UP FRONT

Greetings, gang.

Last weekend statewide representatives of the Texas Gay Task Force (TGTF) met with Attorney General/Democratic gubernatorial candidate John Hill in Austin. TGTF representatives from Houston, Austin, San Antonio, Dallas and Lubbock met privately with Hill after he spoke to the Texas DPS Officers Association.

While Hill did not promise to repeal Penal Code section 21.06 (homosexual conduct), he did promise several important things that will hopefully benefit gay people in Texas.

First, the Attorney General promised, if elected governor, to give equal consideration to a gay person for appointment to the Texas Human Relations Commission he hopes to establish. This commission would encompass all types of civil and human rights problems in Texas.

Second, Hill stated that he was not familiar with the various types of discrimination against gay men and women in Texas, but that he was willing to be educated about anti-gay discrimination in our state.

Third, Hill promised to meet with leaders of the gay community again immediately after the election in November for extended discussions and educational exchanges.

According to TGTF leaders, the meeting with Hill was historic in that Hill, the candidate most likely to win, is in a position to do the most to help gay people once in the governor's office.

Houston GPC officials also report much the same results at their meeting with Hill the weekend before.

This should not be construed as a final and ultimate victory for us in Texas politics, but it should be looked upon with a view of distinct progress in Texas politics.

Here's number 187.

Dig in and enjoy!

STARSCOPE

November Lovescope

FOR ALL SIGNS: At the outset of each month, Starscope examines the planets' movements for a monthly forecast regarding your love life. For a dual message, read the lovescope both for yourself and for one to whom you are close.

SCORPIO LOVESCOPE: November finds Venus in your first house which makes you more magnetic and the center of attention. The best days for romance will be the 1st, 5th, 7th, 18th, and 28th. If single, be available on those dates. If married, look to your mate for support.

SAGITTARIUS LOVESCOPE: November finds both sexy Mars and communicative Mercury coloring your first house of personality. If single, new romance occurs on the 2nd, 4th, 10th, 15th, and 25th through the 30th. If married, you and your mate can come to an agreement on goal setting.

CAPRICORN LOVESCOPE: November should be a very social month. If single, a social event around the 1st, 5th, 8th, 19th, or 26th could yield a new love. If married, you and your mate will be going to many events and gatherings, and, perhaps giving out invitations to your own party.

AQUARIUS LOVESCOPE: November looks like a month for marriages made by the stars. If single, Jupiter in your 7th house of marriage makes you think seriously about a life mate. Noteworthy dates are the 2nd, 15th, 21st and 30th. If married, there should be few problems with your mate.

PISCES LOVESCOPE: November is romantically mixed. If single, Venus and Uranus together in your 5th house of love affairs can bring forth an unusual encounter in an unusual place. If married, Saturn in your 7th house of partners continues to be a repressing situation not to be resolved this month.

ARIES LOVESCOPE: November presents romantic opportunities with Jupiter in your 5th house of love affairs. Jupiter is lucky, especially around the 15th, if single. If married, others may catch your eye causing your mate to be extra jealous. Together, it can be a mutually rewarding month financially.

HALLOWEEN, October 31, finds the Moon in Scorpio, a sign known for lust, sex, darkness, secretive occurrences, sneaky events, and rule from the underground! This could be a most fateful Halloween with the moon in sinister Scorpio! Enjoy, but watch it.

TAURUS LOVESCOPE: November looks like wedding plans, if single. Venus, which rules love, is firmly planted, fortunately, in your 7th house of marriage. But, with restrictive Saturn in your 5th house of love affairs, you may get too serious too soon. If married, let your mate do the leading. He's dominate.

GEMINI LOVESCOPE: November's best days for finding a mate are around the 4th, 10th, 15th, the 21st through 26th, and at months end. If married, both Mars and Mercury in your 7th house of marriage make you more sexually active and turned on by your mate and also more apt to communicate incessantly.

