Happy New Year!

In this issue of TWT we reflect on the old year passing as Hot Tea presents a month-by-month chronicle of gay events in Texas. We also look forward to the new year with anticipation. Since we can't wait and are curious about the future, we present our annual predictions from psychic Grethe who looks into her crystal ball, and in all her divine wisdom, makes forecasts for 1979. And Starscope presents an appropriate New Year's Resolution for your sign.

We of TWT also extend a sincere thank you to all of our readers who rush out to grab this magazine every weekend before they are all gone. We also thank the growing list of advertisers who support this magazine. Our readers know that to advertise in TWT means you support the growing gay community of Texas. And we are encouraged by the variety of our new advertisers. 1978 has been a landmark year in that respect. Department stores, real estate agencies, retail stores, legitimate movie theatres, car dealers, counselors, restaurants, shoe stores, clothiers, pharmacies, travel agencies and furniture stores have now joined our original supporters — the bars, baths and bookstores.

Such breakthroughs as "straight" advertisers placing an ad in a gay magazine attest to the positive progress the gay community in Texas, and indeed the nation, is making.

We, as gays, have much to be thankful for in 1978. Things are getting better. Hopefully, 1979 will be the best year yet for gays. And, TWT will be there every weekend to let you know what's going on this week in Texas, and beyond.

Happy Holidays from the oldest and largest gay magazine in the South!

"Be careful," Zach warned as he led Trudy up the outside stairs. "And whatever you do, don't hold onto the banister, it's the most dangerous part!"

The large, imposing, two-story frame house had once been owned by a man who was convinced that the oil business in Texas was just a fad. A lumber man by heritage, the old gent spent the bulk of his life around Dallas waiting for the oil boom to fizzle out so he could turn major portions of the state into dense forest areas. The oil, however, proved to be the most enduring of the fossils and the elderly entrepreneur died penniless in 1948. At that time, creditors took possession of the house, divided it into four parts, and went into the apartment rental business to help recoup their losses on the Scotch pines.

In their zeal to get the rent and security deposits flowing, it was only at the last moment they observed that to get to the apartment on the right-hand side of the upper floor, apartment "C," you had to walk through the apartment on the left-hand side of the upper floor, apartment "D." "C" may have had the best kitchen, but "D" had the stairs. And no matter how congenial the tenant of "D" may have been, it was unlikely that he would want the residents of "C" using his parlor as a hall. An additional staircase, outside the house, would have to be built.

From all appearances, the task was completed in about four hours. It was as though the creditors were using the staircase to finally obtain revenge on wood. The rising series of sagging planks rose from the ground with all the grandeur of an arthritic rising from bed to hobble to the Bufferin bottle. A cancerous Tinker Toy® seemingly sucking strength from the house as it slashed across its side, leading to a hastily cut outside door that, no doubt, contributed to the mansion's grief because of its resemblance to an open wound.

Almost 30 years later, the opening was the threshold through which Trudy was now beginning her new life adventure. Having maneuvered the little girl safely up the stairs, Zach unlocked the door and opened it wide.

"Well, kid, here it is!" Zach proclaimed. "Home! Click your heels together three times, and step across!"

