ALL ABOUT Health & Fitness BY MK

"Muscle Dysmorphia ...Bigorexia?"

On a busy Monday night at a local gym, you can see the "after five crowd" sweating off the weekend's excess worth of drugs, food and alcohol. In the weight training area, a pack of guys grunt and groan like women in labor. Some of these guys are in their 20's and are working out, not so much for their health, but for "the look." The look they are seeking dominates the pages of GQ and Men's Health. The first is the slender, sculpted, almost feminine look. The other, the pumped up, lean, chiseled, muscular and vascular look. Both of these images differ greatly from past male ideas of perfection. The burly, barrel-chested, even hairy men (hair?) not so long ago were all the rage. Think of John Wayne, Burt Lancaster and Steve McQueen from the 40's, 50's and 60's respectively. Since the 80's, however, men have been swayed to the other side. Calvin Klein underwear ads and the Soloflex guy commercials were the catalysts toward a more hairless, self-conscious physique. According to Daniel Harris' 1997 book, The Rise And Fall Of The Gay Culture, this new body aesthetic had grown partly out of trends in the gay community (like the Calvin Klein models and the Soloflex guy were into women. Not!) It's gay men that the world has to thank for the increase in physical fitness....really!

With the dawn of AIDS in the 80's, gay men began to equate a "slight" physique with sickness and so they flocked to the gym. The bigger the better...right? Well, this new definition of masculinity captivated Madison Avenue and voila! Marky Mark smirking, with his ripped abs in sexy underwear, was posted in magazines and billboards all over the world.

With that increased trend in physical fitness, and a society frowning on every centimeter of fat, researchers are discovering a new problem...Muscle Dysmorphia, a sort of reverse anorexia. The syndrome appears in athletes who, despite being dramatically muscular, are convinced that they are too small. Imagine a bodybuilder, 250 pounds of hard, solid, ripped muscle with 20 inch biceps and 6% body fat, horrified to take his shirt off because he fears he's out of shape. Weird, huh?

In the November issue of Psychosomatics, Dr. Harrison Pope of Harvard Medical School explains this disease.... "Anorexics perceive themselves as fat and overweight. Conversely, sufferers of muscle dysmorphia see themselves as pathetically small and weak." My concern is that our community, so muscle bound, might make up a good percentage of those affected. You know, come to think of it, I have heard large men in the gym, guys who really are huge, describe themselves as small and/or weak...I bet if you think about it, you may have also.

Muscle Dysmorphia is part of a larger class of body dysmorphic disorders (BDD) where people are preoccupied with the small imperfections in the appearance of their bodies. This causes lots of anxiety and impaired functioning. Weightlifters may become totally obsessed and quit their jobs, dump the boy friend and become hermit-like because they are embarrassed about their appearance or obsession on working out. There is a guy at our gym who was totally obsessed doing aerobics. Thin and lean to begin with, he was stairmastering his way into oblivion. He told me that he needed to get really lean. Not eating made his body start to eat his muscle for energy. The guy finally got help and "disappeared" for a while. Maybe he went to an inpatient clinic or was told to stay away from the gym by a psychiatrist. Another was so obsessed with his abs, he did nothing else for 2 months but abdominal exercises. Neglecting the rest of his body, he became unhappy with his appearance. These obsessive-compulsives usually have a history of other OCD's and/or eating disorders. "The other reason we may see muscle dysmorphia increase is the use and abuse of anabolic steroids," says Pope. Several individuals questioned in his study stated that, after seeing the results of steroids, they would never go back to drug-free weightlifting. With the prevalence of steroids in the gay community and our obsession with our bodies, I'm concerned that we, as gay men and women, may represent a large number of muscle dysmorphs now and more in the future.

Recently, researchers at Massachusetts General Hospital found that gay men face a special risk from eating disorders, particularly bulimia. Like women, gay men feel undue pressure to adhere to a lean look. It's easy for an individual to take "gay icon" images to an extreme. In Pope's study, about 10 percent of bodybuilders interviewed showed features of the disorder. This may not seem like a lot, yet if you take into account the large number of commercial gym establishments in the US, there may be as many as 100,000 cases. He also adds that steroid use is progressing to all time highs. "Approximately one million men have tried anabolic steroids; up to 6 percent have taken them by age 18...", says Pope. Here are the signs to watch for concerning muscle dysmorphia.

Individuals often exhibit three common behaviors: First, there is a preoccupation with the idea that his or her body is not lean or muscular enough. Second, the preoccupation must cause significant impairment of social, occupational or other important areas of functioning. This may mean backing out of social functions to work out, or blowing off plans with others because of the way you think you look, or don't. Third, the preoccupation must be on being too weak or small.

It's really important to mention here that the motivation to work out and exercise doesn't mean you suffer from muscle dysmorphia. Just because you're at the gym 6 days a week doesn't mean your obsessive/compulsive and you should head right out the door to a shrink. The difference is, it's an obsession, not just a desire to look and feel better. If you think you might lean toward the disorder muscle dysmorphia, look for a competent psychiatrist or other clinician who may help. I'm thinking the bigger question here is...why are we so interested in a big, muscular physique? Are we that unhappy with what's inside that we need to hide that fact with lots of muscle? What do you think?

"More Strength with Cross Training"

Lots of us work out on a regular basis, exercising and working really hard. We're in the gym every day, pumping and sweating, doing the same things over and over again.

Soon we become bored with our routines and inevitably find ourselves asking the proverbial question, "Why am I not getting any bigger?"

Well, the answer is no secret and lies in the question. Doing the same thing over and over again gains NOTHING! Variety, however, gets you everything! That's what cross training is all about.

The term cross training has little to do with the sneakers you wear and everything to do with what you actually do and the way you do it. The textbook definition goes like this; "The method of training in which a variety of exercises and changes in body positions or modes of exercise are utilized to positively affect compliance and motivation, and also stimulate additional strength gains or reduce injury risk." For our purposes, I'd like to focus on ways to build strength by giving you some tips to accomplish more in the gym.

All of us have a routine. The word itself conjures up boredom...ROUTINE! So if you're doing the same thing all the time, stop, or you'll never change your strength threshold. Why not change the sequence of the exercises you are already doing which will create a new overload in the muscle. Instead of doing flat bench presses, then inclines then declines, switch them around. The fatigue pattern that is ingrained in the motor units of your muscles will be changed, causing you to adapt to a new stimulus. In turn your muscles will grow!

Here's another tip... try changing the foundation exercises with different ones that work the same muscle group. The bench press can be replaced with push ups or dumbbell presses. The giant pull-over can be replaced with dumbbell pull-overs. Straight arm pullbacks can be changed to dumbbell one arm rows. Think about the exercises you are doing now and interchange them with exercises that work the same muscles, but use different modalities (machines, free weights, rubber tubing etc.). Cross training even refers to us changing the position of our bodies while performing an exercise. You'd be surprised how these small changes can result in big gains by recruiting different motor units. This holds true even if you are targeting the same muscle group and using similar joint actions. If you are going to try these tips, please do them in a safe way. When in doubt, ask your certified personal trainer to help.

