GAY ARTISTS UNITE!

Gay and Lesbian Artists (GALA), the successful evening of the arts during Houston Gay Pride Week this year, has shown Houston's gay artists to be alive, creative, energetic — and growing!

We want to keep this kind of energy flowing year-round. This summer's event has provided us with a basis for a GAY ARTISTS' ORGANIZATION in HOUSTON. If you participated this summer or not, and are interested in exchanging and promoting your ideas, skills, talent, creativity and energy with other artists in the community and OTHER communities, JOIN US!

The first meeting will be held on Tuesday, October 5, 7:30 p.m. at the Fred Paez Community Center, 401 Avondale. We will be discussing exhibits, a gay arts festival and more!

Hope to see you there!

NEWS

WILL 21.06 BE APPEALED?

DALLAS — Optimistic conjecture that there would be no appeal of the 21.06 decision appears to perhaps have been premature, as plaintiff Don Baker told Art Tomaszewski of TWT NEWS last week that an appeal probably wouldn't be filed "until the last moment, probably the end of November," which is after the state-wide election.

Jim Barber, of Dallas, attorney for Baker, explained to TWT NEWS the time limits which will determine the period during which an appeal could be filed.

An important distinction must be made between the terms "opinion" and "final judgment." An opinion is a court document which contains the finding of fact and conclusions of law upon which a decision is based. A final judgment provides for the specific release granted in the case.

The thirty-day period in which an appeal must be filed began when the final judgment was entered, which was not until last Tuesday, September 28. It provided the injunctive release requested by Baker, which enjoined enforcement of 21.06.

The defendants, including the Attorney General of Texas, Mark White, have thirty days to file notice of appeal [October 28]. In the event that the state files a motion to reconsider, the time to file would be extended an additional thirty days [November 27], comfortably sweeping the controversial issue beyond the crucial date of the early November election.

During this interim period, 21.06 remains unenforceable and constitutionally suspect.

When asked if he expected an appeal, M. Robert Schwab, president of Texas Human Rights Foundation (THRF), told TWT NEWS, "I really can't tell. However, I can assure you that the gay community will mobilize whatever resources are required to defend this historic decision. We look forward to continued brilliant legal work on the part of the plaintiff's attorney, Jim Barber, who will represent Don Baker in the event of an appeal to the Fifth Circuit Court in New Orleans."

The legal battle to achieve equal rights under Texas law has just begun.

NGTF DIRECTOR VALESKA RESIGNS

NEW YORK — Recent dissatisfaction over Lucia Valeska as director of the National Gay Task Force (NGTF) has led to her resignation effective October 1, TWT NEWS has learned. As reported last month, some NGTF members felt Valeska had not been doing her job as they had wished.

TWT NEWS has also learned that a temporary NGTF director will be appointed in New York at a mid-October executive board meeting, at which time terms of Valeska's separation will be discussed. A permanent director most likely won't be chosen until early 1983.

Larry Bagneris, Jr. who had strongly advocated Valeska's resignation, was surprised to learn that he had polled the most votes of any board member in the latest NGTF election. Bagneris, who is also president of Houston's sturdy GPC, will be returned for his second three-year term as an executive board member of NGTF.

ing an FBI lie detector test and his later admission in a TV press conference that he had made up some of the drug and sex stories, more doubts have now arisen.

Last week, Williams was fined for public intoxication after being arrested at the University of Arkansas Medical Center, where he had been taken after viewing the Rocky Horror Picture Show.

TWT NEWS learned from Chicago Gay Life that Williams was reportedly carried from the theater by police who said that "he acted as if he could not hear or see us." He was freed on $100 bond and later fined $77.

GAY OKC MALE WINS TWINS' CUSTODY

OKLAHOMA CITY — A man's acknowledged homosexuality does not make him unfit as a parent, the Oklahoma Supreme Court has said in ordering a lower court to award custody of his 11-year-old twin boys.

The state high court noted last week that its ruling contrasted with an opinion it handed down earlier this year in a case involving a mother who lost custody of her 2-year-old son after she acknowledged having an open lesbian relationship in her home.

The latest opinion, a 4-2 decision written by Justice Robert Lavender, said it applied "the best interest of the child" test in both cases.

The high court remanded the case to a state district court with instructions that legal custody of the boys be awarded to the father who had said in court he was a homosexual. The boys had been living with their grandparents since 1977.

The boys' mother, the opinion noted, had a record of psychological problems and had not participated in either the trial court's final custody review or the father's appeal to the Supreme Court.

In the earlier case, TWT NEWS had reported that the court had found that "homosexuality in itself was not enough to deny a parent's fundamental right to child custody."

In last week's case, the father had "taken obvious pains to separate his social life, if any, from his relationship with the children," the court said, and had testified he "has never encouraged the boys to adopt his own sexual preference and indeed, prefers that they have the normal sexual orientation."

ILLEGAL USE OF FELONS LIST

HOUSTON — Recently, Republican Secretary of State David Dean, a Clements' appointee, released a list of "possible convicted felons" to the County Registrars and had requested that this be used to purge voters from the voting registration polls.

According to The Houston Post and the Houston Chronicle, the list released by Dean was fraught with errors. It contained the names of individuals who were charged with misdemeanors but never convicted, those convicted of misdemeanors only, individuals who were convicted of felonies but had their voting rights restored and individuals who had completed felony probation and deferred adjudication sentences and never lost their voting rights.

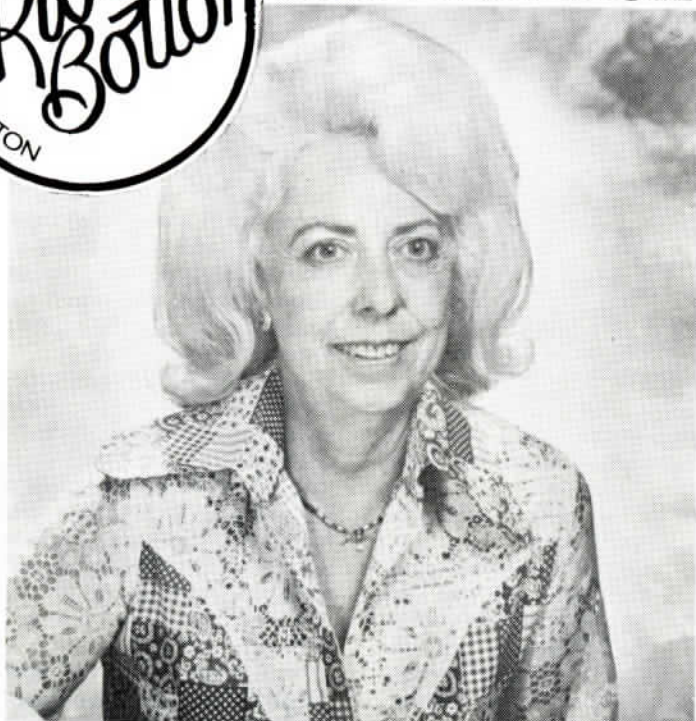

State Representative Debra Danburg told TWT NEWS, "During the 1980 elections, several precincts in my district reported instances where Republican poll watchers intimidated and harassed voters to the point that many individuals simply gave up and left the voting polls in embarrassment without exercising their legal right to vote.

"While this list has been recalled because of its illegal nature, I am concerned that this recent incident may indicate that attempts will be made to intimidate voters into foregoing their right to vote," Danburg continued. "I would like for the voters in my district to be advised that if they are harassed and attempts are made to deny them their legal right to vote, my office will stand ready to assist them on election day.

"I have contacted Congressman Mickey Leland's office to inform him of my concern and have requested that

The Gay Political Caucus (GPC) has signs in the Montrose bars and businesses which state, "Don't Surrender Your Rights, Register to Vote by October 2." "May I add," Danburg asserted, "don't surrender your rights on election day, November 2. Please call my campaign office at (713) 526-2313 if you feel that you are wrongfully being denied the right to vote. We will do all in our power to see that you are assisted."

As a member of the House Committee on Elections, Danburg also sent a letter to Secretary Dean, saying, "Please send me a breakdown of the cost of generating, reproducing and mailing your 'felon/voter list.'"

HOUSTON SEMINAR ON GAY RELATIONSHIPS

HOUSTON — As reported last week in TWT NEWS, Bobby Birdsall, a self-described mind specialist and heart therapist, will be conducting a seminar on relationship designed specifically for gays.

The seminar, to be held October 16 and 17 at the Guest Quarters Post Oak, is the first of its kind, Birdsall told TWT NEWS reporter Art Tomaszewski, who attended the first preview seminar last week.