CANCER LOVESCOPE: November could be romantically rash. A quick turn of events can spur single moon children into a love tailspin after the first week of the month. If married, travel and relation can tangle your marital web. Venus in your 5th house puts the accent on love affairs.

LEO LOVESCOPE: November finds Mars pushing your sex drive in your 5th house of love affairs. Lucky Jupiter is now 8 degrees into your sun sign adding luck to your romantic partner hunts, if single. If married, Jupiter makes you indispensable as a partner. November is a plus month for Leos.

VIRGO LOVESCOPE: November's lucky love days are around the 4th, 12th, and 24th. Travel and be socially active on these dates so single Virgos will be in the right place at the right time. If married, take some side trips to break the dull routine. No major problems will beset you and your mate.

LIBRA LOVESCOPE: November is a month more for friends than lovers. With Jupiter in your 11th house of friendships, luck is certain where friends are concerned. Looking for love takes a back seat for single Librans. If married, look for lots and lots of talk from your mate. He's emotional.

THEATRE

EQUUS: A play produced by the University of Houston
October, 1978

Every so often there appears a play which meets with such public acclaim that every community and college theatre from Conroe to Clute tries to produce it.

Equus by Peter Shaffer is such a play. John Napier's original set is simple to reconstruct. The production costs are relatively small, every role is meaty, and the nude scenes provoke just enough scandal to attract audiences. When placed in the hands of non-professional companies, however, Equus tends to degenerate from a powerful drama into a limp melodrama. Such was not the case with University of Houston's recent production.

Sid Berger's direction was simple and direct, allowing the actors freedom to interpret Shaffer's provocative text. Steven Mattila created the role of Alan Strang, a 17 year old boy committed to a psychiatric hospital for blinding six horses, with care and sensitivity. He downplayed the juvenile hysterics which trap many young actors, revealing instead the innocence and vulnerability of a deeply troubled adolescent.

Charles Krohn, as Martin Dysart, the psychiatrist who treats Strang, gave an energetic interpretation. Krohn manages to keep his characterization objective and full of self-deprecation as he uncovered his own doubts during his encounters with Strang. However, Krohn avoided displaying the intense anger and fear which are also inherent in the role. Although this choice rendered the character more humorous, it also kept Dysart too one dimensional at certain crucial points. Charlie Trotter portrayed Strang's callous and insensitive father with force and precision. Ginny Hartman, as his religiously preoccupied wife, created a fine study of a frustrated woman constantly on the verge of hysteria. Karen Janecka, as the young girl whose attempt to seduce the younger Strang precipitated his psychotic actions, permitted her character broad strokes of robust sensuality without becoming crude or vulgar.

University theatre, more often than not, is long on passion and short on skill and subtlety. The University of Houston has proven, in this production at least, to be the exception to the rule. Hopefully, the remainder of their season will be equally successful.

LIFE WITH VERA

by John Gardner

Arriving late, as usual, and against his will, as usual, Burt was at Vera's house, working on the Project of the Day. Today's Project: Helping Vera pack. Destination: Paris.

As Burt attempted to reach a compromise between the 10 suitcases and the 143 dresses, Vera swirled around the room, bursting with joy and, unfortunately, song.

"I love Paris in the springtime," Vera sang. "I love Paris in the fall . . . I love Paris in the summer . . ."

"You don't plan to wear this I hope," Burt groaned, holding up a small bikini made of silk.

" . . . when it sizzles," Vera continued singing. "I love Paris in the winter. . ."

"Or this rabbit-fur sunsuit," Burt groaned.

" . . . when it drizzles," Vera melodically informed. "I love Paris every mooo-oooment, every mooo-oooment of the year. I loooo-ve Paris. My, of my, I . . ."

"Please!" Burt snapped. "How do you expect me to concentrate with all that. . . all that . . ."

"Singing?"

"Squawking! You sound like a pen of chickens addressed to Colonel Sanders."

Vera sashayed lavishly toward Burt, flashing a vibrant smile atop gritted teeth. Placing his fingers aside the fleshy portion of Burt's chin, Vera administered the Pinch of Death.