Cross training can improve and stimulate the body toward strength building and muscle gain. For us to train in an optimum way, it's always important, at times, to provide a little shock to the body using variety. Variety is the name of the game and cross training is a great way of accomplishing it!

As Texas theatergoers, we have a wide array of options guaranteed to stimulate and entertain even the most discerning holiday audience. The current offerings run the gamut from traditional holiday productions to cutting-edge alternative theatre.

Theatre Arlington's production of Miracle on 34th Street, directed by B.J. Cleveland, ends its highly successful run this Sunday, December 20. Produced and sponsored by a grant from Target stores, this updated stage adaptation of Valentine Davies' classic epitomizes Christmas as it retells the now-familiar story of Kris Kringle, an old man who is hired to "play" Santa at Macy's. Curtain is at 8:00 p.m. tonight and tomorrow night, with 2:00 p.m. matinees this Saturday and Sunday plus a special farewell "Twilite" show this Sunday at 5:30 p.m. For tickets ($12) call the box office at (817)275-7661.

Dallas' Dechard Center Theater at St. Mark's School, 10600 Preston Road, will host An Evening of PIECES tonight, Friday, December 18 at 8:00 p.m. and tomorrow, Saturday, December 19 at 2:00 p.m. and at 8:00 p.m. An original and unusual staging of The Nutcracker-Act II, the performance will feature Alicia Adame, formerly of the Jose Greco Spanish Dance Company. For reservations and further information regarding PIECES, phone (972)601-9832.

Pocket Sandwich Theatre's Ebenezer Scrooge, a musical adaptation of Charles Dickens' classic story A Christmas Carol that spotlights the talents of 23 actors portraying sixty roles, is enjoying rave reviews at 5400 East Mockingbird Lane, Suite 119, in Dallas. 1998 marks the seventh consecutive year of the company's presentation of this Yuletide favorite which runs through December 23. Food and beverage service is available one and one half hours prior to showtime and tickets may be obtained by contacting the box office at (214)821-1860.

Plano Repertory Theatre concludes its 1998 season with its production of A Stage & Screen Christmas, running through Sunday, December 20. This original musical review is filled with memorable holiday songs which originated on the Broadway stage and on the silver screen. Funded in part by The City of Plano (a suburb of Dallas) and the Texas Commission on the Arts, PRT's performances are held at ArtCentre Theatre, 1028 15th Place in historic downtown Plano. For reservations, call (972)422-7460.

Fort Worth's favorite comedy duo, Joe Sears and Jaston Williams, return for a fifth appearance in their Yuletide classic, A Tuna Christmas, December 22-27 at the famed Nancy Lee and Perry R. Bass Performance Hall in downtown Fort Worth. Celebrate Christmas Texas-style as Casa Mañana presents the quick-change artists who portray all 22 residents of the fictional third smallest town in the Lone Star state. Some tickets are still available; contact the Casa box office at Metro (972)647-4700 for reservations.

Jaston Williams (left) as delightfully whiny Charlene Bumiller and Joe Sears (right) as her long suffering mother Bertha Bumiller in Casa Manana's holiday production of A Tuna Christmas.

Fort Worth Theatre presents Andrew Bergman's Social Security at Orchestra Hall, 4401 Trail Lake Drive, in performances through Sunday, December 20. This fast-paced comedy focuses on two grown sisters' attempt to cope with their elderly mother's new and lively romantic affair. Tickets ($7-10) are available by phone; dial (817)921-5300. This production is rated PG.

The San Antonio Symphony Pops Orchestra offers its production of Christmas Serenade tonight and tomorrow, December 18 and 19, at 8:00 p.m. and on Sunday, December 20 at 2:00 p.m. at the Majestic Theatre, 226 East Houston

Native Houstonian Rob Nash returns to Houston's Laff Stop for an evening of his stand-up comedy act, Make the Yuletide Gay, on Tuesday, December 22 at 8:00 p.m. Nash's latest musings will include classic bits like "Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer in 120 Seconds," "Star Trek, The Two Enterprises Meet," "Militant Homosexual" and newer material such as "What Would Jesus Do?" and "Tell Your Credit Department They're All Pre-Approved to Jump Up My A!" This will be Houston's last chance to catch his act before his spring jaunt Off-Broadway in hopes of taking New York by storm with two of his one-man plays, Freshman Year Sucks and Sophomore Slump. The Laff Stop is located at 1925-A West Gray in the River Oaks shopping center. Tickets are $13.50. For more information, call Mark Babbit at (713)524-2333.

Wrapped Up in the Presence of Reality

Being Gay on Christmas Day

It is Christmas. Mixed feelings hang like a drug store wreath on a trailer park door and cloud our vision like snow in a can. Excitement and dread walk arm in arm into our lives-usually uninvited-with all the empty promises of the holidays. Promises like it will be fun, our families will be close, we won't spend a lot of money (or we will have enough), time off will be for rest and cousin "High-hair" won't embarrass herself (or us) this year. Promises that we will be warm and safe, happy and grateful, charming and gracious.

Things have changed since Christmas first started. Christmas, in the beginning, was a holiday of working for and with others. Families and neighbors lived and worked together. They celebrated this season together. They did not have a Neiman Marcus or American Express. Thirteen children decorated a twelve foot tree they chopped down and dragged home. Today, some of us don't even want a dead tree in our nice, clean living room! But we do it anyway because it is tradition. The United States Census Bureau estimates that there are almost twenty three million people living alone in this country. Our idea of Christmas, however, still involves visions of serving twenty people around a twelve foot table with a turkey the size of a Volkswagon, not to mention children everywhere. How many children do you have? Uh-huh.

And isn't it an odd time to be gay? Odd as many of us are out and some of us are not. If we are involved in a relationship, we have to get the spouse's family rules down. Who knows and who doesn't? What to say and what not to say. Sleeping arrangements at the "in-laws" might create a problem if not a challenge. There is a forced togetherness and closeness during the holidays that creates a loss of free time and private time. The very nature of the holiday catapults us back to childhood. If we were not happy as children, then we may not feel happy now. Yet, the message is that this is the "happiest time of the year." There is almost a sense of obligation to feel happy despite lots of reasons not to be happy. Christmas is fraught with money problems, family problems, memories that are sad and loneliness for some. At the very time we want to feel our best, we may not.

Austin psychologist, Joan Offerle, Ph.D. says, "...depression is higher in the grey days of winter. There is less light and people are more likely to be suffering 'the sads' with less light." She goes on to say, "There is disappointment and disappointed expectations around the holidays. Not to mention there may already be a propensity towards depression." Dr. Offerle also expresses concern around the concept that more is better. "It is not," she says.

One could also find a clear comparison between being gay and Christmas Day. Think about it. Christmas is a minority among other days. One in 365. Many of us burst onto the scene with bright colors, sweet music and pretty packages. We love the magic. Hell, if you judge store front windows and where they come from we are the magic. We wait, patiently, with high expectations for equal rights, acceptance and fair treatment-not unlike milk gone sour-waiting for the fantasy that Santa is real. If he were real he'd be gay anyway-a big gay bear in red velvet and sash driving around in an ornolu carriage that flies like a fairy coach pulled by animals with names like "Prancer" and hanging out with tiny little nellie guys in green velvet and prissy, pointy little shoes.