"I've been teaching enlightenment for over 20 years. I know a lot about people; I care about them. So it doesn't matter whether I'm straight or gay; what matters is I have value for these people and they have a value for me," Birdsall said.

Birdsall employs several techniques during the seminars, including one he calls "Motivational Breathing." The seminar is designed for those in a relationship as well as those trying to get into a relationship. He decided to hold a seminar for gays because he saw a need. He plans to take the seminars to various cities around Texas.

"SURVIVING GAY HOUSTON" THIS FRIDAY

HOUSTON — This Friday, October 1, beginning at 7:30pm, the Gay Switchboard of Houston will sponsor the weekly Community Coffeehouse in the Activities Center at Bering Memorial United Methodist Church at the corner of Mulberry and Hawthorne.

"Surviving Gay Houston" will be the subject of the first informal group rap session the Switchboard will be conducting from 9-11:00pm at the Coffeehouse. Based upon the concern expressed in numerous calls received by the Switchboard from newcomers to Houston, many of the staff feel a group is needed to talk about common problems of meeting people and coping with gay life in Houston, Rich Neil told TWT NEWS.

Similar groups have been very successful in other cities and members of Houston's Switchboard urge new residents to the city as well as all concerned gays to attend. For more information, call the Gay Switchboard at (713) 529-3211.

HOUSTON'S BWMT
TWO YEARS OLD

HOUSTON — Preparations are being made for the celebration of the second anniversary of Black and White Men Together (BWMT). Back in October 1980, twenty men of different races met to form Houston's BWMT, part of the international network of over 25 chapters. BWMT members and friends have enjoyed a growing number of social functions, where the main emphasis remains on building friendships. A dinner will highlight the October celebration, TWT NEWS learned.

BWMT proudly acknowledges the women of the gay community for forming the first chapter of Black and White Women Together (BWWT).

BWMT remains open to all people who believe that they want to be a part of creating a fulfilling, integrated lifestyle. Information can be obtained by calling the Gay Switchboard, or by calling (713) 747-9812.

BWMT/DALLAS OPEN HOUSE

DALLAS — The local chapter of Black and White Men Together (BWMT), an organization formed for men and women who are interested in non-sexist, multi-cultural interaction, will sponsor a beer bust and open house membership drive this Sunday, October 3, from 3-7:00pm at Adam's Inn, 4036 Cedar Springs.

During the summer, a group of interested persons established objectives and purposes for BWMT/Dallas, elected temporary officers, voted to join the national and international BWMT associations and hosted a reception for Charles Stewart, co-founder of BWMT/San Francisco.

The problem that has plagued the new organization for some time, it was explained to TWT NEWS, has been the inability to secure adequate space in Dallas for general meetings/activities.

This Sunday's beer bust and open house marks the first opportunity for any person to become a part of BWMT.

CAROL BURNETT IN HARVEY MILK MOVIE

HOLLYWOOD — Early next year, Carol Burnett will have a small, but pivotal role in a movie about Harvey Milk, the gay San Francisco supervisor who was assassinated in 1978. The movie, produced by Joe Hamilton Productions, will be based on the book of the same name, The Mayor of Castro Street.

The movie will "be a serious discourse on the subject of homosexuality. We will tell it like it is," said the author, Randy Shiels. "Remember, Milk

On the heels of such recent box-office flops as Cruising, Partners and Making Love, a lot of people are concerned about another gay movie theme. "But, we feel the work is very important," associate producer Paul Barnes said, adding that the movie "can dramatically help people to understand the homosexual life."

Because of the gay theme, it is doubtful any major studio will affiliate. Regardless, Burnett has agreed to play the part of a Castro Street resident who was touched by Milk. Burnett is the wife of producer Hamilton, TWT NEWS reported.

OAK LAWN BAND CRAFT SALE

DALLAS — The Oak Lawn Symphonic Band (OLSB) has announced a combination Bake Sale, Craft Sale and Garage Item Sale to be held this Saturday, October 2, from 10:00am-4:00pm at the gay crossroads, Cedar Springs at Throckmorton. Other than standard garage sale items, the band will again be selling cookies, cakes and quiches, all homemade.

In addition, an extensive collection of hand-crafted soft sculpture character dolls and other crafted items will be sold. These crafted items were hand-made and donated to the band by Albert Fulps, a local gay grandfather and father of the OLSB's president, Robert Fulps. Part of the proceeds from the sale will reimburse the band for the $36 fine received from the Police Department during the Gay Pride Week rally.

During the last leg of the parade, the band's float, carrying Mr. Dallas Gay Pride Week and Mr. and Ms. Tarrant County Gay Pride Week, broke down on the uphill grade of Hall Street. In order to keep the parade progressing, the float was pushed out of the way onto Sale Street.

"It was during the rally that my father signalled to me that policemen had arrived and were threatening to tow the float away," Fulps told TWT NEWS. "A few minutes later a tow trucker from Mesquite showed up. After sustaining a few jeers from the wrecker driver and policeman, we were given a flat four minutes to dismantle the float or see it off to be impounded."

"About eight people, some not even in the band, jumped in to dismantle the float, scurrying about as the tow driver looked for a place to connect his chain. After it was torn apart, we got a ticket and a lecture for blocking traffic."

Although the float was in shambles, it was reconstructed the next week so that the band could take it to the Houston Gay Pride Week parade.

The $36 fine was paid for by the operating fund of OLSB.

CAVEN AND HOTT REACH AGREEMENT

DALLAS — Charley Hott, 30, confirmed to TWT NEWS last Monday that he would sell his interest in all seven of his Dallas clubs to his partner, Frank Caven. "The sale probably won't be finalized till later next month," he announced.

Hott and Caven had been ownership partners for ten years. Caven, who is in Europe, was unavailable for comment, but Hott indicated that the two business partners had reached a tentative agreement.

The premature announcement was made last Sunday morning at the First Baptist Church, when the minister, Dr. Criswell, announced to the congregation, in services being broadcast, that they were happy to welcome a new member, Mr. Hott, who had decided to sell interests in all his "Dallas night-clubs."

A spokesperson for Caven assured TWT NEWS that no changes in management or policy would be made, that the sale would be smoothly coordinated, and that the new club at 3903 Cedar Springs would open later this year, as scheduled, upon completion of construction. W

Women and TWT

Dear TWT:

Bravo! Thanks for last week's issue [TWT, Vol. 8, No. 26] featuring Cris Williamson and the other articles of interest to us, the women of Texas' (gay) community. I must also commend you on the increasing effort you have made to include women's issues and events in your publication. This has been evidenced by the refreshing addition of A WOMAN'S PLACE, the items chosen for the NEWS section and the fine coverage of women's events that has continued to be a part of ENTERTAINMENT—TEXAS (thanks, Rob).

Keep up the good work and know that your efforts are greatly appreciated.

Moving Forward

Dear TWT:

I would like to thank the Houston gay community and my friends for coming through like champs for me [because of an illness]—I have been through some trying times these past few months. It hasn't been easy for me or for the people who know and love me. I just wanted you all to know how very much I appreciate your love and friendship. I do, now more than ever, believe "united we stand, divided we fall."

DGA on 21.06

Editor—The following letter was sent to Dallas Mayor Jack Evans; all members of the Dallas City Council; Charles Anderson, City Manager; Levi Davis, Assistant City Manager; and Police Chief Prince.

"We felt that it was important that these leaders of our city [Dallas] to see first-hand the words and opinion of the federal judge who confirmed all the things that our movement has been saying about gay people for years," Bill Nelson explained to TWT. "Hopefully some of those people who receive their copy of the decision will take the time to read it. . . ."

"Your decision at TWT NEWS to print the Judge's ruling in its entirety shows that TWT magazine shares with us the knowledge of its importance to all gay women and men."

Dear Mayor Evans:

As you may be aware, a federal judge recently declared Section 21.06 of the Texas Penal Code unconstitutional. It was this section of the code which made it illegal to engage in homosexual conduct in private in this state.

Members of the Dallas Gay Alliance have communicated with you in various ways about their concerns and needs as gay citizens of this city. We strongly believe that it is ignorance and not prejudice that is our enemy in Dallas. We also know that our statements and arguments often sound biased and self-serving because we are gay activists.

For the above reasons and because it represents a decision of national significance made in our city, we are enclosing a copy of Judge Buchmeyer's ruling. We sincerely hope that you can take time to read it and will agree with us that it is the work of a man who sincerely wishes to see justice and reason prevail.

It would be our pleasure to meet with you and discuss this decision further if you should wish to do so. We hope that you will always feel free to contact the Dallas Gay Alliance when we might be of service to you.

The 21.06 Story

Dear TWT:

This letter is in reference to "The 21.06 Story," legalizing homosexuality. This is a very informative and well written article, and I consider it a great importance to the gay communities of Texas. . . .

