Letters To The Editor

Dallas Reader Extols The Virtues Of Phil Johnson's "The Gay Century" And The Importance Of Keeping Gay History Alive

Dear TWT,

I wanted to let you know how much I agree with the statement, on page 13 of your December 9th issue, that Phil Johnson is "a treasure to the gay community..." I have appreciated his aeries on the last years and I, of course, understood his article on World War II. I lived through it also and had the same experiences (I was 9 at the time) of shortages, and am in agreement that the war was important to show Hitler and the world that this nation would stop evil.

I don't know what people in those young days of my life could have done to make me understand the history I was experiencing. It would be great just to have known to save my comic books, etc. as they would be very valuable today. But also to keep a record of my feelings about sex, etc. Of course, since it was a taboo subject, it might have been dangerous to do so and that is why so many early leader/pioneers had so few pictures for us to have now. So what can we say to young men and women who are homosexual today? Please keep you material, so that it will be available to jog your memory later and so that the next generations may have a record of their history.

While it is great to honor those at "Stonewall" in New York, it is lousy history to say that our movement started then, since it started in 1950. The men and women who acted bravely then deserve credit for what they did. Most of us have not made any sacrifices for the benefits that they did not have then but that we have now. Most states have gotten rid of their anti-sodomy laws. Most news media people are now gay-friendly and they were very hateful back then, just as newspapers in the south were so hateful to blacks when their civil rights movement needed help in the 50's and 60's.

So, that is the atmosphere that Phil is introducing to us, and why we need gay/lesbian libraries/archives to preserve our history, just as much as we need publications like yours to record it. Organizations like Lambda Legal Service Members and Legal Defense Network help us make our history and gay centers like the one in Dallas, as well as most major cities, now serve us.

We must not allow ourselves to waste time arguing and fighting among ourselves over minor issues. There are more important problems than what words we use to call ourselves. Queer, gay, homosexual, dyke, we have a right to be gay and pro-life as well as pro-choice and we CAN have a march in Washington and marches in each state and we can be both Atheists and Catholics and Republicans and Democrats. We must each work on the part of our "battle" for rights and we should all be working together to help our community at the same time that we are getting entertainment. Some publications must serve special issues, some the nation, some the local community, that is why we are so strong and why we are going to win our equal rights, not our special rights. We must acknowledge our parents, friends and non-gay co-workers who have helped us, who vote for politicians who are gay-friendly and add to our strength in numbers, in morale and in friendship.

Thanks for your work and, of course, for articles like those by Phil Johnson.

Sincerely,
Billy Glover

ALL ABOUT HEALTH & FITNESS

"HEALTHY MIND-HEALTHY BODY"
BY M. KASTEN

This is the last in my series of columns about the connection between the mind and the body. We have found that the mind can be a powerful controller of the body. It can make the body do unbelievable things, and can also talk us out of reaching our potential goals by having past childhood experiences infect our adult experiences.

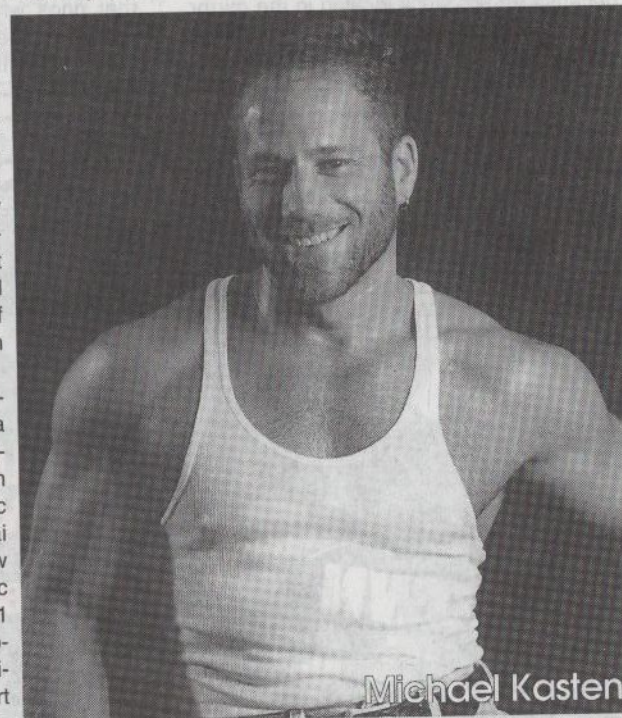

This is also the third time I am writing about a recent mental condition called muscle dysmorphia. This mental disease drives some body builders to become obsessive and compulsive about their looks. They may need to be treated with drugs if this condition interferes with their day-to-day events.