We're still left out like rain soaked plastic reindeer when it comes to politics, housing and the military. And like those plastic reindeer, we still end up in the attic when it's all over.

December 18, 1964

BY C. LICHTENSTEIN

December 18 - December 24

The jolly Sun enters Capricorn this week heralding in a ho ho ho to any holiday festivities. Have you been naughty or nice, kids? Will you find a lump of coal or sugar in your stocking? For some of us, any old bulge is a cause for rejoicing. Happy holiday to all; may all your Christmases be pink.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 - December 22)

Mercenary gay Archers are less into mergers and more into acquisitions when the Sun enters practical Capricorn. Fortunes can be made now for those with the good sense to do their homework and find the right financial advisors. They say expensive things come in small holiday packages. In that case, either keep your eye on the bottom line or seek a well endowed benefactor.

CAPRICORN (December 23 - January 20)

Feisty Sun in your own sign magnifies your attributes, you lucky thing. Get Out there and show the world what you are capable of doing. Begin new projects and meet as many new people as possible. Strut your stuff in a big way. If that doesn't get the old juices going, "enhance" your appearance with a total fashion makeover. Red and green may be festive colors, but not for pants.

AQUARIUS (January 21 - February 19)

Prepare for an inspirational surge with the spiritual Sun in directioned Capricorn. Aqueerians benefit from various forms of relaxation whether it's yoga, meditation or even a religious retreat. If you're too rarin' to go to mellow out, try rolling up your sleeves and volunteering for a good gay community cause. Pile up the karmic points for the goddesses before 1999.

PISCES (February 20 - March 20) Social circles become an important life component with the festive Sun in Capricorn. Pink Fish will either turn the tide on the group dynamic or be swept up by it. You shine around others and feel comfortable wherever you hang your hat. That's great of course unless your hat is hanging in the re-elect Jesse Helms campaign headquarters. Then we'll need to talk, sweetheart.

ARIES (March 21 - April 20) Pioneering proud Rams mark the holiday week with a helpful push in their career. Inspirational Sun in professional Capricorn makes you an exemplary corporate admiral so find your target, set your course, ready your torpedoes and sink a destroyer or two. Don't get distracted, admiral. There will be plenty of time next month to relax with your seamen at the pier.

TAURUS (April 21 - May 21) Proud Bulls benefit from an exotic holiday when the Sun glides into Capricorn. Expand your horizons and see the world from a different angle. You never know what can happen and, more importantly, who you'll meet. If budgets have already been spent on holiday gifts, try escaping the mundane a bit closer to home. Who knows what wild life is lurking at the corner bar?

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21) Sun in repressed Capricorn casts a strobe into your intimate thoughts and fears. Breakthroughs are possible if you can unearth your demons and thereby conquer them. But if lying on the couch doesn't produce psychological results, use this magnificent energy for more physical pursuits. Gay Twins give new meaning to the term "over-stuffed chair." Pack the mistletoe.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23) Pink Crabs are happiest in a partnership rather than hauling their ragged claws across the floors of silent seas alone. Now with the optimistic Sun in practical Capricorn, you can find the harmonic balance you need in a relationship. Balance is the operative word here cousin; Life is not without its compromises. Alas, with every Christmas goodie comes a price tag.

LEO (July 24 - August 23) Put more oomph into your job with jolly Sun in compulsive Capricorn. Use this festive time to clear off your desk and tie up any loose ends before year end. Posing as Bob Cratchett is not without its rewards, either, since Venus is also traipsing through Capricorn now. Love lurks in every cubicle. Who knows who will be sitting on the xerox machine at the next office party?

VIRGO (August 24 - September 23) Jolly Sun in strategic Capricorn places queer Virgins in just the right parties this holiday season. Ring those bells, cousin; you are the leader of the pride parade... or is the conga line, you party animal you? For quieter types, this is the time of year to unleash your gay muse and create something fabulously festive for the new year. Is it bigger than an elf?

LIBRA (September 24 - October 23) Gay Libras find a place at the table for any relative who needs a place to park this holiday. That is very gracious of you. The optimistic Sun is in political Capricorn and you are anxious to draw the milk of human kindness out of anyone no matter how dry they seem. Give it a sip and if it's curdled, cut your losses and seek more affirming company. Hey, at least you gave it a try.

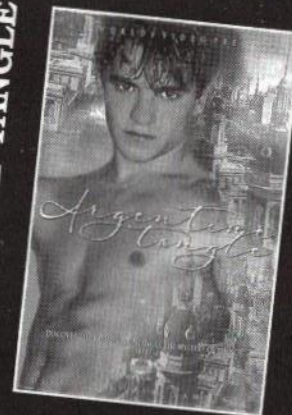

SCORPIO (October 24 - November 22) Intensely proud Scorps turn up the volume this holiday when the Sun enters Capricorn. Communications cannot be held back. You will be tempted to offer your opinion whether requested or not. Thankfully, this is a political-ly adept placement and anything you say will not be held against you. Choose something other than words to be held against you. Ho ho ho.

Ranting & Raving

Return to the Galleria

You may remember a column, some months ago, when I swore off the Galleria of Houston after a harrowing incident in which I became lost in the maze of over-priced stores and escaped to freedom through an emergency exit on the heels of a shoplifter. Against my better judgement, I returned this past weekend to face my nemesis, finish all of my holiday shopping and put to rest my, now ingrained, fear of mall shopping. Sadly, I managed to achieve none of my objectives.

Late Sunday afternoon, I strode confidently through the front doors of the Galleria III and tried, in vain, to enter the stream of shoppers moving quickly through the concourse. I tried nearly every means of joining the flow, from running alongside the other moving shoppers and hopping into traffic to feigning a stroke. Not one person would allow me to enter the endless stream of dazed buyers. Fortunately, a fight broke out a few moments later, between rival elves from Macy's and Saks Fifth Avenue, and the malay that ensued allowed me the break I needed.

I was finally caught up in the shopping ebb and truly happy to be a part of the bustle. I cruised along humming along to a tearful Muzak rendition of "Oh Holy Night," as sung by Loren Greene, when I stepped on the back of the shoe of the elderly woman in front of me, causing her to suffer what was commonly known in my Junior High School as a "flat." The cat-like speed with which the octogenarian spun around to assault me stunned me even worse than the assault itself. Within mere seconds, the aged goliath had me pinned against the giant brass doors of the Gucci store, a river of filthy language and threats spewing from her dentured mouth. An alert Gucci sales associate called all of the other employees to the doors and windows to watch. Embarrassed at the prospect of being beaten to death by a 112 year old woman, I struggled free from "Mrs. Claws" and jumped, mosh pit style, into the crowd which passed me overhead to an information booth where they dumped me behind the counter. After filling out a complete report of the incident, which the helpful mall "guide" used to sop up some sweet and sour sauce from her Master Wok combo lunch, I decided to attack this situation with every advantage in my favor. I rented a wheelchair.