I sincerely appreciate your efforts in informing and educating the gay communities of Texas through TWT.

THE 21.06 STORY

A continuing series on Judge Jerry Buchmeyer's memorandum opinion of the Baker vs Wade trial.

Part VI: Private Homosexual Conduct Is Protected

This court agrees with the analysis of the right of privacy by the dissenting opinion of Judge Merhige in Doe v. Commonwealth's Attorney, and by the majority opinion in New York v. Onofre.

Every individual has the right to be free from undue interference by the state in important and intimate personal matters. Decisions concerning a person's sexual needs or desires are "in a field that by definition concerns the most intimate of human activities and relationships." The right of two individuals to choose what type of sexual conduct they will enjoy in private is just as personal, just as important, just as sensitive—indeed, even more so—than the decision by the same couple to engage in sex using a contraceptive to prevent unwanted pregnancy. "If the right of privacy means anything, it is the right of the individual, married or single, to be free of unwarranted government intrusion into matters fundamentally affecting a person" as the decision to engage in private sexual conduct with another consenting adult.

This is true whether it is a husband and wife choosing to engage in oral or anal sex in the privacy of their bedroom—or whether it is an unmarried male and female privately engaging in extramarital sexual relations of their own choice. Although these issues are not directly presented in this case, it seems obvious that the right of privacy would not extend to private homosexual conduct if it did not extend to private heterosexual conduct. And, it is equally true as to a homosexual choosing to engage in sodomy in private with a consenting adult of the same sex. The right of privacy, therefore, does extend to private sexual conduct between consenting adults (whether heterosexual or homosexual)—and any regulation of this fundamental right must be justified by a compelling state interest. From the testimony of the plaintiff, Donald F. Baker, about his life—the reluctant, painful recognition of his homosexuality; his disgust and self-loathing and fear; his isolation and suffering; and the eventual reconciliation of his "exclusive homosexuality" with his devout religious beliefs and family values—it is evident that Baker's resulting decisions concerning his sexual needs and desires are of the most personal, intimate and important concern (just as they are for heterosexuals).

The right of privacy is not, as defendants contend, "limited to only two aspects of sexual behavior"—marital intimacy (by virtue of Griswold v. Connecticut) and procreative choice (by reason of Eisenstadt v. Baird). Indeed, Eisenstadt makes it clear that the right of privacy in sexual matters is not limited to married couples:

"If under Griswold the distribution of contraceptives to married persons cannot be prohibited, a ban on distribution to unmarried persons would be equally impermissible. It is true that in Griswold the right of privacy in question inhered in the marital relationship. Yet the marriage couple is not an independent entity with a mind and heart of its own, but an association of two individuals each with a separate intellectual and emotional makeup. If the right of privacy means anything, it is the right of the individual, married or single, to be free from unwarranted governmental intrusion into matters so fundamentally affecting a person as the decision whether to bear or beget a child."

Under the right of privacy, the plaintiff could possess and enjoy in private pornographic material—movies, videotapes, magazines, books, etc.—which graphically depicts sexual activities by homosexuals. It seems ludicrous to attempt to draw some constitutional distinction, as defendants do, between his right to "seek sexual gratification by viewing" such obscene material, and his right to seek sexual gratification with a consenting adult partner in private.

The right of privacy does extend to private, voluntary, intimate relationships—between husband and wife, between unmarried males and females, between homosexuals. Accordingly, homosexual conduct in private between consenting adults is protected by a fundamental right of privacy. Any state restriction upon that right must be justified by some compelling state interest.

NO STATE INTEREST

The right of privacy is not absolute. But any regulation of this fundamental right "may be justified only by a compelling state interest and must be narrowly drawn to express only the legitimate state interests at stake."

Obviously, the state has a compelling interest in regulating some types of sexual conduct—rape, indecent acts in public, sex offenses involving minors, etc. But does the state have any interest in regulating private sexual conduct between consenting adults—or in criminally prosecuting homosexuals for private, consensual sodomy?

Basically, the defendants claim that the state's interests justifying the ban on homosexual conduct by Section (§) 21.06 are morality and decency, public health, welfare and safety, and procreation. Somewhat different justifications were offered at various times by each defendant:

Dallas County (through District Attorney Wade) claimed the "traditional police powers to provide for the security, welfare, safety, morals, decency and other interests" . . . the "safety, health, decency, morals, general welfare and to promote order in society." The City of Dallas (through City Attorney Holt) claimed "the preservation of morality, the maintaining of a decent society, the promotion of mental health" . . . the "health, welfare and morals of individuals and of society" . . . the "positive effect upon the ability of children to form a 'positive gender identification' and to reinforce societal norms of acceptable sexual behavior." The State of Texas (through its Attorney General) claimed only procreation: "Should homosexual conduct become too widespread, society would lose its means of reproducing itself." However, the evidence presented at trial did not support any of these claims. Instead, it established that the state has no "compelling interest" to justify § 21.06—and that, indeed, this statute is not even "rationally related" to any "legitimate state interest."

The defendants did not produce a single witness, or any other evidence, to support the alleged state interests of "morality and decency, welfare and safety, and procreation." They did present one witness who testified about the state's supposed interest in "public health" furthered by § 21.06. This was Dr. James Grigson—who was not an expert in the field of homosexuality—but who testified that criminal sanctions against homosexual conduct would promote the health of children, by fostering their growth and development, and homosexuals, by forcing them to seek psychiatric treatment and be "cured." These opinions are not based upon any independent research; they are contrary to the medical and psychiatric literature, to the opinions of most American psychiatrists today, and to the very credible evidence given by plaintiff's experts. For these, and the other reasons discussed, this Court completely discounts Dr. Grigson's testimony and opinions.

In addition to the lack of any expert testimony supporting the claimed state interests, both District Attorney Wade and City Attorney Holt were unable to explain how § 21.06 furthered the supposed interests of morality or decency, the welfare of society, procreation, or any other interest. Nor was there any evidence that the Texas legislature had even considered these alleged interests when it passed § 21.06 as part of the general revision of the Penal Code in 1974. Therefore, under the record in this case, the defendants have nothing to rely upon but the assertion of general platitudes (morality, decency, etc.).

Moreover, the plaintiff's evidence establishes that there is no compelling state interest served by § 21.06—and that, indeed, this statute's condemnation of homosexual conduct is not even rationally related to a legitimate state interest. In particular, this evidence (including the testimony of the experts, Dr. Marmor and Dr. Simon) established the following:

Homosexuals are not ill or mentally diseased. They are not criminals. They have no propensity for crimes, those involving sexual offenses or otherwise, any more than heterosexuals. But over 700,000 individuals are "criminals" in Texas today because of § 21.06.

Homosexuality is not a matter of choice. It is fixed at a very early age. Only a small percentage of homosexuals can be changed or "cured" by psychiatric treatment. The numbers of homosexuals in society are not reduced by criminal laws like § 21.06, nor would they be increased if such laws did not exist.

Homosexuality is not communicable. The absence of § 21.06 would not lead to increased crime or violence or other threats to public health or safety. This statute does not further the "growth and development" of children and it harms, rather than helps, the mental health of homosexuals. There is simply no rational connection between the acts proscribed by § 21.06 and the claimed interests of morality, decency, health, welfare, safety and procreation.

Therefore, § 21.06 is not justified by any "compelling state interest." Moreover, its prohibition against private homosexual conduct between consenting adults is not even rationally related to any legitimate state interest. Accordingly, § 21.06 is unconstitutional because it violates the plaintiff's fundamental right of privacy. The defendant Wade's argument that the plaintiff "waived" or "abandoned" his right of privacy is absurd. The fact that the plaintiff was the subject of an interview in a magazine article (Texas Monthly) is certainly not a consent to "unwarranted governmental intrusion" into his personal and intimate decisions concerning private sexual conduct. W

HOMOSEXUAL LAW: WRONG DECISION

Below is an editorial reprinted from The Dallas Morning News. Following the editorial is a reprint of the letter sent in reply to the News.

Pretty high-flown rhetoric the Dallas Gay Alliance is indulging in to celebrate the apparent demise of Texas' homosexual conduct law. U.S. Dist. Judge Jerry Buchmeyer's ruling is being compared to the Declaration of Independence. This is assuming that the decision isn't appealed, or that, if it is appealed, the higher federal courts will sustain it.

Yet this isn't the only ground on which such comparisons are tenuous. In the broadest sense, freedom, as nailed down by the Declaration of Independence, is good. But particular freedoms, like speech, are not absolute. Some alleged freedoms indeed society deems injurious to itself and its members and so formally forbids them. Homosexual conduct is one such, at least in Texas.

