports the Golden Triangle hot wax 1) MacArthur Park/Donna Summer, 2) Instant Replay/Dan Hartman, 3) YMCA/Village People, 4) Boogie Fund/Solar Flare, and, 5) I'm A Man/Macho.

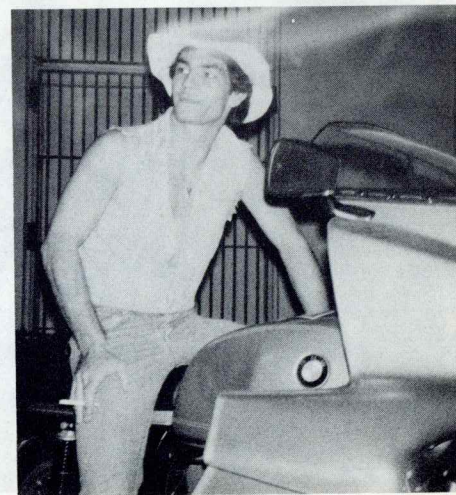

TEA FOR TWO THOUSAND is the theme of the new Montrose Activity Center which will open Sunday, October 29 in its new Houston location at 1423 Holman at Labranch. Tickets are now on sale at Mary's, Eagle Leathers, Studz News and the Midtowne Spa. It's a social benefit for the opening of the new gay community center.

SNOOPING AROUND: The Westheimer Art Festival in Houston is this weekend. It promises to be another festive semi-annual event with Mary's and the Venture-N teaming up for a two-day party, and the Midnite Sun presenting six matinees Saturday and Sunday. . . Adrian St. Clair is the new Miss Gay USA/Louisiana. The R & M pageant was held at the Southern Comfort in Lafayette. . . Miss Gay Austin is slated for Sunday, October 29 at Austin Country. . . Manager Tony Lazada says Ken Patterson is the new assistant manager at Dirty Sally's. . . Austin's Private Cellar will celebrate Halloween early on Saturday, October 28. . . And Houston's Disco Grandma is in Pasadena's Southmore Medical Center. Get well wishes!

 And our hair.

Baldness or thinning hair can make you look and feel years older than you are. We can help you with a process that adds hair — naturally. This non-medical procedure takes only a few hours to give you a full head of hair that you can sleep, shower, sport and romance in. Find out why Al Fitzmorris and thousands of other men prefer Apollo. Send for more information.