One would think that a wheelchair, occupied by an allegedly incapacitated individual, would garner a modicum of pity in a busy shopping environment. Not true. On wheels, you are at the mercy of those around you. The flux of shoppers dragged me along with them, shoving me into and out of maternity stores and candle shops against my will. I had finally had enough when two small Asian children took control of the chair and headed me towards an escalator. I applied the handbrakes to no avail and turned around to see that the little demons had gotten up a fair amount of speed and then let go of the chair. Over my shoulder, I watched as they grew smaller in the distance, laughing and waving good-bye. When I turned again, I realized that I was sailing, at break-neck speed, across the surface of the immense indoor ice rink. As is so often the case when I am in a life or death situation, I prepared for the worst...and started screaming like a woman. As fate would have it, my wild ride came to an abrupt halt when the chair crashed into a Santa photo booth. I hear that the picture is absolutely priceless. Unfortunately it's evidence now, so I'll pass it around after the hearing.

CORNERSTONE CENTER CRUMBLING

Involvement Seems Not To Be A Priority, Community Involvement Severely Lacking

AUSTIN - With over one hundred gay and lesbian community centers in operation in every major city and most areas with any measurable concentration of gay and lesbian people, it is amazing that the center serving our state capital is in jeopardy of closing its doors. Austin's Cornerstone, a not-for-profit 501(c)(3) entity organized in 1996, faces serious problems if it is to continue providing much needed services to its clients into the new year. Donnie Young, the center's acting director and board secretary, told Jae Arkeen of TWT NEWS that, "We are still evaluating all of our options."

Following a letter of appeal sent to the community requesting applications for additional board members and $60,000 needed to keep the center up and running, Cornerstone received $100,000 in pledges but no response for board members. Young indicated that the center had suffered from a lack of significant financial support from the community in general and had lost $40,000 in anticipated revenue when the organization Club Skirt pulled out as a major supporter. Reasons for that organization's change of heart were unclear at press time, according to Arkeen.

The cost of the office space, the impending loss of tenants and the lack of funds to support a full-time executive director are also factors affecting the center's survival, problems that have plagued the organization since its inception. According to Young, there are approximately 1,900 supporters listed in their database, but currently only 174 are actively contributing time and money, a disappointing percentage of the estimated 50,000 plus gay men and lesbians in Travis County. MCC Austin Rev. Ken Martin, a founding member and former board chairperson of the Cornerstone Center, may have said it best in a recent interview when he asserted, "If the center ceases to exist, it won't be because of a lack of interest in the city...it seems that it's just not a priority."

MONTROSE COUNSELING CENTER CELEBRATES 20th ANNIVERSARY

Annual Event Recognizes Staff and Volunteers

HOUSTON - On December 6, The Montrose Counseling Center [MCC] hosted its annual open house and awards to celebrate twenty years of public service to gays and lesbians in Houston. Members of the community were on hand to congratulate MCC's Board of Directors, staff and volunteers. Pieces by local artists and clients whose work has supported the gay and transgendered community were on display during the proceedings. The yearly event gives the general public the opportunity to meet not only board members and staff, but also to become familiarized with the center's offices. MCC Executive Director Ann Robinson presented the Center's annual awards. Five-year service awards went to HIV case manager Christine Layco and lead case manager Robert Taylor. The Margaret DiJacklin Student of the Year Award was presented to Melissa Martin, who completed her internship for her Masters of Education in Counseling Psychology this past May. Martin is the center's new sexual assault/intimate partner violence specialist. The Kenneth E. Vance Employee of the Year Award was presented to Cervando Peña, while the Stella Scott Community Service Award, named after the mother of Bill Scott, the center's first clinical coordinator and one of its founders, was awarded to Jack Jackson. "Stella Scott put up the first $10,000 to open the center, so without her we wouldn't be here," explained Ms. Robinson. Jackson is well known for his fundraising efforts and as the center's appointed "leprechaun" during its annual fundraiser, Bringing in the Green.

The Montrose Counseling Center's mission is to provide outpatient services that include long and short-term adult counseling and psychotherapy for individual, family and group settings, in addition to case management services in six target programs: HIV/AIDS, Chemical Dependency, Life (which includes women's issues, the Lesbian Health Outreach Project, domestic violence, sexual assault, incest, hate crimes, coming out, relationships, self-esteem, transgender and bisexuality issues), Research, Education and Case Management.

MCC will host its annual Bringing In The Green Party at the Waldo Mansion on March 12, 1999. For more details on the Center's programs or events call at (713)529-0037.

CDC ISSUES NATIONAL STATS ON STD'S

Dallas Hosts 1998 Conference

DALLAS - The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) issued their report card on STD prevention at their 1998 National conference held last week in Dallas. The report was compiled by leading experts from across the country and dealt with the status of the STD epidemic in the U.S., as the group came together to design new strategies for combating the problem into the 21st century. According to the new data released, syphilis and gonorrhea have reached all-time lows nationally with the exception of a few cities in the South and Northeast which continue to battle high rates of both diseases. Fifteen cities shared the grim distinction of leading the nation in reported cases. Topping the list were Atlanta, Baltimore, Birmingham, Chicago, Detroit, Memphis, Milwaukee, Nashville, Newark, New Orleans, Norfolk, Oklahoma City, Richmond, St. Louis and Washington, D.C. The geographic data was intended to help identify areas where increased attention is to be focused in the next era.

"For far too long, our nation has accepted the consequences of STD's as an unavoidable reality," said Helene Gayle, M.D., Director of CDC's National Center for HIV, STD and Tuberculosis Prevention. "Fortunately, for the health of women and children, things are beginning to change. But we must gain momentum if we are serious about further reducing the still-staggering toll." According to Gayle, while gonorrhea and syphilis are now regionally isolated, other diseases, such as chlamydia, herpes and human papillomavirus (HPV), remain extremely widespread. The latest estimates indicate 15 million Americans become newly infected each year, yet they remain one of the most unrecognized health threats. Moreover, the link between HIV infection and other sexually transmitted diseases has already been established. The presence of other STD's significantly increases an individual's risk of acquiring and spreading HIV infection. Syphilis, chancroid, herpes, gonorrhea and chlamydia are believed to be fueling the sexual spread of the disease.

In one of his first national appearances as CDC Director, Jeffrey Koplan, M.D., M.P.H., announced that the key priority of his agency would be to improve national STD prevention and treatment efforts overall and, specifically, to eliminate syphilis in the U.S. "At no time in history have the prospects for eliminating syphilis been better," stressed Koplan. "We have a rare opportunity to add syphilis next to malaria and cholera on the short list of diseases we have beaten in the United States. But if we don't take the opportunity now, we will lose our chance." Given the disproportionate toll of the disease among African Americans, syphilis and its preventable consequences constitute one of the most glaring racial gaps in health status in this country. "The CDC is committed to eliminating this gap," added Koplan.

LGRL TRAINING DAY SUCCESSFUL

Date and Agenda Set

AUSTIN - State Representatives Glen Maxey and Harryette Ehrhardt and members of their staffs joined Kate Kendall, Executive Director of the National Center for Lesbian Rights, and Tony Esoldo of the Human Rights Campaign, as speakers at last Saturday's Lesbian Gay Rights Lobby [LGRL] Training Day. The purpose of the meeting was to dispense information and train volunteers regarding legislative issues facing our community in the upcoming session and to organize volunteers within each of their districts.