Judge Buchmeyer asserts that homosexual conduct is private behavior, hence enjoys constitutional protection. But private behavior has public consequences of which society must be able to take note.

For instance, the relationship between policemen and the community is a delicate one. A homosexual policeman would be judged by most community members as an unfortunate role model. Likewise a homosexual schoolteacher. The state has a basic right to speak to these concerns.

The homosexual conduct statute is anything but an instrument of persecution. It's rarely enforced—still more rarely in the bedroom. Its death would make little difference in practical terms. What that death would mainly achieve is the "normalization" of a practice deeply opposed by society. Society deserves the right to go on opposing that practice if it so wishes; which is why Buchmeyer's ruling should be appealed and overturned.

Response

I am shocked and disappointed in The Dallas Morning News for its blatant failure to meet its responsibilities to its readers. The editorial staff has damaged the credibility of the paper and done a disservice to its readers by failing to research its editorial stance and base it on fact rather than myth.

The call for the appeal of U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer's ruling, declaring the Texas Homosexual Conduct Law unconstitutional, is apparently based on historic misconceptions of the cause, characteristics and effects of homosexuality. The editorial published on August 21 presupposes that homosexual men and women choose their sexual orientation and that they are free to change it.

The most recent scientific findings presented in the case of Baker versus Wade conclude that sexual orientation is formed either before birth or so close to birth as to be beyond the control of the individual. The myth that young boys and girls are somehow recruited to become homosexual has been dismissed as nonsense by psychologists and psychiatrists doing research on sexual orientation. Most homosexual men and women come to the realization of the sexual orientation only after years of doubts and introspection. The man or woman dealing with the reality of their homosexuality is faced with only two choices—they must accept or deny themselves. There is no choice that changes sexual orientation. Through denial, an individual may take on the trappings of heterosexuality or asexuality. But denial exacts a heavy toll. No one should be required to live a lie.

You claim the Dallas Gay Alliance is indulging in "pretty high-flown rhetoric" in comparing Judge Buchmeyer's ruling to the Declaration of Independence. I disagree. An estimated 700,000 Texans were told that they are no longer outlaws. They are free to have private consensual relations with the people they love. Pardon our exuberance when we get something that heterosexual men and women have never been denied.

Society fears what it does not understand. Homosexual men and women are not significantly different from the rest of society. The stereotype you perceive as the typical gay, the effeminate man and the masculine woman, make up only a small percentage of the gay people. Homosexuality crosses all of society's lines. We are young, old, white, black, hispanic, rich, poor and middle class. We are truck drivers, lawyers, doctors, construction workers, computer operators, bankers, athletes and journalists. Because we exist universally, homosexual men and women are not that apparent to heterosexual men and women, or even to each other. We are so much like you that, perhaps, it scares you. You have nothing to fear. We want the same thing that you want—the freedom to pursue the American dream. The right to live and work without fear of injustice.

You claim the Texas Homosexual Conduct Law was not an instrument of persecution and that "its death would make little difference in practical terms." If it makes no difference to you, then let it die. I believe its existence codified discrimination against a whole segment of society. The fact that a law is not directly enforced does not diminish the chilling effect it casts. It provided consent for discrimination by labeling homosexual men and women outlaws. Job performance, not sexual orientation, should be the issue in employment. Gay people should not be subjected to street violence by gangs that know police and prosecutors will look the other way. The end of a discriminatory law does not end discrimination. We are not so naive. But perpetuation of a law that is wrong hinders progress and is a blight of the entire state. It says Texas does not believe in individual freedom. It would be an ironic commentary on a state that prides itself on that very point.

Much of the fear and condemnation of homosexuality is rooted in traditional religious teachings. Although I disagree with the biblical interpretations, I support the religious freedom guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution that gives safe harbor to those beliefs. But the right to religious freedom also guarantees my freedom from the persecution of someone else's beliefs. I do not demand a change in other people's religious beliefs about homosexuality, and I should not have to accept them in the civil laws affecting all of society.

Your condemnation of Judge Buchmeyer's decision is misdirected. The judge was courageous in ignoring public opinion and deciding the case on the law and the evidence. He made the only judgment possible from the testimony presented. If you are unhappy with the ruling, you should review the defense presented by Dallas County's highly-touted District Attorney. Henry Wade's inability to present a convincing argument in support of the Texas Homosexual Conduct Law is evidence of either the wrongness of the law or the incompetence of Mr. Wade.

You suggest that homosexual Texans are somehow a pox on this state. But the facts are that gay men and women tend to be more productive, earning higher incomes, paying higher taxes and utilizing fewer community services than their heterosexual married counterparts. Without immediate family responsibilities, they are sometimes able to take greater financial risks and have been largely responsible for initiating the restoration of urban areas such as Oak Lawn and East Dallas, Houston's Montrose and Memorial Park areas and similar neighborhoods across the country. Although they have no immediate family responsibilities, that independence is often exploited to care for elderly parents when heterosexual brothers and sisters are too burdened with children to handle them.

Yes, there are differences in the gay lifestyle. But there are more similarities than differences. One of the strengths of this nation rests in its divergent cultures and lifestyles. It gives America a vitality and creativeness unmatched in the world. We should rejoice in our differences, find strength in our variety, try to understand what we fear, and learn that we all have something to contribute to society.

The ruling that the Texas Homosexual Conduct Law is unconstitutional will not end the discrimination against gay men and women. It will not even "normalize" our behavior. We will always be different. But the de-institutionalization of discrimination may someday mean that I could sign my name to this letter without fear of losing my job, my home and my ability to be a contributing citizen of the State of Texas. W

FALLACIOUS VERBOSITY

Awhile back, I exchanged a conversation with Reverend B. Righteous and his wife, Zoe. Yes, that's Zoe Righteous! We discussed current events, politics, and the general state of the union.

I can guarantee you that sometime in your life you have had the misfortune to meet people like them. They are what the Moral Majority would consider to be the "average American family."

The Reverend is a good provider for his family. Zoe and he even have the average amount of kids per family, 2.5;

they also have a dog named Spot and a goldfish named Marvin.

The Reverend, like any other decent patriot, believes in a strong national defense—even if it means going to war—oops, I mean "conflict"—to save the ignorants of the world from rampant Communism.

He believes that Lenin didn't really die permanently. Rather, he was freeze-dried for 25 years and was brought back to life with modern technology, which the Ruskies stole from us. (Of course, Lenin came back decaffeinated.) Now,

Lenin must drink 7Up as it is supposedly the only soft drink that "never has had caffeine and never will."

But all that is incidental. I just love to hear old Righteous open his mouth and insert foot. Why, the man believes Ronald Reagan is neater than multi-colored jelly beans. Maybe he should run for governor or President of the Actors Guild.

Well, I will give you a few excerpts of our recent conversation. Buckle in and get ready to get disgusted.

Bonnie — Tell me, Reverend—the President was voted into office promising to balance the budget and cut taxes. Any accountant or anybody else with a lick of sense knows it is almost downright impossible to do both. So how does the President justify increasing every other tax other than income tax to balance the national deficit?

Righteous — Well, it is very simple. We elected the man to do the job. You just gotta believe in him and what he is doing. He does know what is best for the American people.

But his policies are increasing the national unemployment rate.

Oh, it's just those lazy bums. You know, when we cut out all those unnecessary, wasteful jobs from the government and didn't let those unproductives get on welfare—well, they just don't know how to make a decent day's living.

Oh, I understand. You're saying that we have unemployment because the lazies won't work. They want the silver platter (a.k.a. silver china) and any other freebie they can get for nothing.

Yes, exactly. Why, I can remember when I was a little fellow, I worked all day for 5¢.

But that was 40 years ago, and a nickel could buy so many things.

Exactly, if the bums would work, why we wouldn't even need all these taxes.

What about inflation and high interest rates?

You can blame the unions on that. If it weren't for them, why we would still be able to pay the labor much, much less. That would mean more profit for the owners who would be able to build more plants which in turn would provide more jobs. Also, since we can't use the illegals without a penalty if we are caught, I just don't see how a businessman can make an honest buck.

Hmmm. I see your point. Do you feel the women's movement is necessary today?

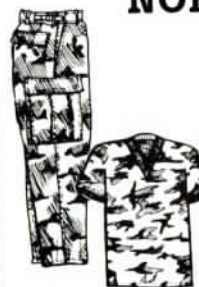

I just don't understand what all the fuss is about. What more could a woman ask for. Why, little Zoe has a nice big house, a modern vacuum cleaner, she doesn't work for a living, and gets to stay home all day and watch TV. Why, you know what would have happened

Next thing you know they would have tried to draft my little girl, Priscella. No way, it's my job to protect my family from the crazy liberals.