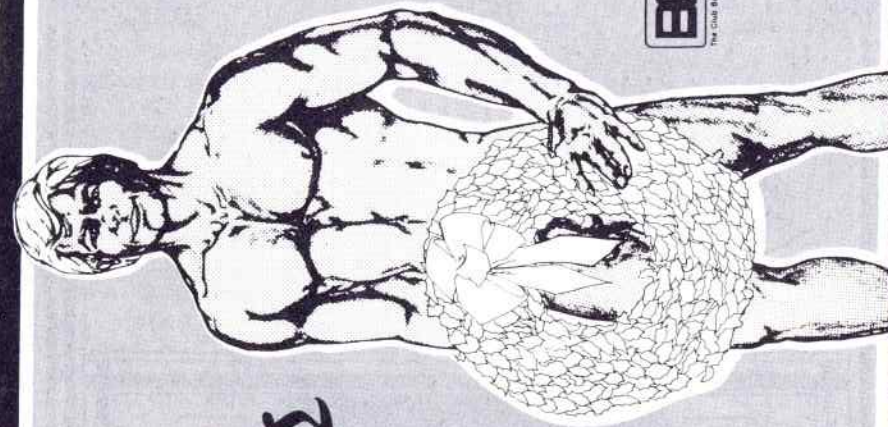

Trudy walked inside, into a giant room with the highest ceilings she had ever seen. And huge windows that flooded the room with light. Only the splintered nature of the hardwood floors precluded comparison of the room with a school gymnasium.

Furnishings in the cavernous room included one mattress on the floor, covered in a butch fabric, one ravaged, overstuffed chair that would have been in pain were it not consoled with the knowledge of the pleasure it brought to humans, a Sony color TV and a Betamax, and the most expensive stereo components available. All in the room. All strewn about the floor.

These furnishings were somewhat obscured by the books. The books. Thirty or 40 tall stacks on the floor. Dozens and dozens of filled bookcases, made from cinder blocks and planks, lined the walls. Books placed on the window sills for lack of more permanent resting places. Books, books — everywhere books.

"I like to read," Zach explained. Trudy had guessed. "This is the living room," Zach continued. "You can do lots of fun things in here. If you want to sit, there's the chair. If you want to stretch out, there's the mattress. You turn on the stereo with that top knob, see? And if you want to turn on the stereo, you come and get me. I haven't figured it out completely myself, but I know where the owner's manual is stashed. Come along, come along, the grand tour continues."

Zach led Trudy into the second room, a room that looked a lot like the living room. Equally large, with similar hardwood floors, only fewer windows. This room was furnished with barbells, dumbbells, benches, and other body-building equipment. The mattress on the floor of this room was covered in normal mattress attire — sheets, pillows, and a blanket. But again, the dominant motif of the room was Early Library. The 4,000 or so volumes one could turn to after selecting from the more than 10,000 titles in the living room.

"This is my bedroom," Zach explained. "I sleep, read, smoke large amounts of marijuana, and lift weights in here. All of which I do in the nude. So for the time being, please knock before you come in. Come along, come along."

They walked down the hallway as Zachary continued the Grand Tour.

"That, as you can see, is the bathroom. It's very large and has all the things a bathroom is supposed to have. And don't worry about that stack of books by the tub. It's been tilting like that for two years, but hasn't fallen into the water, yet. Now . . . down here . . . is, of course, the kitchen. A kitchen that looks like all kitchens located in lumberjack camps in the 1940's. We've got equipment here to make brunch for 400, without overlapping shifts. I've only used the stove to heat Stouffer's Brown-In-Bags, but it's nice to know we've got all this stuff if we need it. Come along. More to see, more to see."

The hall took a sharp turn to the left and they stood before a closed door.

"And this, princess, is your room."

Zach opened the door. The room was small compared to the others and the change in decor was drastic. Plush, textured and cozy. Deep, new white carpeting, a bright red canopy bed, a small dresser and matching desk, with hand-painted Disney-style murals covering all available wall space. The room belonged on the cover of a toy catalogue. The feminine version of the room Ricky Nelson must have had as a child.

Trudy's eyes radiated joyful amazement.

"I hope you like it," Zach asked.

"I love it!" Trudy exclaimed.

"I have friends who are very good with fabrics and paint brushes," Zach confided. "That's one of the fringe benefits you'll have by living with me."

"Oh, I want to stay here forever," Trudy squealed.

"Sounds good to me," Zach said. "This room used to have the most books of all. I would hate to have carried them all down to the garage for nothing."

SPECIAL FEATURE by Cochran

"Well, I Was Doing Pretty Good, Until . . ."