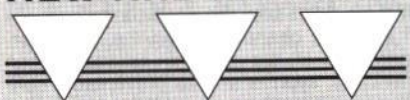

"The lobby training focused on orienting volunteers with the number of bills that will arise next session affecting gay and lesbian equal rights," said Dianne Hardy-Garcia, LGRL's Executive Director. She went on to say, "We presented LGRL's Legislative Agenda that includes strengthening hate crimes laws, fighting a potential adoption ban, seeking equality in education and employment, repeal of Texas' sodomy law and increased funding for AIDS and HIV."

Additionally, the meeting trained volunteers involved in LGRL's Legislative Matching Project, the statewide system that mobilizes districts within Texas to contact their legislator when a crucial bill affecting gay and lesbian rights arises.

LGRL's official Lesbian Gay Lobby Day is set for March 22 of next year and follows by one day "The March for our Families," set for March 21. Organizers are encouraging all gays and lesbians in Texas to travel to Austin on those two days and lobby their legislators.

According to LGRL Field Coordinator Elizabeth Brenner, "Although Lobby Training Day was a tremendous boost to our organizing efforts, we still need volunteers for Legislative Marching. Volunteers should be willing to organize the district they live in, but no previous experience is necessary. We will train all district organizers on ways to work with their legislators, whether they are Republican or Democrat, progressive or conservative." Contact Brenner at (512)474-5475 for additional information on LGRL.

'T was the night before Christmas and . . . all of a sudden it's New Year's Eve. The lyrics of The Artist will finally be in the past tense as we all party 'cause it will be 1999. I still can't believe it's here already.

We're all familiar with the TGRA and all the work it does in and for the rodeo community in Texas. The Diamond State Rodeo Association of Arkansas is the only chapter with its own clubhouse. The association will realize a major goal when it hosts the finals for the International Gay Rodeo Association event October 29-31, 1999 at Barton Coliseum in Little Rock. Mr. Miss and Ms royalty contests will be held and women's shows will be staged throughout the year leading up to the final extravaganza. They'll also have their New Year's Eve Party at The Expo Center in Little Rock. If you'd like information on the organization or any of their events, call their hotline at (501)562-4466.

Austin is Longhorn country and it's crawling with lesbians. I love the Capital City because of its' progressive attitude and laid-back atmosphere. It is unique among Texas towns because of the people and the layout of the city itself. A wonderful travel destination. I have always thought of the Rainbow Cattle Company as strictly a man's bar. When I arrived, I immediately felt at home and warmed up to its mix of men and women—a very comfortable and fun-filled atmosphere. Country music and line dancing; a true Texas experience like you'll find nowhere else but Austin. I caught up with Laurie and Maria having a great time and immediately tuned in on the fun they were having.

If you walk a block over from The Cattle Company, your next stop should be The Edge, known primarily as a mixed, eclectic club, but packed with women on the night I visited. Great drinks, great music, fun and friendly—definitely a must-see for women out partying. It doesn't matter that there isn't a club in Austin owned and operated by women. We're livin' large and takin' charge. Check it out.

Down on the bayou, Houston ladies have a variety of entertainment options. Out at Club Extreme, Mary and Candace invite you to dance the night away to a musical array that spans the gamut from country & western to high energy disco. Tomorrow night, Saturday, December 19, Extreme welcomes one of the Space City's favorite all-girl bands, Cowboy's Nightmare.

Houston club owner Marlene Beago has built herself a lesbian nightlife monopoly in the heart of the gayest neighborhood in town, Montrose. Her C&W dance hall, The Barn, and its Tuesday dance lessons with Southern Country are very popular. Around the corner,

WORD ON WOMEN

BY B. J. LARAY

Chances serves up the bluesy song stylings of Susan Masar every Friday, while Sheila Lennon hosts karaoke every Wednesday. Chances also hosts community fundraising variety shows on a regular basis. Sandwiched in between these two clubs is the 24-hour eatery and eclectic people-watching experience known as Charlie's.

Big D is about as close to heaven as a lesbian can get when it comes to entertainment from a female point of view. A word of 'thanks' is long overdue for the efforts that three clubs put out on a nightly (and daily) basis for the women of North Texas. Obviously, they exist primarily to provide music, fun, cocktails and a party atmosphere to the community, but they do so much more than that. For example, Sue Ellen's hosted a Bachelorette Auction recently to benefit the Walt Whitman School. Buddies II's "Thanks for Giving" show raised some much-needed funds for Razzle Dazzle Dallas and Jugs honored John Thomas during their Christmas show spectacular. As a lesbian in the community, I salute them all for the selfless work they do that sometimes goes unnoticed and unappreciated. Now on to the current festivities.

Kathy Jack and her crew at Sue Ellen's are there seven days a week, providing a little something for everyone. Cruisin' the Crossroads is very popular every Friday and Saturday, and Sunday is open mic night at the Cedar Springs landmark club. Of course, Thursday night is my personal favorite because of the top-notch shows that feature Kris and Candy, Linda McClain and Deborah Vial with Aspen Tyler and the spectacular Whitney Paige thrown in for good measure. There's no show scheduled for New Year's Eve but the cast told me they'd like nothing better than to give one to thank the community for their support during the year. So what's it going to be, Kathy?

Buddies II is also very busy these days trying to please their loyal and steady clientele. Even though the Ms. Fem and Ms. Butch Buddies Pageant has been postponed until February 26, they still has a fun-filled evening of entertainment. Val and Beth were the recipients of the Rita Dillard Award for their service to the community and to the club, and the reigning titleholders were on hand to enjoy all of the festivities. Just to let you know, Ms. Fem and Ms. Butch Buddies are married and expecting a child in the new year, so congratulations to Julie and Mary Beth Ingram. Once a month, Buddies will present Puss-n-Boots, a show under the direction of Jazzi Bleu and Misty filled with specialty performances to entertain the club's wild and crazy crowds. Their Customer Appreciation Party takes place this Sunday, December 20 with games and photos with Santa. Loads of surprises are in store for all.

Joe, Candy, Connie and Cozy are part of the crew that have made Jugs such a success over the years. Their commitment to hard work, dedication and customer service speaks for itself. Cozy and Connie set the benchmark for all the entertainers that have followed in their footsteps and are both entertaining and innovative. The crowds at Jugs love them and it's easy to understand why—class acts all the way. Cozy White emcees the super show at Jugs every Wednesday night. Her cast includes Dimples, Marcus, Jody, Ruby and D.J. Joe and Candy are hard at work getting back to the basics and bringing Jugs back as what it always was and always should be: an intimate friendly neighborhood bar that has stood the test of time over the years. Hopefully, everything will be in place for this weekend, so make plans to be on hand and witness this spectacular event for the lesbian community and also celebrate New Year's Eve in the invigorating atmosphere of a legendary Dallas landmark.

All this talk about partying and New Year's Eve makes me realize that it's important for me to emphasize the obvious. Play it safe and play it smart. Designate a driver and have a great time. I know I'll be jammin' and hope to see you out and about as we ring in the new year. Be careful and have a happy holiday.