In protecting your children, do you use parental discretion with regards to what your kids watch on television?

You bet. Why, if I didn't, no telling what ideas would get put in my kids' heads. I only let my kids watch reruns—like The F.B.I., Leave It To Beaver, Hawaii Five-0, I Love Lucy, and so forth. The good wholesome stuff. No trash for my family.

It's about time for me to be wrapping things up. Do you have any last remarks?

Yes, I do. I hear that there is a woman running for state office in Texas. I think the decent thing to do is for nobody to vote for her, and then she'll go back home and take care of the grandbaby. A woman has certain responsibilities just as us real men do.

COMING OUT RIGHT

A handbook for the gay male

Coming Out Right, by Wes Muchmore and William Hanson; 200 pp.; bibliography and sources; Alyson Publications, P.O. Box 2783, Boston, Massachusetts 02208; softcover, $5.95.

Reviewed by David Fields

For those persons recently free of the closet, Wes Muchmore and William Hanson have written a "travel guide" for the gay male experience called Coming Out Right. The book is also of interest to persons already out for a while but want a clear description of how to navigate safely through some of the more common pitfalls of the gay life. The book is the most pragmatic, comprehensive guide yet reviewed in this column.

The book pulls no punches in warning us of the problems of coming out; it does not support the myth of an idyllic gay life. The intent and spirit of the book is to clearly mark warnings to help the gay male prevent problems, and if they are unavoidable, cope with them effectively. The tone of the authors is warm, conversational and friendly. Their "credentials" are the more than forty years experience in the gay world of the past and present.

Due to the sheer scope of their attempt, much depth in the subjects is difficult to achieve. But they have compensated with an excellent bibliography and sources section grouped by 1) directories and catalogues, 2) periodicals, 3) background and history, and 4) fiction and drama. It contains as well regional groupings of bookstores and their addresses (though Wilde & Stein's address in Houston is out of date and the ZIP code is wrong). The last of this section provides supplementary titles for the subject discussed in each chapter.

Other books focus on the psychological facets of the gay life. Coming Out Right, for all its scope, focuses with an appreciable degree of success on the details of gay institutions (bars, baths, bookstores), socializing, being with friends, being in love, and the legal sides of gay persons' unique relationships in employment, housing, medical treatment, and with the police.

Examples of the detail the authors include are tips on handling yourself (no pun intended) at the baths if your towel won't stay on—wet the corner before tucking it into the fold around your waist—and the CB code for gay guys ("three-legged beaver").

Though Muchmore and Hanson are serious about their efforts, the book is not a dry recitation of the facts. The book "reads" well. They do not dwell on any one topic too long, and their sense of humor livens up the text and main-

Women and Sex in the 80s: The Cosmo Report, by Linda Wolfe; 334 pp.; appendix, index; Bantam Books, 666 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10103; paperback, $3.95

Reviewed by Linda Parks, Ph.D.

Cosmopolitan magazine is a magazine for career women ages 18-34, and it has a circulation of 2,500,000 readers. In October 1980, this magazine conducted a sexual survey, and accordingly 106,000 women responded to this sexual investigation. Thus, the book Women and Sex in the 80s: The Cosmo Report was born. Linda Wolfe took the test results, and in her interpretation comes some startling, if not downright outrageous information about the fair and not so fair ladies in our land.

In reading this "report" one thing came out quite clear—the figures do not include percentages on American women who are exclusively homosexual. It seems that lesbians were silent in this survey as far as giving any details about themselves, although two percent responded to the sample. And, according to Cosmopolitan, "it is unfortunate for it allows us to gain no insight into how the sex practices and feelings of homosexual women have been affected by recent skirmishes in the sexual revolution."

So the Cosmo Sex Survey really covers the sexual activities of the non-gay population of American women, and let me just say that my personal opinion is that if this survey is accurate tains reader interest, even for those, like me, who have read or scanned quite enough of the gay handbooks.

An added delight is the quotes from famous philosophers, authors and poets, gay or non-gay, found at the beginning of each chapter and other places. The quotes are from such people as John Rechy, Cardinal Newman, Jean Genet and Santayana. Besides adding a touch of class to the book, the quotes may reflect the desire of the authors to promote the thoughtful self-examination of our lives. This would help us lead a safer, healthier, more ful-in describing the sexual activities of the average career woman, ages 18-34, then the word "morality" can safely be stricken from our dictionary. We need never more concern ourselves with anything more than finding enough willing sexual partners; forget virtue, character and all the rest of the antique, outdated and behind-the-times ideals.

This book, if accurate, would make the American woman appear to be nothing more than a sexual machine, who uses anything and anyone in her quest for that ever-popular, ever-sought-after, ever-diverse orgasm. It would seem that women have gone berserk in their striving for sexual identity and sexual independence. From the Victorian period when women were made to look so pure, so virtuous and so delicate to the 80s when women are made to look so debase, so immoral and so gross, I cannot help but wonder if perhaps we have somehow gone from ridiculous to depravity.

Everything has a middle-ground—a place where the balance must be made—and this book by Linda Wolfe shows that women must seek to discover that balance before sexual freedom with no bounds creates such a monster in the disguise of pleasure, that there will be no turning back from the past of lust and unbridled desires.

I am thankful that lesbians were not part of the statistics of this book's basis, as I would certainly like to continue to believe that we do have more quality and more selection in our sexual pursuits than this report of the 80s shows the non-gay female population has. I hope we continue to keep our pride and refuse to reply to sexual surveys that only tend to make women look as though they go from day to day with only one thing in their thoughts—sex, sex, sex. Not love, or devotion, or affection—just sex!

The women who replied to the survey told of all sorts of sexual activities and stimulations from animal sex to group sex. It includes a "homosexual" experience in an 11-year-old child. This in itself is ridiculous. This book goes briefly into masturbation, sexual fantasies and rape. All in all, I think it's a book that could have just as well not been written and certainly not read. As a woman, it made me feel uncomfortable knowing that my own kind not only participate in immoral sexual conduct, but is more than willing to tell all about it, without shame, guilt or conscience. For example, one 20-year-old girl proudly admits to having 134 lovers and actually remembers all their names—except three. (Makes me wonder why she forgot those three.) And, infidelity is another name for marriage, according to the book's report.

So, if you want to know what society is condoning in its average career woman, get this book and read it. If you'd rather keep on with our average lesbian struggle for survival, let this book sit on the bookstore's shelf.

filled gay life and, if so, would be this book's greatest benefit. One of the quotes by the poet Pindar is, "Seek not, my soul, the life of the immortals, but enjoy to the full the resources that are within thy reach." Each quote is related in some way to the chapter, but is enlightening on its own.

Alyson Publications published this book, one of many useful, instructive and entertaining books to come from their presses, several of which have been reviewed here. Presses like this reflect the coming-of-age for gay presses in America, and the continuing process of creating a more enlightened, and thus more accepting, society.

The last chapter, entitled "Gay Life Good and Bad," really captures the spirit of the work best. Our advantages are our freedom and flexibility away from stifling conformity, and our diversity. We form bonds that cut across all stratas of society; we are everyman. With these advantages comes responsibility and living in an often intolerant society; Coming Out Right attempts to help us handle that responsibility, prevent problems, and have, as nearly as possible, that idyllic gay life.

MOONING FOR THE MASSES

INCHON

Reviewed by George Klein

Inchon, an expensive retelling of the invasion of Korea by General Douglas MacArthur, produced by Sun Myung Moon and starring Sir Laurence Olivier, Ben Gazzara, Jacqueline Bisset and Toshiro Mifune, was filmed on location with a huge crew and cast, but it looks like everybody was asleep or else hunting for souvenirs. The editing is awful, and scenes end or begin long before they are supposed to for credibility. The color is all washed-out, and so each frame appears grainy and poorly focused. Rarely has such an expensive picture ($48 million) been so badly put together (the last candidate was probably Dr. Doolittle). Terence Young doesn't know what to do in the big action sequences—so that masses of people are spread all over the frame, looking anxious and confused. Of course, all this might not matter if the actors had some chemistry and really let the sparks fly. Yet even Olivier looks bored. There's no excitement when he speaks, none of his witty stresses on words and phrases, and his atrocious makeup looks like an Indonesian tribal mask. His MacArthur belongs in some anonymous museum, and so does this hippopotamus of a picture.