Everybody knows about New Year's resolutions. They're those solemn vows of self-improvement made while destroying what's left of the body by going to one New Year's party after another, tanked up on Santa Surprise acid you got for Christmas. Next year, I will lose weight; I will stop smoking; I will do everything in my power to stop being the all-around asshole I now am. Those are New Year's resolutions.

All in all, it's pretty dull business. Since we all have many of the same shortcomings, the resolutions tend to be rather unoriginal as a rule. In addition, they don't have a great deal of credibility. It's hard to attach and wide. (Flinging them wide wasn't all that much of a chore; but that "flinging them far" part damn near killed us.) The research is now complete and we present the results of our extensive investigation.

In Miami, Anita Bryant made a 1979 pledge to stop singing religious music. Her action followed a meeting with world-wide religious leaders who, while lauding Miss Bryant's strong moral stance, cited her musical interpretations of gospel hymns as a leading motivation to atheism around the globe. Following a period of reflective meditation, during which Miss Bryant substantial significance to a solemn vow broken by a Winston or trip to the House of Pies.

BUT — if you're willing to go to the trouble, you can ferret out New Year's resolutions that are a cut above; resolutions that are imaginative, unique, and in some cases, frightening in their credibility.

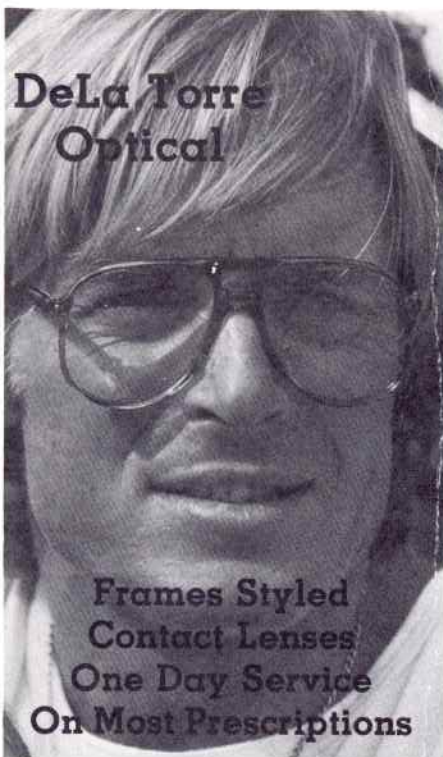

Well, readers, that's what we've done for you. We ferreted. Now TWT proudly presents its list of Bizarre New Year's Resolutions. To uncover these promissory gems, we've flung our TWT reporters far repeatedly tried to impail herself on several crucifixes strategically placed around the house, she bowed to the clergy's wishes. Her husband and manager, Bob Green, has left Miami to become personal manager of the late Trigger, the stuffed horse belonging to Roy Rogers and Dale Evans. Green says he faces the task with optimism — and experience.

twin babies while watching television. Last year, Mrs. Sousa was watching "All My Children" on a small TV placed on the edge of the bathtub. During an especially torrid scene, Mrs. Sousa passionately flung out her arms and knocked the set into the bathwater containing her son, Sermon, and her daughter, Sermonette. Despite revival efforts, the youngsters buzzed off to that great Power Station in the Sky. A repentant Mrs. Sousa said she never dreamed watching "All My Children" could cost her — just that.

Actor MacLean Stevenson, in a dramatic announcement, resolved to stay off television for the next five years. Upon hearing of the Stevenson Decision, the entire membership of the Screen Actor's Guild was seen weeping with joy, and Fred DeCordova was rushed to a hospital for treatment of Acute Bliss. Stevenson says he plans to open an abortion clinic for drapes so that he can continue his God-given talent for butchering material.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

For 1979, Mrs. Placenta Blanchard of Pasadena, Texas has vowed to never again listen to Tammy Wynette records. Speaking from her bed at the Quick Stop Hospital for the Criminally Insane, Mrs. Blanchard says she now realizes that she, indeed, went a bit dinky in 1978. Mrs. Blanchard, you'll recall, went through 19 husbands last year while listening to alternate plays of "Stand By Your Man" and "D-I-V-O-R-C-E."