All I want for Christmas is a new Blondie album...ok, we'll settle for it in the new year then. It's been sixteen years since there's been a new Blondie album; but, come early '99, salivating fans will be able to make a mad dash to the racks and snatch up No Exit. The new album, the seventh of new Blondie material, was produced by Craig Leon, who actually worked on their first album with legendary producer Richard Gottherer.

Blondie was undoubtedly the greatest pop band of the New Wave/Punk era. They were pop because you can't really describe them as new wave or punk, or funk, or disco for that matter. The band stood alone, doing whatever interested them—including the first rock/reggae and rock/disco-always resisting classification. Whatever they did, it all came out sounding great and Blondie remains one of the biggest hit-making bands of our time. Today, Blondie is as elusive, uncategorizable and ironic as ever.

Hearing No Exit is really a great surprise. It is a perfect evolution for the band, in spite of the fact that they weren't even together for so many years. The indigenous elements are still there: that perfect, propulsive beat; Debbie's unmistakable voice, atmospheric keyboards, sometimes lush, sometimes eerie; and brilliantly articulated guitar lines that never approach cliché. The songs are catchy, instantly memorable, yet full of subtleties that continue to grow on you with each listen. It's just as good as ever!

Blondie was never a novelty act, but even their hits showed a remarkable gift for transcending genres and fusing different moods and styles. Now, as bonafide adults, virtuoso players and writers, they've developed some even more startling hybrids. No Exit is a high-powered monster mash, a Transylvanian rap duel between Debbie and Coolio that's the musical equivalent of Mystery Science Theater 3000. "Nothing But the Real Girl" is wild ska romp, sort of Bela Lugosi meets the Skatalites. Debbie offers cool and kooky chanteuse moves ala Jazz Passengers in "Boom Boom in the Zoom Zoom Room." "Night Wind Sent" is a haunting, delicate love song, that's all beauty and jungle drums meet electronic rhythms, creating exotic, rhapsodic, moody dance music on "Forgive And Forget."

The album's first single is entitled "Maria," a sexy pop anthem in the Blondiesque tradition, dynamic but sweep, sensual but with a streak of wicked wit, unique but utterly contagious. The great news about "Maria," is that there are glorious dance mixes by Soul Solution and Talvin Singh. Those who like it on the more Circuit anthem tip will surely go off for the Soul Solution mix, while the more headstrong listener will go for Talvin's drum & bass flavored rendition.

Regardless, this is a classic Blondie album, but in even better ways. The band takes itself less seriously, so the songs are even wittier. And two of the good things about getting older are that, if you play your cards right, you can get smarter and more skilled. Blondie holds a winning hand with No Exit.

Ok, it's time again to get those lists together so we can get that Top 20 for the year-end issue. So here's how it goes. Anyone who feels the need can fax or e-mail (e-mail is preferred) your Top 10 songs for 1998 to (212)219-2050 (attn. Jimmy Smith) or simply e-mail smithjimmy@hotmail.com. So get busy, get it all going, and most of all, get your booty to a dance floor and release! And that's Dance Music THIS WEEK IN TEXAS.

NOT THE SOUNDS OF CHRISTMAS Modulations: Cinema for the Ear DELVES INTO THE WILD WORLD OF ELECTRONICA MUSIC

It's the most wonderful time of the year! The time of year when no one dies unattractively or unloved at the movies, and all films are interchangeable in case the one you went to the multiplex to see happens to be sold out (even if it is showing three times an hour every hour). How refreshing it was to see the very unique Modulations pop up on the schedule board. Granted, this is not exactly the movie I'd go to see to warm up for the office Christmas party, but for the nihilistic, believe-in-nothing types out there, you get a Christmas present after all, it's your reprieve from the omnipresent Whitney vs. Mariah Prince Of Egypt duet.

Modulations is a brisk, if esoteric, tour of Electronica, the style of music our lady Madonna recently appropriated for her brilliant "I'm just a stay-at-home mom" best selling album. Electronica is also known as House, Acid House, Trip Hop, Jungle and Dance in its various forms. Subtitled "Cinema for the Ear," director Lara Lee's documentary seeks to create a visual interpretation of the aural experience of the music. In explaining the genesis of the musical styles, she conveys social commentary on the youth that dance blindly at the all night raves where the music is so popular. Dancing all night can be a spiritual experience, very freeing, but it can also grow into a numbing emotionless blur of images. Modulations explains it all very well. It's full of interviews with "pioneers" and performance clips, but ultimately suffers from what I see as the problem with the musical style in general, it seems to be lacking a soul. Like I said, "Hey, Nihilists out there, this one's for you!"

Right off the bat, I liked the people interviewed in this movie. Cross-dresser Genesis P. Orridge, with his pixie bottle-blond hair and silver-capped front teeth spoke with a simple clipped British accent about how the non-stop rhythm and melody of disco collaborated with the pounding of the drum machine to create a new type of beat driven music that responded to the isolation young people were feeling. Catch her, drag queen with a Ph.D.... What's so amazing is she is right. Through interviews with a who's who of DJ's and mixmasters, filmmaker Lee shows how people like Frankie Knuckles, a gay music maven, created the new sound at The Warehouse, a club in Chicago he spun at after they closed the Continental Baths in NYC. By taking a drumbeat and overlaying samples of various melodies lifted from just about anywhere, Knuckles spun a pulsing mix whose name was shortened from Warehouse music to just plain 'House music. Hip Hop samplers and gay music clubs, always on the cutting edge, quickly adopted the format and from there it began to splinter.

U.K. techno duo, Autechre, is featured in Lara Lee's Modulations.

Interviews range from the absurd to the ideal. People with 'names' like Kid Koala and LTJ Bukem talk alongside famous futurist Alvin Toffler and the inventor of the first commercial synthesizer Robert Moog. All talk about how Electronica is a music created out of electronic instruments. But if electricity is art, do machines have souls? P. Orridge states "In music, nothing is new...you are just putting two sounds together to create a third." They all seem guided by the desire to go towards something they can't define yet. P. Orridge says, "When in doubt, make no sense." I admire their willingness.

Others in the film are more interested in commenting on the atmosphere of the kids dancing at the raves, the people who come to lose themselves in the auditory wash of noise that is Electronica. One DJ fascinated me by pointing out that these kids have no historical references, all they care about are which shoes are cool, and what they got pierced this week. The significance of the music that is being sampled is completely lost on them. This DJ branded the people buying his product a "passive consumer culture." This movie definitely made me think.

The raves and the emotional ecstatic state of the dancers get ample coverage in this documentary. Some would argue that shutting down the underground raves is a violation of free speech. What Lee didn't cover well, I feel, is the fact that the ecstatic state is often induced by Ecstasy, GHB, Special K and a host of other illegal drugs. These kids are flocking to these parties to escape their mundane lives of school, work, and parents and leaving their good sense checked at the door. Lee short-changes the fact that all the pulsing music and psychedelic lighting in the world won't consistently induce the trance state the revelers seek. Maybe her interviewees are telling their truths but I think she herself has omitted a central one.