The invasion of Inchon was the first major Allied victory of the Korean War, and many Koreans still look upon MacArthur as a hero. Others, however, particularly some officials in America at the time, wondered if he was trying to regain some prestige after his conflicts with Truman. (When Truman fired MacArthur in April 1951, he said in a staff meeting, "I can show just how the son-of-a-bitch double-crossed us.") The movie doesn't offer any perspective on their conflicts, and the screenwriters, Robin Moore (Green Berets) and Laird Koenig, replace details with clichés and dialogue with facetiousness. We get long, tedious war scenes interspersed with a romance between Gazzara, a Korean woman, and Bisset. She plays his estranged wife who loves him, and patiently waits for her man to "grow out" of this stage of life. Meanwhile, she takes up with five orphans when the invasion begins, and the film is loaded with awful shots of her hugging them to her breast whenever a gun goes off. Bisset's better than usual: her eyes sparkle every now and then but still glaze over whenever she has to do any real acting (i.e., whenever she has to do more than bite her lip to tell us she's angry). Ben Gazzara is adequate—although his passionate interests, as they were, seem pretty low-keyed. It hardly seems worth the effort to add the love story because none of the participants seem interested or create any sexual tension. But as Saito San, the father of the Korean woman, Toshiro Mifune is magnetic and visceral, and there's more pleasure in his appearances on screen than we ever expected.

This film was made in 1979, but not released until this year. MGM-UA is the distributor, and there's probably two reasons why we had to wait for a release: 1) financial difficulties or 2) it's a rotten picture. I'll take the latter. Mr. Moon and his Unification Church gave a sizeable portion of money to make this picture (his production company is appropriately titled One Way Productions) as well as distribute it—Moon is spending $11 million on advertising and promotion. He's certainly got the money, and it's not hard to see why he is doing it. What better way of convincing the middle-class public that he is honest and sincere than giving a huge sum of money to make a picture about one of the most famous and beloved of American generals—MacArthur—which stars one of our greatest actors—Olivier. It's his bid for respectability. (The courts found him less than so in his trials for income-tax evasion and kidnapping.) Yet this picture is so bad—so bad in a big, commercial Hollywood way—that I wonder how any man who reportedly saw Jesus Christ and Buddha could have gotten himself into such a mess. Didn't they teach him anything?

JOAN CRAWFORD

or When Mommie Dearest

In 1965, or was it '66—no matter—I was working in the front office of a hotel in Dallas. One day we received some very exciting news—Joan Crawford was coming to town and was going to stay with us! From the second the announcement was made, excitement reigned supreme. "Have you heard . . . do you know what . . . I can't wait to see. . ."

A few days later, the hotel received a letter with an enclosed list of her requirements while she would stay with us. Oh, how I wish I had kept a copy of that list. It was unbelievable. Four to six single-spaced typewritten pages. Included in it were . . . The thermostat in the suite must be on 62° at all times, and must not vary . . . there must be X number of bottles of a soft drink, mixers and booze, clean glasses and ice in there at all times . . . a maintenance man and maid were to be on duty for her suite 24 hours a day and the maid had to sit in a chair in the hallway . . . the maid had to change the linens every hour, whether the bed had been used or not . . . the entire suite was to be cleaned every time she left it . . . there had to be 12 pillows on the bed . . . etc.

The day she arrived, it was like visiting royalty arriving. Everyone turned out to see her. She looked great. No one's presence was acknowledged except the hotel manager. Sometime after midnight, there was a call at the front desk from her suite. She was yelling in a very slurred, strong language. A security man, myself and the maid went to her suite. I was stunned; they were appalled. There she sat, in the middle of the bed in a dirty looking t-shirt, her hair a mess, mumbling and cursing, while looking at her foot and the blood on it. It seems she had dropped and broken a glass and stepped on a piece of the glass. A quick phone call was made and a big, distinguished, though sleepy looking, man arrived and took her to a hospital—on their departure, she had added nothing to her attire except a coat. Some unsuspecting emergency room was in for a big surprise.

The next afternoon her departure was announced. Yea! Then the manager sent word that all employees, at her request, were to be lined up in the hallway, from her suite to the lobby. Boo!

Out the door of the suite Joan came, looking very regal in a pink suit and big pink pill-box hat. She walked along slowly and majestically, shaking hands with each person and thanking us for a pleasant(?) stay, and other royal small talk. The expressions on the faces behind her were wonderful. It was two days and one night that none of us would ever forget.

So, when Christina wrote her book, Mommie Dearest, did I believe all that stuff she had written about her mother? You bet—every word.

Below: Dusty Springfield, 60s.

STAY AWHILE—One of the best records to come out of Britain in the early sixties was the Springfield's early folk-rock classic "Silver Threads and Golden Needles"—a song strong enough to be a permanent part of every singer's repertoire (and it probably is). The Springfields—a British trio made up of Mike Hurst, Tom Springfield and Mary O'Brien—became semi-famous when their record went top twenty in America in 1962, but by the end of 1963 the group had disbanded. At that time, Mary, with her name changed to Dusty Springfield (none of my sources confirm that she was either married or related to Tom Springfield), embarked on a solo singing career, and by January 1964 she had her first hit with "I Only Want to Be With You," which she followed with "Stay Awhile," "Wishin' and Hopin'," "You Don't Have to Say You Love Me," "Son-of-a Preacher Man" and others. The hits ran out around 1970—for some of us a pop music tragedy—and after that Dusty continued to record and perform, somewhat irregularly, and she occasionally turned up in unexpected places. She sang "Bits and Pieces" on the soundtrack for the film The Stunt Man, but still no hits. For me, the best news from the recording industry these days is that a new Dusty Springfield album, aptly titled White Heat, is being readied for a November release and, as if that isn't enough, it has contributions from Elvis Costello and Sting. At her very best, I've always ranked Dusty Springfield with the great black stylists—Aretha Franklin, Martha Reeves and Dionne Warwick. Given the current unstable conditions in the recording industry, a "comeback" could be difficult—but this is one fan who never gave up on Dusty.

MORE JOYFUL NOISE—Apparently Charlotte Caffey, guitarist/keybordist

for the Go-Go's, has decided it's time to share the wealth—she recently composed songs for Bette Midler, Del Shannon and a group called the Dickies. The latest Go-Go's single, meanwhile, is "Get Up and Go." ... Jesse Collin Young and Carly Simon duet on a new single called "Fight For It." ... George Harrison's next album will probably be called Gonna Troppa. That's Australian slang for "going crazy in the tropics." ... Already released: Michael Jackson and Paul McCartney's single "The Girl Is Mine," produced by Quincy Jones. It's from Jackson's Thriller album. ... Bill Medley, the deep voice half of the Righteous Brothers, has a new single, "Right Here and Now," produced by super-producer Richard Perry. The tune was composed by Barry Mann and Cynthia Weill who composed "You've Lost

The Righteous Brothers, 60s.

"That Lovin' Feelin'" and "Soul and Inspiration." ... Dolly Parton and Olivia Newton-John each have new "Greatest Hits" packages. ... If you're sick of seeing drag performers mouth Jennifer Holliday's "And I'm Telling You I'm Not Going," then you'll probably soon be sick of seeing them mouth her new single as well. It's "I Am Changing"—another cut from the Dreamgirls cast album. ... Are you ready for the latest "medley" records. Rupert Holmes is responsible for Glued to the Tube, a medley of old TV themes, such as I Love Lucy, Leave It to Beaver, The Adams Family, Dragnet, Peter Gunn, etc. And Larry Elgart and His Manhattan Swing Orchestra has just come out with Hooked on Astaire, featuring such Fred Astaire-associated tunes as "Cheek to Cheek," "It's de Lovely," "Flying Down to Rio," "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off," and, of course, "The Continental." Just thought you'd want to know.

LA DOLCE VIDEO—Cable TV may not be all it's cracked up to be (I mean how many times can even a devoted fan sit through Mommie Dearest?), but among its truly valuable offerings are taped versions of Broadway plays such as Camelot and Sweeney Todd, both of which are already being aired. In the near future HBO will be presenting The Rainmaker, starring Tuesday Weld and Tommy Lee Jones. There are also plans for a new version of Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter, which originally starred Jayne Mansfield in both play and film versions. Mentioned but not confirmed for the leads in the new version are Valerie Perrine and John Ritter.

TEXAS by Rob Clark

Soprano Kiri Te Kanawa, accompanied by full orchestra under the baton of Martin Katz, opens Houston Grand Opera's 1982-83 Prima Donna Series with a concert Sunday, October 10 at 8:00pm, at Jones Hall.

Ms. Te Kanawa has been seen worldwide by millions of viewers through her television appearances as well as in live performances. On the occasion of Prince Charles and Lady Diana's internationally televised wedding in St. Paul's Cathedral, she sang "Let the Bright Seraphim", a selection she will repeat for Houston audiences.