"Aaaaawwwwww!" Burt yelled. "That hurts! How many times do I have to tell you! I hate it when you do that!"

"Sorry, dear," Vera cooed. "Why, I don't know what came over me. I promise never to do it again."

"That's what you said the last time."

"Well, that just goes to prove it."

"Prove what?"

"That tomorrow is . . . ANOTHER DAY!" Vera sang, again pinching Burt's chin and shaking his jowls on the high note.

"DAMMIT!" Burt bellowed. "I've about had it up to here with you!"

"Come, child, no one has ever had it up to there. At least not with me. But, I do keep looking."

"Sometimes you make me so mad, I'll be glad when you're gone. Where the hell is that taxi?"

"That's not a very nice way to treat your dearest . . . your sweetest . . . your absolutely best friend in the entire world."

"Yesterday you said Phoebe was your best friend."

"Well!" Vera huffed. "Let's blame me for being popular! Why don't you shush your mouth up — and keep packin' . . ."

"I've already got six suitcases packed," Burt snarled.

"Six!" Vera exclaimed. "That's hardly enough to keep me fashionable from the airport to the hotel! Twirl that Samsonite, child!"

"You're really going to do it aren't you," Burt considered. "You're really going to leave. To Paris. Running away from your problems again. All the way to Paris."

"Well, you know how peppy those new diet pills make me!" Vera said. "And I am not running away. I am not skipping town!"

"The fact that the police are looking for you has nothing to do with your sudden departure?"

"Not in the least. I'm just going on a surprise vacation. I want to go see all the famous dress designers. Take a preview look at the new fall line."

"This is already fall!"

"Then you can understand my haste," Vera informed. "Besides, the trip will do Phoebe a world of good."

"Phoebe!" Burt screamed. "Is he going? Why? Where is he? Why didn't you tell me? Is he packed? Does he know the taxi's comin'? Does he have a ticket? How do you know he'll like Paris? How do you know he's even heard of Paris? When did . . ."

"Slow down, hon! Mercy! I've heard of getting into a tizzy, but, my God, you're in an absolute tailspin. Whew. I thought my diet pills were good. You're acting like a girl that just had her first cup of Nuclear Coffee."

"Just tell me one thing!" Burt demanded. "Where's Phoebe?"

"Where does Phoebe always lock herself after a crisis?"

"In the bathroom!"

"Clever boy. Now if you'll just . . ."

"Is he as depressed as usual?"

"More so. She's absolutely tragic. Poor thing."

"How are you going to get him to Paris? He's been known to spend months in there . . . sitting in the dark . . . weeping and pouting."

"Tell me something I don't already know. You forget, Burt, I was the one who kept him in pizzas all those months. Four months! Six pizzas a day!"

"That's 720 pizzas!"

"Yeah, and all because I couldn't figure out a way to slide a MacFeast under the door. She never forgave me for that."

A taxi horn was heard outside.

"He's here. C'mon, Burt, grab the luggage. I'll grab my purse. Here, let me give you my good-bye hug now, since your hands are about to be filled with handles."

Vera and Burt engaged in a sisterly embrace. Vera headed toward the door.

"What about Phoebe?" Burt asked.

"Oh, yeah. I almost forgot."

"Don't tell me that after all these years, you've come up with a way to coax Phoebe out of the bathroom. This I've got to see!"

"Burt! Dare you question my powers. I have a secret weapon. Especially made for going to Paris. I thought of it when I . . ."

The taxi honked again.

"Better step on it, or you'll be walking to the airport. The driver's getting impatient."

"Okay, but you'd better step back."

"I'm fine. Go ahead. Let's see you do it. I can't wait to see the look of failure on your face."

"Okay, here goes."

Vera walked softly to the bathroom door, after moving all the objects in the pathway between the bathroom and the front door. Cupping his hands against the locked door, Vera assumed a secretive stance as he whispered into them.