Body Dysmorphia is a condition characterized by a preoccupation with an imagined or slight defect in appearance, said Dr. Eric Hollander of Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York. "Body dysmorphic disorder affects probably 1 to 2 percent of the U.S. population. In men, this condition is called 'bigorexia', sort of the opposite of anorexia.

Anorexics think they are too fat, no matter how thin they get. Bigorexics think they are too small, no matter how big they get. The obsession becomes so severe that they will continue to exercise even with a dislocated shoulder".

Another good example is Jack. Jack is a 34-year-old attractive gay man. He is tall, thin and stately. He believes he is horribly ugly. Tormented constantly by his own negative self-image, he sees his large nose, big jaw, and crooked lips, unbalanced ears and small chest as single parts of a larger problem. Jack doesn't leave his house unless he is completely covered with some kind of clothing. Every inch of his skin, including his face is hidden from view. With a baseball cap and sunglasses he may venture out once a day. Hopefully no one will see (what he believes) is his disfigured face and body. When friends want to come over or take him out, he declines. Sadly, Jack was found one morning by his cleaning lady. Unconscious and in a pool of blood, Jack had slit his wrists while in the bathtub. If not for the cleaning lady he would have surely succeeded in ending his disturbed life, but he was able to be saved and got the help he needed.

People who have BDD not only dislike some aspect of their appearance, they are preoccupied with it. They worry a lot. They would like to worry less, but they cannot. Many admit they are obsessed. Worries about their looks cause them significant emotional distress and interfere with their everyday life. No one would know just how unhappy they are. I had a friend that had some slight facial blemishes and complained about his ears being different sizes. He was always late for work because he got stuck looking in the mirror every morning, checking every millimeter of his face. He missed social engagements, parties and dinner dates because he thought he looked so bad, people wouldn't want to see him. Yet, my friend had many friends and did his job well. When BDD is severe, friendships, intimate relationships and work disintegrate.

Recently there has been some serious research on this condition and, while it is not yet classified as a disease, the next annual American Psychiatric Association's Diagnostic and Statistical Manual will describe the condition. Dr. Hollander believes that the disease occurs on the chemical level. "An exaggerated sense that something doesn't look right seems to have origins in brain chemistry. One of the roles of Serotonin (a brain chemical) seems to be turning off brain processes that signal when things don't fit our conceived notions," Hollander said. "If Serotonin levels are abnormally low, however, it can't turn off the mental alarm bell that rings when things don't seem right. Clomipramine, a prescribed anti-depressant, helps the brain raise Serotonin levels by interfering with the body's ability to destroy the chemical," he said.

At the Bio-Behavioral Institute in great Neck, New York, Fugen Neziroglu has been treating people with body dysmorphia with great success. Neziroglu believes that medication alone cannot relieve all of the symptoms and that therapy is needed to retrain habits and thought patterns needed to make improvements long-lasting. It's hard to tell who has BDD and who does not. Bodybuilders pay very close attention to what they eat, how much they exercise and where they fall short of their own goals. I guess it would be fair to say that if it interferes with your ability to be social or work, then you may have a problem.

I am concerned that, as gay men, we are overly concerned with our looks. True? A muscular, lean body is the revered form these days. Some gay men even think it's imperative, for living and playing in the year 2000, to portray a vision of health by exhibiting lots of muscle. As HIV has decimated the physical stature of many, the use of (and the abuse of) Anabolic Steroids has become commonplace in our culture. Every 6 months I see more and more gay men using Steroids to achieve a lean, mean fighting machine body. Look around the gym and you will see an overabundance of chemically enhanced muscle. So, having said that, I have great concern that we, as a culture, will be among the most affected by BDD. Being so concerned with our "looks" perhaps predisposes us to BDD. This is not a rare disease. Secrecy and shame are part of the reason it goes unrecognized. If any of this sounds familiar to you, see a licensed mental health professional or e-mail me and I will give you a referral. I wish the best for you in your quest for the best for yourself!