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Tricia Nixon says her 1979 resolution list is composed of only one item: to get her father elected president in 1980. "Life seemed more meaningful when Daddy was in the White House," Tricia mused. "The first four years, especially," she added. While acknowledging that the task will not be easy and will require hard work, Tricia says the extent of her determination to achieve her goal has been somewhat overblown by the press. "Sure, I'm having to get an early start," she confided. "But that's not unusual. You have to work very hard to get what you want out of life. Those rumors that I kidnapped my mother and snuck her off to a plastic surgeon to have the screws tightened on her lower jaw are ridiculous. They're already so tight you could bounce a blob of Crisco off 'em!"

In our efforts to get a New Year's resolution from the late great Joan Crawford, we can report only partial success. A microphone lowered into Ms. Crawford's grave failed to produce comprehensive audio quality. What was surely a superb dramatic recitation by Ms. Crawford was reduced to garbled mumblings by an inferior tape recording system. To the untrained ear, the recording seems to be a series of vehement grunts and groans forming the repeated phrase "Mommie, Dearest, my ass!" Experts have been

AS 1978 ENDS, TWT reviews "the best of Hot Tea," a month-by-month chronicle of top stories of the year. Let's re-stir the tea.

JANUARY: Wayland Flowers and Madame played the OP Houston and Dallas the 22-25th... MCC/Austin moved to their new 614 East 6th home... the Dallas Motorcycle Club's second anniversary party was at the Melrose Hotel... Tiffany Jones left for a Las Vegas tour... and, Mary's II in Galveston reopened.

FEBRUARY: Mardi Gras hit New Orleans... the OP remodeled the Parlour and the Gazebo... Grace Jones played Cuddles Disco the 12-13th singing "I Need A Man"... The Light Company (formerly the Depository II) closed... the dildo tree stump at the Silver Bullet was sawed off and buried in a casket... and later the bar burned to a close...

MARCH: "Mama's Boys" played at Cuddles... the Midnite Sun opened their new enlarged disco and stage... Jay Allen reopened The Galleon... Gene Saxon opened the doors to the 2306 Gym... Beaumont's Club Taboo closed, leaving the Farmhouse as the city's only gay bar... Soixante Quinze changed ownership... Clint Nethery won Mr. D-III... Ernie reopened the Single Shot... Fort Worth's Bailey Street Wherehouse closed after three years... Steve Shiflett was elected as Houston GPC's 3rd president... Uncle Charlie's closed, giving way to the Montrose Mining Company on March 30... the Brazos River Bottom opened... meanwhile, the Coors boycott ended in some cities.

APRIL: Ramona Sims became the new Miss Gay Houston... it was Splash Day at Austin's Hippy Hollow... The Hi Lite Ranch became an island bar... Jack Rogers took over the Wild Crowd Saloon... Alan Allison was crowned the new Miss Gay Dallas... Jennifer George left the "We Four" at Cuddles... Cuddles closed its doors... French Dressing played Austin Country... Alan Corbin won Mr. Sunset Blvd in San Antonio... and 350,000 people jammed the Alamo City for Fiesta Week and a week of non-stop drag shows at The Boulevard.

MAY: The Fraternity House and Crews Inn opened in Dallas... Club Houston entered its 5th year... Tuxedo Jct played 6015... Claude Sacha returned for a Texas showbar tour... TWT began New Orleans/Louisiana coverage... the OP held beach parties at Queen's Point and Stewart Beach... John Reaud won Mr. Gay Dallas... Naomi Sims was 3rd runner-up in Miss Gay Florida... Gary Thurmond was crowned

Mr. Houston... and Houston's Old Surf lounge burned to the ground, taking the Mini-Park with it.

JUNE: Numbers Disco opened the 8th as an instant success... 4,000 gays jammed the Astroarena for Houston Town Meeting I, where long-time local liberal Sissy Farenthold was key-note speaker... gays made gains in the primary elections... Hot Chocolate won Miss Gay Texas at Dance City USA... Club Austin changed ownership... the Patio Eatery opened in Dallas and Dirty Sally's opened in Houston.