When not serving up the social commentary, Lee attempts to create the visual equivalent to the hyper-hypnotic bass line that drives the ravers. Using quick cuts, multiple filters and a wide range of graduate school film tricks, she generally succeeds in creating something that is like most of the music it accompanies. Unfortunately, that means it's interesting on some levels, but it is both derivative and recycled at once. Everything appears to have been lifted from somewhere else. She's simply put two images together to create a third.

Modulations is far from being your standard fare for the holidays...but whoever said we all had to eat a turkey dinner. Some people just celebrate a little differently. All night raves and drug-induced bliss leave many of the people in this movie hiding behind dark glasses, just a little seemingly afraid of the sunlight. Well, if you only venture out after the glare of the bright Texas day, Modulations might just be for you. It may not have a soul, but at least it's got a good beat and it's easy to dance to.

Modulations is currently playing at Landmark's Greenway Three Theater in Houston. Call the theater at (713)626-0402 for showtimes.

SAN ANTONIO TEA - The Annex proudly hosts the Chain Of Command's Christmas Extravaganza this Saturday, December 19. You can be sure that the guys are on Santa's naughty list, which will undoubtedly make for an exciting evening. Complete details about the event are available by calling the club. All of the money raised will benefit local charities and you're sure to find generous folks, like Gilbert, Jason, Dan and Annex manager Ken [above, l-r.] dishing it out to help those in need. The club is busily gearing up for a fantastic New Year's Eve celebration—a party worthy of the last year in this millennium—don't miss it....

Zebra'z is the perfect place to pick up holiday gifts for everyone on your list. Cheerful salespeople, like new employee Jim [left,] will help you find everything from Masterbeat and Centaur CDs to beautiful tree ornaments, books and calendars for 1999. Right now, most of the famous-maker clothing in stock is being sold at up to 60% off along with super sale prices on nearly everything in the store....

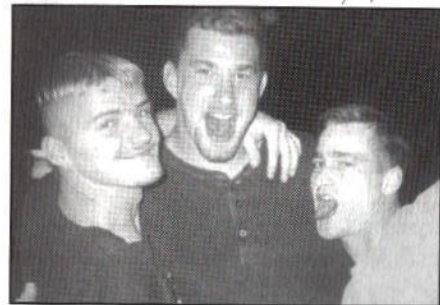

Pegasus, home to lots of cuties like Chris and manager Todd [right, l-r] and the Silver Dollar Saloon wish everyone a very happy holiday season. The Silver Dollar will host a special benefit for Krissie's Kids on Sunday, December 20 at 9:00 P.M. Special guests for the event will include Saint divas Shady Lady, Pauletta Leigh and Erica Andrews. All of the proceeds will benefit one of River City's most deserving charities. Both clubs will feature hot and happening New Year's Eve soirees come year end, for more information call Pegasus at (210)299-4222 or The Dollar at (210)227-2623....

The Bonham Exchange is preparing for one of its biggest parties of the year—New Year's Eve. This 17th annual fete will boast a lavish buffet, stunning go-go boys, a champagne toast at midnight and party favors. You may still book your own holiday parties at The Bonham. Simply call Eva at the club and let her take care of all of the details. Our CRUISE CAMERA found Bonham staffers Veronica and Ilse [right, l-r] slaving away during a recent Monday talent night. Coming December 28, the talent winners from the past 12 months will compete on the club's main dance floor, for the New Face in the Place contest with hostess and MC Shante' Whitney. For more info on this contest, booking holiday parties, or the New Year's Eve extravaganza, call Eva at (210)271-3811 ext. 103....

San Antonio's newest dance club has opened its doors and everyone is checking out the new kid on the block. Myth, staffed by some of the city's sexiest guys like Kyle, Naren and Brad [above, l-r,] features a circuit party atmosphere every night of the week. Great lights, incredible sound, super low drink prices and talented DJs make it a hangout that will definitely keep you coming back for more. Each Wednesday, the club features a talent contest hosted by the inimitable Autumn Summers with cash prizes to the lucky winners. Guests 18 years of age and older are welcome every night of the week. Check out this great new club, you won't be disappointed....

The Saint is decked out in all of its holiday finery including hardworking elves like newest bartender Jeff [right] and a cast beyond compare.

This Sunday, they welcome legendary diva Tasha Kohl and Houston dancin' machine Chevelle Brooks to their special Christmas Super Show. Gorgeous male dancers will shake their packages for the Sunday crowd from 10:00 p.m. 'til midnight. Coming in January, the legendary queen of the talent show scene, Pauletta Leigh, will host the Newcomer of the Year Pageant. The evening will feature the 12 monthly finalists from the past year competing for cash prizes and a chance to wear the coveted crown. This is always a heated and exciting contest, make sure to mark it in your 1999 calendar!

AUSTINTEACIOUS - He's making a list and checking it twice, gonna find who naughty and nice. We all know who we are but Santa is still being faked out. If you don't rat on us, we won't rat on you. That way we all still get great stuff from the guy in the sleigh....

Charlie's is still buzzing after the incredible show presented last Sunday by goddess Lauren Taylor. As the reigning Miss Gay USofA, she travels the country to perform but she always comes home to Charlie's. Carmella Marcella Garcia and Michelle Marco rounded out the star-studded spectacle. Glamour always abounds when the super Sunday show is the topic. Michael [left, l] is the man to talk to every Tuesday night at beer bust. He pours the beer, so we love him. Of course, by now we have all heard about Bradley and Rob being caught in the walk-in cooler together. Thursday night hostess Nacha Type was the one to walk in on the unveiling and she is still in shock. OK, go ahead and shock us. We dare you to....

Dick's Deja Disco wants to wish a very happy birthday to Dale Jordan. Although it is rude to tell your mother's age, Momma turned 40 this week. In honor of the occasion, the bar will be featuring Grape Nehi as the weekend special beverage. The grapes will not be naked but the dancer boys will be close. We don't know where he rounds up these young men but from what we've seen, Momma finds the best of the best. Last week's "Back to the Crossing" party was a festive blast from the past. Former DJ Richard showed us all why he was the man to hear spinning in the glory days of the original "get down and get nasty" bar. Thanks to Dick's for bringing back all those fun memories....

The Forum is thrilled to announce the official Austin release party for the Fire Island CD. Tonight is the night when special DJ Jamie J. from San Francisco will give this hot dance mix its premiere spin. Be sure to stop in for the Red and Green dance party on Saturday night. Party mogul Ben Parsley is sure to give us another circuit party to remember. We know if the two adorable boys [right] are around, there will be something to remember, especially if they let us watch. The club wants to wish a hearty "welcome back" to bartender Eli. Make sure to say hi and welcome him home....

Rainbow Cattle Company presented a magical night for the holiday season. The Austin Baptist Women had their 13th annual Christmas show and was it ever a lulu. Between the big hair, the glamour and the all out camp, these fine men and their angels once again raised a big pile of money for charity. If you want to learn to dance, stop in on Tuesday nights for the free dance lessons. From beginners to advanced, they have a class to help you learn to boot scoot. They also teach line dancing. They know them all, from the Tush-Push and the Matador to the Earthquake. Come on out and give it a try...it's so much fun....

Bout Time announces a momentous occasion. This Saturday night, the Capitol City Queens and The Royal "We" are joining forces to present a fabulous benefit. All proceeds will be donated to charity; that is always the way our northside philanthropists do it. Last weekend, the T.G.R.A. carnival and show raised over $700! Once again, we have to congratulate such efforts for such a worthy cause....