For the past several years, we've often speculated about dance music and how it will get to the next level. Indeed, we have even tried to figure out what the next level would be. There have been some dance records that have managed to cross over to radio and these have certainly done wonders for dance music in general. But for the most part, and with few exceptions, these records have been dance mixes of music from artists who have already attained their stature in other genres of music. Over and over, we have said that it was going to take a true dance artist—one born in the genre—to give the masses something they could sink their teeth into before we could move forward. Many have said that our issue has been that of credibility.

Back in the summer of 1996, I wrote a column illustrating the credibility of certain talented remixer/producers of the time. I remember wondering what JOSH WINK's "Higher State Of Consciousness" would sound like if it were played by the LONDON PHILHARMONIC. I remember comparing some of the modern day electronica producers to the likes of BACH. Just as Bach was ridiculed by the establishment of his day for his unconventional style and ornate arrangements, the establishment of today has often snubbed it's nose at much of what has come out of the electronica scene. They often regard it simply as quantized noise. It's common knowledge that there are too many so-called producers out there, many of whom only use their computers for email and surfing the internet and producing 'dance music'.

Enter WILLIAM ORBIT. He's been working at it for a while, always doing his own thing in his own way. Touted for his work with BLUR, BETH ORTON and a host of others before them, Orbit hit big last year in the mainstream with his work on MADONNA's RAY OF LIGHT album. And he's about to shock the world with his album PIECES IN A MODERN STYLE.

This album, due for release February 22, features Orbit's own take on classical pieces from Beethoven, Handel, Vivaldi and more. Initially, one might assume that they are going to pop this CD into the machine and get a healthy dose of progressive electronic club music. However, Orbit has opted to approach this project in a reverential manner, keeping the works intact and stylistically simple (well, check out the helicopter samples in "Triple Concerto").

To kick off the project, the dance mixes of BARBER's "Adagio For Strings" has been released as the first single and has already hit number one on the UK charts. Remixes by FERRY CORSTEN and ATB will also be included on the album as bonus tracks.

Not only will this project give a shot in the arm to the movement of electronic music among the otherwise dance music aloof, but it will introduce classical music to an entirely new audience, according to experts on electronic music.