JULY: Baja Sam's opened on the 13th with Tom Blake as manager... Naomi Sims returned from Corpus Christi as the new Miss Gay SW Texas... Aisha won Miss Gay West Texas at the Capri Club in Odessa... Donna Day moved from D-III in Dallas to the OP Houston Follies until the act folded in October... The Asylum bookstore opened in Houston on the 22nd with California film star Al Parker cutting the ribbon... Granny's Toys for Tots netted over 12 grand... C.J. Harrington's Christmas in July Party at Numbers was a Sunday hit... the Silver Palace opened in Galveston... 3,000 lesbians came to Houston for the national softball tourney... and $7,500 was raised at the OP Houston at Town Meeting I benefit.

AUGUST: The Heart of Texas Motorcycle Club held their 3rd anniversary party at the New Apartment in Austin... Austin Country plugged in their new electronic light show... Lady Shawn was crowned the new Miss Gay South at D-III on the 21st... Sally's never opened... Heather was crowned the new Miss Midnite Sun... the first Miss Gay USA Pageant was held at Numbers the last weekend of the month with Naomi Sims as a runaway winner (see TWT photo of finalists) and runners-up were Michael Andrews, Cheere, Eartha Kitt and Lady Nova Bernard... and, MCC/Dallas raised $10,000 on a Troy Perry visit.

SEPTEMBER: Kenny of Tex's Ranch won the bareback bronc riding contest at the 3rd annual gay rodeo in Reno, Nevada... Willie opened the successful Eighth Day in Dallas... The Village People came to Numbers as "macho men"... "Boys in The Band" kicked off the I/O Off-Westheimer Theatre Season... the No Name Bar in Dallas opened on the 12th... and Miss Gay America was held at the Fox Theatre in Atlanta on the 20-21st (see photo, courtesy Cruise Magazine) with Rachael Wells winner and runners-up Hot Chocolate, Lady Shawn and Donna Day.

OCTOBER: Sabrina won Miss Gay Austin and Eric Blanchette won Mr. Gay Austin at Austin Country... Tiffany Jones opened on Broadway in "Damn Yankees"... Leonard Matlovich, Troy Perry, Del Martin and Dave Kopay toured Texas heading up "No On Six" which turned out to be a gay victory in California's November elections... the OP Houston was turned into a Rocky Horror Picture Show castle Halloween night... and in Dallas it was OU/UT weekend with Oklahoma winning the game and Rick Price winning TWT's annual Mr. Texas Pageant at the OP Dallas, which was a benefit for the Texas Human Rights Defense Foundation. (see PHOTOGRAPHY photo of finalists). John Reaud was 1st runner-up and Clint Nethery was 2nd runner-up.

NOVEMBER: Donna Day (see TWT photo) was elected Entertainer of the Year in the annual TWT pageant at the OP Houston... Alan Allison took Dallas, Jahonau Reis won San Antonio vote, Naomi Sims lead in Houston, Miss Riki carried Austin and Raina Lee won Fort Worth as the public votes were counted for the city winners... rock star Sylvester played a concert at Numbers... the Tool Box opened and closed... Doug Mowery opened a 6-month engagement at Baja Sam's... Marion's Too opened... Pinnocchio's beautiful disco opened in Lubbock... in Fort Worth Chances opened, only to close in December... and John Reaud won the annual Mr. Club Dallas contest at D-III.

DECEMBER: Don Neito won the Mr. Club Houston title... Mahogany won Miss Other Place... Lynn Christopher was crowned Miss Gay Fort Worth... the Metro Baths grand opened the 12th in Dallas... Tex's Ranch completed their extensive remodeling and held a grand opening on the 14th... and, Randy Bailey won the Mr. Cowboy Texas title at the Wild Crowd Saloon in Dallas. And, finally, "Last Dance," by Donna Summer, stayed on the TWT disco fever hit parade longer than any other song in 1978, making it the top disco tune of the year!