WHAM! ZOWIE! BAM! The door was blown off its hinges as the giant, wet, plastic-wrapped body that was Phoebe exploded into the room, barreling toward the taxi.

"I guess I should have waited until he finished showering," Vera observed.

"I don't believe my eyes!" Burt said, stunned.

"Well, Burt, it's been nice. Real nice. Wish you could go with me, dear — but rest assured — I shall return. Give my love to Zach. Take care of yourself. I'll write you from the Eiffel Tower. They say it's in constant need of dusting, but I'll survive. And while I'm gone, have the yard landscaped for ponies. I plan to take up polo upon my return."

Vera joined Phoebe in the taxi. And it sped away. Burt, still dazed following Phoebe's Eruption, stood on the sidewalk watching the yellow automobile moving into the distance. He cursed himself for not being able to find out what Vera had whispered to Phoebe through the door.

Perhaps intuition, or perhaps as a going-away present — but just as the taxi disappeared from sight, with its chiffon flowing from one window, a shower curtain flapping in the breeze from the other — Vera provided the answer for Burt.

From the distance came the scream. "Julia Child!"

Burt laughed. Walking away as he heard giggles and cackles, amid the sounds of distant champagne glasses being smashed against distant curbs.

SPECIAL FEATURE

Grammatical Goblins, Look Out!

There are a lot of people in the world who do nothing the entire year except go around saying crazy things. I'm living proof. And I can assure you, trust me, that I know what constitutes a crazy comment, as opposed to the non-crazy or only semi-crazy comment. Additionally, you may occasionally utter a comment that is just too fuckin' crazy for its own good. Wanna see my scars?

Going around saying crazy things can make you a local Will Rogers. Going around saying too crazy things can make you locally dead. It's dangerous! Now far be it for me to assume the responsibility to teach you all the little things you should never say. Not that I think I don't have the right to do so and you wouldn't benefit from it immensely, but because I've got a man coming for dinner and there's simply no time! Yet I do feel obligated to warn you of one such statement. It's one that pops up a lot during this time of the year and is a favorite with conversational novices who don't have the foggiest notion of what life is all about. Or more importantly, what death is all about.

For this bit of instruction let us turn to the scientific method. It's so efficient. I'll tell you, first, the comment for which you should be on guard. And then, secondly, I'll tell you how you should react upon hearing the comment.

1) "Hey, I know what would be fun. Let's all get dressed up and go trick-or-treating in the most politically conservative suburb we can find."

2) WRONG! Claw their eyes out! And if you can't get easily to their eyes, start clawing at their most readily available bodily part. Going trick-or-treating in the suburbs, guys, is a definite no-no. El No-No, for those who speak Spanish. Don't do it. Don't ever do it! Not only is it potentially dangerous, it's just dumb, dumb, dumb.

You know how you've seen people getting all dressed up to see the midnight showing of the "Rocky Horror Picture Show?" Capes, masks, stocking, carving knives, and all that? Well, I did that and it did not turn out pleasantly. Of course, I will admit that being a little ahead of my time was the problem. When I did it, it was 1973. Everyone had been doing it in New York for months, so I just naturally assumed that they did the same thing in Texas. I saw the ad in the paper, ransacked the closet and a goodly portion of the kitchen utensils, and off I went!

Adult trick-or-treating is one of those ideas that sounds so chic when Liza and Halston discuss it over coke and champagne. But, in reality, the adventure is destined to turn out so embarrassingly you'll go bouncing back to your hometown and your mother's womb to start life over again. I know. I ought to. I wouldn't be back in Texas at all if the embarrassment of seeing my mother's womb hadn't bounced me back.

Believe me, you can only have fun if everybody is having fun. And while you may be giggling your ass off while banging on strangers' doors dressed as Heidi, the reception you'll be given is of a nature that it can throw a determined damper on the festivities. You have no idea what an Apple 'n' Razorblade Parfait can do to a paper bag! The host is NOT having a good time!