The Actor's Theatre of San Antonio will present The Murder of Tchaikovsky, written by John Stuart Anderson. The production premieres at 7:30pm, October 15 in the ballroom of the Bonham Exchange. Additional performances are scheduled for October 13-14, 16, and 20-23.

Downtown workers will not only have an opportunity to spice up their brown bag lunch hour, but will also be offered a fun and entertaining alternative to the rush hour traffic crunch at the end of their day, as Alley Theatre opens two plays, a Lunchtime Theatre production of A.R. Burney's Scenes From American Life and a Happy Hour Theatre production of James McLure's Pvt. Wars. Both plays will be presented Tuesday-Friday through October 22 on the Alley's Arena Stage. For Lunchtime Theatre, the Arena lobby will open at 11:45am for drinks and dining. The performance will begin promptly at 12:15pm and is over within the hour in time to return to work.

The Dallas Opera offers students a 50% discount on season tickets. This allows students to purchase all four productions for the price of two, according to Plato Karayanis, general director of the Dallas Opera. "This offer continues the Dallas Opera's policy of making season tickets available to students at the lowest possible price," Karayanis said. Students may purchase a season ticket for as little as $12. All performances will be staged in the Music Hall at Fair Park. Subscriptions, priced from $12-$57, may be purchased by writing or calling the Dallas Opera Ticket Office, 3000 Turtle Creek Plaza, Suite 100, Dallas 75219, (214) 528-3200. College and university students must simply submit student identification numbers along with the name of their school.

It was just about one year ago when the Montrose Symphonic Band made its debut on the stage of the Tower Theatre. To honor that milestone event, the band returned to the Tower last Saturday night, September 25 to present another musical triumph—this time a salute to Broadway entitled New York, New York. TWT's Bill French appeared twice with fans in musical interpretations set to motion. Andy Mills surprised his audience when he appeared disguised in Star Wars costume to conduct the popular cosmos theme, and a medley of TV commercial jingles jangled our video memories. Confetti and balloons descended upon the band during the festive finale. The gay community can truly be proud of their own band which has more than doubled in size. Much credit, both financial and philanthropic, goes to Jim Farmer who had faith in the band from its birth. For his devotion, Mills presented Farmer with a plaque making him an honorary member of the Montrose Symphonic Band. The band has secured an engagement at the prestigious Avery Fischer Hall in Lincoln Center. Cassette tapes of the Gay Pride concert at Cullen Auditorium and the May concert at the Tower are on sale at Mary's in Houston.

Here's your chance to take the whole band home with you!

CONFLICT, THE BOTTOM LINE

PART TWO BY TED R. HEWES, M.S.W.

Last week, TWT presented the first of a two-part series in which the author, Ted R. Hewes, M.S.W., discussed the essential components of building a relationship. This week's concluding article presents a list of sources of conflict that can occur between members of a couple. Ted Hewes is a psychotherapist in private practice in Houston.

The following outline contains topics that are commonly found to be sources of conflict between members of a couple. By taking the time to delve into each topic, the participants can begin to focus more clearly on themselves and on each other rather than on maintaining hidden wishes, expectations and projections.

Each participant involved should have a separate copy of the topics to be discussed so that they may consider it alone. They should then write out their responses so that they can see more clearly just what it is that they are taking into the relationship. Then the participants should come together and share their responses. It is important to set aside sufficient time to discuss each issue, but at the same time it is important to realize that it is equally important to give each other permission to postpone responding to a topic. These topics can be uncomfortable to contemplate and to discuss, therefore, it is important to be patient with each other realizing that you are engaged in a process of unveiling areas of sensitivity each to the other. So take your time but complete the work.

It is also important to remember that you are not forming a contract. The goal of this encounter is to share each other's expectations and feelings in order to obtain a more clear concept of yourself and your loved one so that you can grow in your relationship with a minimum amount of interference from projected images.

TEXAS TO SUPERMAN — From a competitive field of 75 contestants, Jay Gondek has won the title of Mr. Superman 1983 before 5000 spectators at Florentine Gardens in Los Angeles. All-American-type Gondek had previously won TWT's Mr. Texas 1981 when the annual contest was held in Fort Worth. TWT magazine is most proud of Jay's accomplishments. He is currently manager of the Bottoms Up '83 Revue, a Breck Wall production, now playing at the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas. Jay has also appeared in summer stock in Lake Tahoe and has landed a featured role for Bunning Productions. Jay still enjoys wind surfing, cycling, swimming, weight lifting, water skiing and sailing. Jay, a 175 lbs., 6-foot tall, 23-year-old Aquarian, has brown hair and sexy green eyes. Yes, folks, Mr. Texas is now Mr. Superman! This year's Mr. Texas pageant will be held as usual, in early December, contest owner/coordinator TWT magazine announced.

SAN ANGELO — Winners of last month's talent night competition at Phase III were Ginger who won, and runners-up Tashia and Alexis Rae. Special guest was Tiana Taylor, Miss Gay San Angelo '81. A new Miss Gay San Angelo will be selected this Sunday night, October 3.

So when the TWT ballot box comes to your local showbar, vote. For a handy list of this year's vote-night schedule, refer to the EOY Calendar on page 99. Will Naomi Sims win Texas for a fourth year? That is the question to be decided by you the fans! And, who will win your city's title? That too, is up to you.

And, the Round-Up has arrived in the hill country enjoying a jam-packed festive grand opening last weekend (see CRUISE CAMERA photo below) as gobs of cowboys danced the night away. Photos by Scott Taylor of TWT's Austin Bureau.

BUMPER STICKERS — Beginning this week, our roving cruisers will select at random each week a lucky Texas license plate number. If it's yours and you've got a TWT bumper sticker on your vehicle, you win the cash jackpot! A new plate number will be announced each Friday. If no one claims the cash prize by noon the following Monday, the jackpot goes up another $25—a building jackpot! So now you can win money by just reading TWT as you go "crusin' for cash."

HOUSTON HOTLINE — Terry Flood had joined Smitty and Ab as one of the owners of the BRB which presents Rose Maddox, in her only Texas performance this weekend . . . Jack Wrangler's 3-D X-rated movie, Heavy Equipment had been yanked from next Wednesday's showing at the River Oaks Theatre for fear of another vice raid . . . Lulu's usual X-rated happy hour has returned to the Midnite Sun . . . R-rated Ron Souix emcees the Arnold Ziffel's awards program this Sunday night at Miss Charlotte's . . . And Galleon manager Bruce really cleaned up at his birthday last Sunday receiving gifts such as a color TV, stereo, coffeepot, etc.—what's your secret?

INSTANT TEA — TWT photographer, tall Greg Havican, won last Monday's $1.98 Butch contest at Houston Loading Dock while Happy Trails' Dee was first runner-up . . . It was an underwhelming contest which didn't spare any expense to bring us the least. To clear up other matters, when Cindi Tatum won Miss Country at the Exile, it was Little Bobbie who gave up her long-standing title.

SUNDANCE AWARDS — Last Saturday night at Happy Trails, Houston's Sundance Cattle Company climaxed a super successful second anniversary celebration by presenting their club award to the Mustang Club for their support of SCC. Outstanding SCC Member of the Year went to Reenie Sharpe who is the first woman president of the predominantly male club in Texas. Walter and Terry of The Barn were awarded honorary memberships into SCC, HOT TEA learned. ➤

FORT WORTH — TJ of the OP is back from his twentieth trip of the year—this one was a biggy: the Orient, and HOT TEA doesn't mean SF's Chinatown . . . Speaking of trips, the Lumber Company took us to Oz last weekend for their stunning production of The Wiz and everyone is still raving about it . . . Rumor has it that a few souls are still lost trying to find their way back to South Jennings Crossroads . . . On the subject of being lost, the Krazy Kowboy was a bikers haven last Saturday—Chuck Ritchie, please find out what happened under your patio stairway—it could have been the HOT TEA scandal of the week! Blowout of the week: Ed, the DJ at the new Tequila Sunrise, blew out every speaker on opening night—emergency repairs saved the night, reported Jerry Cassidy of TWT's Fort Worth Bureau.

MISS GAY GALVESTON — "And the winner is," announced emcee Pat Patrick, "Michelle Michaels" (m), a 27-year-old Galveston entertainer who performed a NY-NY medley. First runner-up was Lady Diane (l) and second runner-up was Shawn Michaels (r). Rounding out the field of September 24 finalists at the Kon-Tiki were Marie and Candi Holiday. All contestants were escorted on stage by Kon-Tiki owner Bob Ellison and all staff members at the island club were smartly dressed in formal attire. Emcee Pat also crooned live "All The Way." Having gone all the way with their responsibilities as title holder of Miss Gay Galveston were former winners Sabrina and Chante Cartier who entertained along with Von Gretchen Sheppard.