SPECIAL REPORT

1979 PREDICTIONS FOR TEXAS GAYS

. . . by Grethe of Denmark

It's that time of year again when we ring out the old and ring in the new, wondering what the new year will unfold. Again, this year, TWT asks noted author and psychic Grethe to make some predictions specifically about gays. Her messages come while she is in a deep trance. She has never been wrong! The following messages came to her while in a deep trance in her Houston home.

What's ahead for gay rights in Texas?

There will not be any new legal advantages gained for the gay community. In fact, in some places in the country, there will be some steps backward. None of the major laws will be changed in 1979. Expect a standstill. Rights which have been demanded and thought close to receiving will not be forthcoming this year. Rather, it is a time for holding the status quo.

Is there a special message for us in 1979?

Yes! Much progress has been made with gay rights. But now is the time for society to adjust. For society to accept the progress that has been made by gays, it is advised that rightfully impatient gays not push too hard, or society may rebel, thinking that the gay lifestyle is being forced on them. What you do in private is nobody else's business but your own.

Are there any warnings for gays?

Indeed. Someone will try to form a gay union. It will include a membership and will offer protection. You'll be asked to pay dues. It will not be run by gays, but will be fronted by gays. Watch out! Do not join thinking you will receive protection as it will be false. The union will only take your money and use you.

What's ahead for gay entertainment?

Small bars will be the favorite and there will be many.

What about the big super discos?

In Houston, there will be a few more big, big super discos open up. But in Dallas, at this time, I do not see anything as far as new big bars are concerned.

What about Fort Worth?

This is very unsettling. The climate here presents a greater struggle than in Dallas or Houston.

What of Austin?

There will be quite a few bars come into existence as many are attracted to this city. But many will also close.

And what about San Antonio?

There will be a greater increase in the number of new bars here than in any other Texas city except for Houston.

What's ahead for bookstores in 1979?

I do not see that they will be closed, but there will continue to be a force which will move to close them and some of them will go out of business.

And in general?

1979 looks like a cooling-off period for the gay rights struggle and in some instances a few setbacks. Gay entertainment will see an increase in the smaller, intimate bar. At this time, I see no new major turmoil developing or turmoil ahead for gays in 1979.

Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt says he's going to continue the spirit of conversion in 1979. Flynt, under the guidance of evangelist Ruth Carter Stapleton, was converted to Christianity in a well-publicized transformation last year. In the opening months of the new year, Flynt plans to convert to Judaism, Hostess fried pies and size eight blue gingham dresses. Mrs. Stapleton says she will again be the guide for Flynt's upcoming attitude changes, " 'cept for that Jewish stuff which I don't know nothin' about."

Actress Mary Tyler Moore was recently seen making her New Year's resolutions during a chic lunch in Beverly Hills. At the top of the list, Ms. Moore pledged that she will, in 1979, continue to throw the healing spotlight of publicity upon those afflicted with horrible diseases and general body mutations. This decision followed Mary's dramatic video portrayal of reporter Betty Rollin, who lost a breast to cancer. Scripts now under consideration by Ms. Moore include "Totie Fields: The Leg That Got Away," Totie Fields: Why Not Take All of Me?" and "Hello, Totie."

And finally, the new year will see an alliance between Tammy Wynette and Connie Francis in the formation of a national crusade to draw attention to the plight of bruised and battered women. Miss Francis, as you know, was raped in a hotel several years ago and Miss Wynette seems to be getting beat up every time she turns around. When both women were asked why fate had dealt them such a cruel hand, while the majority of American women are neither raped nor mugged, the duo denied that the attacks were the result of outraged music lovers. They cited Anita Bryant as an example. "Hell," Miss Wynette exclaimed, "if that were the case, they'd have smashed HER to smithereens years ago." Should any future violence besetting either of the two result in the loss of use of any bodily part, Mary Tyler Moore has taken first option on script possibilities.