Even getting from house to house is hazardous. Heidi's have it pretty easy. Blouse, braids, short skirt and a Goat. But woe to those who attempt maneuvering across streets, sidewalks and lawns as Cinderella, Captain Hook, or Melanie Hamilton. The other guys were having it really tough! One of the lawns had croquet loops set up and I thought God had dropped Disneyland on me. I was trying to fight my way out of Mellie's hoopskip while avoiding the glass of Cindy's shattered shoe. The captain's hook was tangled in my braids and his peg leg was getting my goat!

And for what? The rewards are not that great. Suburbanites don't appreciate art. When I do Heidi I expect eggs Benedict or, at least, homemade fudge. What did I get? Gasps, insults, and hard rock candy. The one prize in the collection, the chocolate-covered cherry, was worn home by Ms. Hamilton.

So take my advice. When Halloween rolls around, stick to the traditional stuff. Carve dildoes from pumpkins, have Linda Blair Memorial Vomit-Offs, teach children how to Bob For French Fries, or, best of all, go get a holiday trick. Now that's a treat!

MR. CLUB DALLAS was chosen from a field of eight hunky contestants (photo below): Terry Kennedy, Mike Carter, Robert Henderson, Rusty Hill, Rick Davis, plus the triumvirate. The door prize, a one-year free pass to the Club Dallas, was won by Steve Meyer with winning ticket 000036. Thank you CBC and D-III. Next stop, Mr. Club Houston at Numbers in November!

SNOOPING AROUND: Sunset Blvd's new piano bar is ready for their Halloween night show starring Tiffany Arrieagas who has been brought to the Alamo City for four hot shows. . . a hot new Ft. Worth bar will open soon by Josee and Arlene. . . Linda Cosenzi and Jeff White are now firmly planted in the Briar Patch. . . Get well to Cliff of Mary's. . . Happy Birthday to Disco Grandma (Oct. 26). . . Mr. Cowboy Texas will be November 29 at the Wild Crowd with Alan Allison emceeing as Dolly Parton. . . and the fifth annual Miss Gay Austin is this Sunday night at The Country.

TATTLE TALE: WW II has been held over at Numbers for a Sunday matinee...you just can squeeze a whole war into four days, Phylliss and Brian...$8,000 in prizes are being offered over Texas for the many festive Halloween costume contests, so grab a dress, an old frock, a pumpkin or a partner, hit several night spots and rake in the cash and prizes...after all, Virginia, HALLOWEEN is thee high holiday of the gay year!

TEA FOR TWO thousand is the theme for this Sunday's tea dance from 4 - 10pm to benefit the New Montrose Activity Center in Houston at 1423 Holman at LaBranch. Studz, the Manhole, Midtowne Spa, Mary's and Eagle Leathers are selling advance tickets for a $5.00 minimum donation. Support. give!

ENTERTAINER OF THE YEAR is coming November 14. Meanwhile, TWT is traveling the state with the official ballot box. Last week, TWT was in Beaumont at The Farmhouse, in Fort Worth at Aub's and in San Antonio at Sunset Boulevard. This week Vote Nites include Austin Country Sunday, Oct. 29, D-III in Dallas Wednesday, November 1, and the OP-Dallas Thursday, November 2. Who is your favorite drag queen? Be where the TWT Ballot Box is and vote! You, the public, are the judge in this annual popularity contest.

COMMEDIA DEL' AUSTIN will be in Houston on a party pilgrimage the weekend of November 3 - 5 at the Inside/Outside Off-Westheimer Theatre. In one fell swoop, Cheezy Chaucer's Canterbury Tales will take you to a fantasy land, froth with passion and emotion. It promises to be an unpredictable evening with the five energetic zanies (see photo) transforming themselves into a myriad of characters.

Baldness or thinning hair can make you look and feel years older than you are. We can help you with a process that adds hair — naturally. This non-medical procedure takes only a few hours to give you a full head of hair that you can sleep, shower, sport and romance in. Find out why Al Fitzmorris and thousands of other men prefer Apollo. Send for more information.