ARLINGTON — A 20-year-old native of Arlington, Kenneth Wimberly (above) has won the annual Mr. Tarrant County Mining Company contest held the night of September 22. The popular metroplex personality of Buddy Dennis emceed the parade of men, TCMC manager Tom Trimble told HOT TEA. More photos next week from the CRUISE CAMERA of TWT's Al Macareno.

MISS CAMP AMERICA — While the real world was watching a real Texan win the real Miss America contest from Atlantic City, Houston's gay community was watching their own mock-up version called Miss Camp America. It was the 13th annual formal soiree at the prestigious Tower Theatre. Each year, after the show, HOT TEA always received instant comments from those in attendance. However, this year we had to go out and extract comments. We learned that those who saw the show for the first time loved it! However, those who had attended past performances were "disappointed" this year because . . . "of a lack of pizzazz, the usual luster . . ." Internal strife barely left MCA with 50 states, and if not careful they could revert back to the original 13 Colonies," one member said. HOT TEA loved Miss Texas' western outfit (with a hat as big as Texas) . . . Also loved Trixie, Miss Wisconsin in her beer can formal, the big Broadway number, Princess' Peru number, and the Rose. Regardless, it is still one of the best shows of its kind in our state. Come on gang, the show must go on . . . And, it will. There's no business like camp business! ►

FRIDAY OCTOBER 22—TWT's EOY VOTE NIGHT

DALLAS TEA — The Metroplex calendar is quickly filling up: last weekend the elegant "Our Time" formal party and show was held at the Fairmont Hotel . . . Next, on October 8-10, it's the annual Texas-OU wild weekend explosion during the Texas State Fair . . . And, as if that isn't enough excitement, the following weekend, October 16, the third annual Butch Party unleashes . . . Speaking of excitement, there was plenty of that on the morning of September 16 when Lobo Bookstore's glass door was broken with a brick, and thieves took cash—but, no books. Alarms had sounded at nearby Butler's Pantry, WOK Restaurant, and the old Shute #2 before the break-in.

ALAMO TEA — Doug of the Crew and Barbara of Daddy's are both in local hospitals—get well! The Warehouse Saloon has been sold and in its site a new disco shall rise . . . Snuffy's Sunday barbecue becomes a free buffet beginning this October . . . Next door at the San Pedro Mine, male strip has debuted on Mondays . . . Toi Lane and Christopher Starr have won Sunset Boulevard's Amateur of the Month finals . . . And the CRUISE CAMERA was at Faces' recent anniversary for a photo of the faces who make happy Faces (l-r): Ken, Scotty and Leslie with Lollie. Two have worked their way to the top—one has slept her way to the top. Answer and photo by Jim Hamilton of TWT's San Antonio Bureau. Incidentally, TWT's EOY vote night couples with Faces' six-month finals on October 18.

SAN ANTONIO — It was so festive at Talk of the Town's recent second anniversary that owner Ben Montgomery (m) cast off his shirt—looking mighty sexy, too! Joining for a CRUISE CAMERA photo were Jerry (l) and Julie (r). Talk of the Town continues to be very much the talk of San Antonio . . . Talk of an appeal by the Unicorn Shop which had been found guilty on a ridiculous obscenity charge, is that owner Michael Davis will appeal on November 11 . . . The scheduled appeal over Sunset Boulevard being placed off-limits to military personnel has been postponed indefinitely . . . The Actors Theatre of San Antonio opens their 1983 season later this October at Bonham Exchange in a performance of The Murder of Tchaikovsky . . . And, SAGA's annual Gay Fiesta, originally scheduled for Halloween, has been inked for November 21 in MacArthur Park.

TATTLE TALE — Patrick and Donald have just installed butch new "luv ya blue," grey and rust carpeting in the Club Houston . . . CBC reminded HOT TEA that it's the same carpeting used in the Houston Oiler Football locker room . . . All that smoke at the Chicken Coop last weekend led "chicken" Jerry Jones to think the coop was on fire; but, alas, it was nothing more than Michael Stubblefield's misguided disco fog from nearby Twins seeping into the nearby rooster bistro . . . Houston's Fred and Pete are moving their Single Services a few doors up to the washateria at 1615 Westheimer early this October . . . Poppa Bear has announced that $1,100 was raised at last Sunday's RR Saloon benefit for Paul Guerrero . . . And, Jim Coronado of Dallas' Golden Unicorn is recovering from what has been described as a carpet bite on his neck. Hmmmmmm!

LOVESCOPE for October

FOR ALL SIGNS: As October begins, the Sun is in Libra placing an emphasis on partners and relationships. Venus, which rules love, begins the month in Libra and then, on October 25, goes into Scorpio. By tracking Venus' path through the sky, STARSCOPE can predict your October LOVESCOPE.

FULL MOON: The new month begins on a Full Moon, Saturday, October 2. The New Moon this month occurs two weeks later, on Saturday, October 16.

DAYLIGHT TIME: Daylight Savings Time will officially end on Halloween at 2:00am on Sunday morning, October 31, at which time Texans will set their clocks back an hour. "Spring ahead, fall back."

METEOR SHOWER: Next Saturday, October 9, you can see approximately ten meteors per hour after midnight from the Draconid meteor shower. The falling stars are remnants in space from the Giacobini-Zinner comet, which had passed through Earth's orbit.

LIBRA: (Sep 23 - Oct 23) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your own sign, making you romantically inclined and attractive to others. You should be at the peak of your popularity this month. The last week of October finds your romantic image seeking calmer waters from the public eye. Late October will be ideal for monetary favors.

SCORPIO: (Oct 24 - Nov 21) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your twelfth house, which keeps romance on the back burner and at times secretive. The last week of October finds Venus moving into your first house of personality, giving a solid boost in popularity. Your best time for romance this month comes during the last week. In the meantime, lay your private groundwork.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov 22 - Dec 21) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your eleventh house, which places the emphasis on social matters. Friendships can be most rewarding. During the last week of October, Venus will take your love life underground as you become more involved in private matters of the heart. A secret affair is even indicated.

GAPRIGORN: (Dec 22 - Jan 19) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your tenth house, which places the emphasis on career, with favors from superiors. Your admirable ability to deal with coworkers will also be keyed. Romance can even find you in your work. Late October becomes more social as friendships become more meaningful and parties yield surprise romantic encounters.

AQUARIUS: (Jan 20 - Feb 18) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your ninth house, which places the emphasis on long-distance romance. Travel can yield a new affair of the heart. The last week of October finds you more involved in work and receiving blessings from Venus in your career.

PISCES: (Feb 19 - Mar 20) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your eighth house, which rules sex. Obviously, the month of October is going to be lustful, as you experience little difficulty in satisfying your sexual fantasies. But, it's just sex. Do not confuse it with romance. During the last week of October, the emphasis shifts to escape and travel, where sincere love is apt.

ARIES: (Mar 21 - Apr 19) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your seventh house, which rules marriage. Without a doubt, now is the best time of the year for you to find a lifetime mate if you are single or deepen an existing relationship if you're already married. During the last week of the month, your sexual energy will begin its annual peak. This is one of your better love months.

TAURUS: (Apr 20 - May 20) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your sixth house, which rules your health and employment picture. Such areas should cause you little worry during the first three weeks of October. The last week of the month finds Venus moving into your seventh house of marriage, which signals a brief autumn cycle when you can deepen an existing relationship if you're already married or find a lifetime sweetheart if you're single.

GEMINI: (May 21 - Jun 21) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your fifth house of love affairs. No doubt about it, this October can find you busy dating as your romantic popularity is soaring. During the last week of October, the Venus tide shifts into your job to bless your career. Your health will also benefit from this Venus shift.

GANGER: (Jun 22 - Jul 22) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your fourth house of the home. Redecorating, finding a new home, dealing in real estate and enjoying an autumn romance in the warmth of your own home will all be blessed by Venus. The last week of October finds Venus moving into your house of love affairs, making dating and socializing plentiful and beneficial.

LEO: (Jul 23 - Aug 22) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your third house of short trips and communication. Love letters, short jaunts in search of romance and telephone calls from admirers will be the hallmark of October. During the last week of the month, you'll get a breather from all this traveling excitement as Venus will shift into your house of the home.

VIRGO: (Aug 23 - Sep 22) Venus, the planet which rules love, begins your October LOVESCOPE in your second house of money. If you've been thinking of investing, saving and budgeting, make your financial move this month. Wise purchases will be protected by Venus. The last week of the month is when Venus will shift into your third house, signalling increased long-distance matters of the heart.