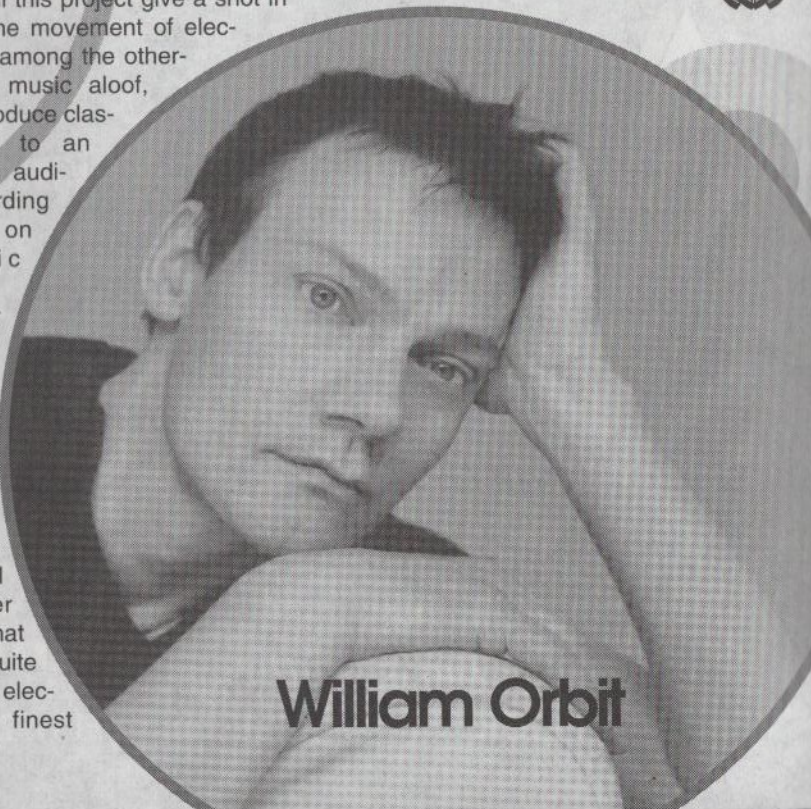

While many will wonder what a person like William Orbit thinks he's doing, creating a project like this, I will only ponder the notion that this could quite possibly be electronica's finest eeling a bit farklept this February? You are not alone, cousin: A solar eclipse in Aqueerius on the 5th sets the tone for a dizzy and emotional Valentine's month. Adding the retrograde Mercury to the mix will almost guarantee a full comedy of errors. Thankfully, Jupiter delivers a big rainbow heart on mid-month.

BY CHARLENE LICHTENSTEIN

AQUARIUS (JANUARY 21 - FEBRUARY 19)
February is a month of change, revelation and surprise for all Aqueerians. Of all the signs, you are perhaps the most affected by the eclipse on the 5th. Emotional reassessment of your life's directions that began last August are hitting you again this month. Do what you have to do to resolve these issues once and for all. A new broom sweeps clean; make it a vacuum, not a whisk.

PISCES (FEBRUARY 20 - MARCH 20)
Gay Fish feel like they are being led down a primrose path this February as promises vanish and guarantees are no longer guaranteed. Blame the confusion on the solar eclipse on the 5th when nothing is as it first appears. At the same time, this valentines month is an excellent time to toss out the old frights and embrace a new lavender you. You look stunning, you stunner, you.

ARIES (MARCH 21 - APRIL 20)
If friends appear to be especially annoying or hurtful this February, swallow your bile and chalk it up to a fierce February planet-fest in arrogant Aqueerius. Rainbow Rams risk misunderstandings and miscommunications if they overreact to perceive slights. My advice: Maintain a sense of humor, distribute many valentines and avoid those slippery banana peels. Whoops!

TAURUS (APRIL 21 - MAY 21)

As a fixed sign (with Leo, Scorpio and Aqueerius), queer Bulls will feel greater impact of the eclipse on February 5th. Emotions run especially high at work as long range plans quickly shift direction. On the bright side, many unresolved career issues will resolve now, more than likely for the better. Gather your gains, cut your losses and share the love with a particular valentine.

GEMINI (MAY 22 - JUNE 21)

February planetary action places more emphasis on global enterprises and travel. Maybe love in faraway places? The solar eclipse in Aqueerius on the 5th can close the case on any hanging legal issue, if you are lucky. Pink Twins usually feel that they have to get a consensus before they can take action. This month you'll realize that you yourself have all the answers.

CANCER (JUNE 22 - JULY 23)

Gay Crabs may not know what hit 'em this February as the solar eclipse in Aqueerius stirs up their volcanic passion into a hot and spicy seafood bisque. Eat while you can, cousin, but don't get indigestion. Emotions can run to the extreme and so can you. Thankfully you will always have a few good bosom buddies to bolster you up if a certain valentine gets you down.

LEO (JULY 24 - AUGUST 23)

Queer Leos can act imperious, arrogant and demanding around partners. Watch who you boss around this Valentine's month when the eclipse in Aqueerius cuts you and other fixed signs (Scorpio, Taurus and Aquarius) down to pint size. Some say size doesn't matter but ha! Rocky relationships can be scuttled and even strong ones shaken now. Is that what you want lover?

VIRGO (AUGUST 24 - SEPTEMBER 23)

February planetary activity rocks your day to day work. Are you fed up? Bored? Ready for a change? Gay Virgins are tempted to make an emotional final decision during the February 5th eclipse. Don't make any rash moves, cousin; Jupiter insists that you temporarily escape from your travails with a valentine's vacation. Face the dragons with a clearer head after the 15th.

LIBRA (SEPTEMBER 24 - OCTOBER 23)

If fun gets out of hand this February, blame the frenzy on the solar eclipse on the 5th. Even optimistic gay Libras are temporarily shaken by festive rumbles gone amok. On the bright side, creativity is unblocked and you become an artistic genius. After Valentine's Day you'll focus on your soul-mate. How many bars do you have to visit before you find your tall drink?