Things are really hopping over at Splash Video Bar lately. Their month long Christmas drink special is drawing huge crowds of sexy men like these two [left]. Check out Splash's ad on page 5 for more info. This Sunday is a benefit show for Austin's SPCA and then Tuesday is Murrah's special Christmas show, be sure not to miss them. Stop by and say hi to Mike and Dave, Splash's newest additions to the staff....

The Mr. Gay Austin 1999 Contest is coming soon! Promoter Tim Caswell announces the prestigious contest will be January 12th. Please contact Caswell Productions @ 494-0294 for applications and information. The contest benefits Out Youth Austin.

DALLAS TEA - Big D is decked out for the holidays with every bar and business decorated to the nines with festive seasonal embellishments. "Ho, Ho, Ho" was the message conveyed by the lovely trio [above] we spotted at JR.'s preparing for Wanda's benefit show for the Sam Houston School last night. JR.'s is the perfect spot to pause and refresh while making your rounds of holiday shopping-the grill serves lunch until 4:00 p.m. daily....

Sue Ellen's Thursday night cast show presents the finest in entertainment by some of Texas' most talented women and women wannabees. Check out their line up of drink specials and top-notch talent that make the club one of Dallas' favorites....

You'll see studs like sexy Tim Davis [right], along with a dude named Fred on the microphone, every Friday when Sweet Savage hosts Big Daddy's male strip contests beginning at midnight. One hundred dollars is up for grabs and cheap beer and well drinks combine to guarantee a "freakin' fabulous" experience....

Dallas Eagle makes your season bright this Sunday, December 20 when they host their Customer Appreciation Celebration. Matt, Mark and the staff invite everyone out for an evening of camaraderie and holiday cheer-their way of thanking you, their loyal patrons, for all your support during 1998. See you there....

That same night, Sunday, December 20, the Round-Up honors special guest Heda Quote with their Hard Candy Christmas show beginning at 7:00 p.m. Emcees Tessie and Wayne Smith head up an all-star roster of some of Big D's top talent. You don't want to miss a minute of the holiday fun. Don't forget, The Parlor opens at 3:00 p.m. daily, so you can get an early start on the action....

There's always a party going on at Zippers and across the street at Crews Inn. That's where we caught up with good looking customers Red Long and Richard Ruiz [above, l-r] on a recent journey down Fun Fitzhugh. If you like men-and lots of them-these are the clubs for you!...

On New Year's Eve, The Brick invites you to "Journey to Fantasia" with the music of Ric Herrington and non-stop partying into 1999 at the recently-reopened hot spot on Maple Avenue. The action will last until

HOUSTON TEA - 'Tis the season to be jolly and nothing could be holli-jollier than JR's Customer Appreciation Christmas Party tomorrow night. As the club says "thank you" to all of their valued patrons, the celebration will be highlighted by a traditional toast from 8:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m., lots of hot hard-bodied male dancers and an opportunity to have your picture taken with Sexy Santa. New Year's Eve at JR's is sure to be real blowout. Their list of festive trimmings includes lots of party favors, a champagne toast at midnight, balloon drops, hard-bodied male dancers, a video countdown with deejay Scott Underwood [right] and, most importantly, no cover. Like the song says, "Tonight, we're gonna party like it's 1999!"...

It may be chilly outside, but the holiday season party action at the Montrose Mining Company is hotter than ever. On Saturdays and Sundays, the club opens at 1:00 p.m. with a wide variety of well drink and long-neck specials all day long. The club's friendly staff guarantees that you'll enjoy great music and good times at their New Year's Eve extravaganza. They'll have party favors a-plenty, free admission and big, buff male dancers to make sure that you start 1999 with an unforgettable party experience....

This Sunday, December 20, emcee Jenny Kraiggg welcomes Simply Divine and Lucia to Toyz' Super Show. Next Thursday's Christmas Eve Papi Chulo Contest brings you the club's prettiest packages with holiday hostess Monique Johnson and her plentiful parade of stocking stuffers. This Monday, December 21, Pacific Street is once again hosting the Citywide Bartenders' Christmas Party with no cover for bar and restaurant employees. In addition to your favorite drinkslingers enjoying some time on the other side of the bar, this event will feature a CD release party for deejay Michael Fierman's Fire Island Classics. P.S. will be open Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, so you can spread some cheer with handsome hunks like John and Laran [below] and dance off all those extra holiday goodies....

If you're still looking for the perfect seasonal ensemble, get on over to Basic Brothers. Their amazing array of shirts, sweaters and clubwear definitely includes some great gifts for yourself or that someone special. Manager Ken Claude and his staff have everything you need to shine like a tree-topper star....

Rich's is all geared up for its "Diva Wonderland" show next Wednesday, December 23. This star-studded revue will feature a host of local favorites and legendary performers. Popular bartender Skip [right] will be there, ready and waiting to serve your favorite holiday spirits. If you're wondering what to do New Year's Eve, you should make plans to be at Rich's "Return of 54" blowout starring disco diva Viola Wills. Tickets are on sale at Jove Clubwear, Basic Brothers, Lobo, copy.com, La Strada and the club....

Picasso is painting a picture of holiday happiness all over Shepard Plaza. Their weekend wrap-up features the Picasso Play Girls every Sunday at 10:00 p.m. Every Wednesday and Friday, the club serves up a delicious free buffet from 6:00 p.m.-8:00 p.m. Wednesday evenings also feature a sizzling amateur strip contest hosted by Miss Gay USofA Lauren Taylor. The club will soon welcome another tasty nightspot to Richmond Ave. Watch this column for more details on the grand opening of the sure-to-be delicious Guava Lamp....

Nighthawks is well-known for its manly events and studly staffers like Stan and Ed [above, l-r]. This Sunday, December 20, the club hosts the Grin 'N Bear It Bear of the Year Contest with Houston's hairiest hunks competing for a trip to San Francisco. The fur will fly at 9:00 p.m. Lots of fun-filled functions like this one and steamy cruise action equal an absolutely outrageous party combination....

Tomorrow night, Saturday, December 19, the Midtowne Spa presents their monthly Garage Party. This evening of levi and leather is the place to find out who's naughty and nice. There's no need to spend New Year's Eve alone when you can start 1999 with a bang at the Spa. Make your reservations to be there now....

This weekend, The Outpost is bringing you a double dose of holiday cheer. Today (December 18), the club is having an all-day customer appreciation party followed by "Dairy Christmas and Happy Moo Year" starring the Texas Cowgurlz tomorrow, Saturday, December 19. Proceeds benefit the Q-Patrol.

MODELS / ESCORTS

TWT POLICY

Because prostitution is illegal in Texas, state law prohibits the placement in this category of any such ads. Therefore, TWT policy stipulates that we will not and cannot knowingly accept any advertisements suggesting solicitation. It's the law. Also, state law prohibits non-licensed massage therapists from using terms such as "massage," "Swedish," "acupressure," "Shiatsu," "reflexology," "body rub," "back rub," "body massage" or any term which indicates bodily contact.