SCORPIO (OCTOBER 24 - NOVEMBER 22)

Proud Scorps are drawn into family disputes this February as the eclipse on the 5th flares emotions around relatives and at home. Issues that raised their ugly heads last August resurface so you can finally dispose of them once and for all. Comfortable it ain't, but once the field is leveled and reseeded, you will find that life is far more pleasant and affirming. And that ain't bad!

SAGITTARIUS (NOVEMBER 23 - DECEMBER 22)

February unleashes a lethal form of Sagittarian foot-in-mouth disease thanks to the eclipse on the 5th. Gay Archers must be extra careful of what they say and when they say it. Gripes that surfaced last August, find their way to your door again this valentines month. At the same time you continue to undergo great change as Pluto trolls through your sign. Oh goodie.

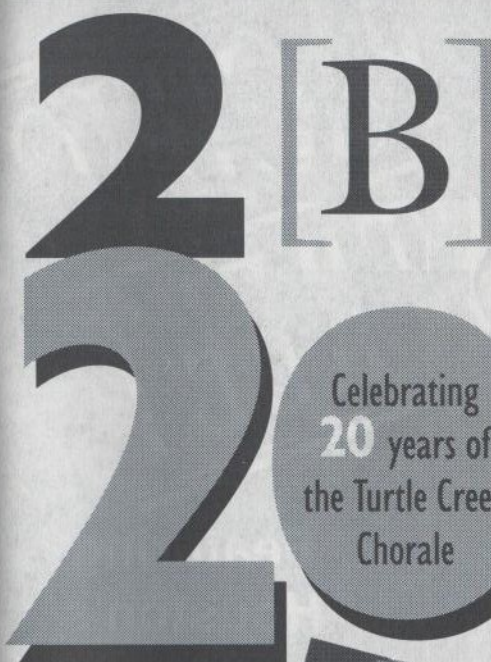

CAPRICORN (DECEMBER 23 - JANUARY 20)

As hard as you try to hold on to your valuables, the planets seem to conspire to relieve you of your possessions. Chalk up the leakage to the February 5th solar eclipse. Queer Caps feel the emotional pull of a shift in values. Good thing too, pardner; Review and reassess in time for Valentine's Day. Can money buy happiness? Hmm. On second thought, don't answer that.

NATIONAL

FCC OPENS DOOR FOR NEW FM STATIONS
*Low-Tech Radio Stations
Could Open Airwaves
To Schools, Churches and Organizations*

NATIONAL-The Federal Communication Commission has been approached by Federal regulators to work out a plan for bringing low-tech FM radio stations to communities all across the nation. The influence of music in numerous areas of the country has sparked an interest by listeners to create at least 1,000 low-power FM stations which will be run by local community groups, churches and schools that would spring up nationwide.

The proposal won approval Thursday, January 20 from the FCC. This move makes it possible for niche markets to have their local needs met for low-tech FM stations. Washington, D.C. is a far cry from Louisiana and Texas; but with this proposed access to the airwaves, the future of music in localized broadcasts, along with information for the classroom, and even community organizations and church groups, the future of small FM radio stations will mark significant changes over the next few decades. Passage of the pending proposal could come as important news to all gay Texans, especially those who live in rural areas not served by major radio stations.

The Gay Century

by Phil Johnson
Dallas Gay and Lesbian Historic Archives

It is 1977 and Anita Bryant's war against homosexuality has sparked outrage in gay communities across the country. For the first time, gay men and women fight back as they never had before. Politically...

July 4, 1977

Because of the controversy that plagued Anita Bryant's career after she took on the gay community, her singing engagements began to taper off. One of her last concerts took place in Brownwood, Texas. There, as always, Miss Bryant wrapped herself in self-righteousness and the red, white and blue.

At the June Dallas Gay Political Caucus (DGPC) meeting, members voted not to protest her performance in person for fear of small-town violence and the unfavorable publicity that would result. Instead, the DGPC took out a full-page ad in the Brownwood paper featuring the Statue of Liberty. The text bore the banner, "Speaking of Freedom."

July 11

Despite the efforts of the Radical Right to take control of the International Women's Year Conference in Houston, the majority of those in attendance passed a resolution supporting lesbian rights.

September 18

To help offset the big money of Anita Bryant's "Save Our Children" campaign, the Star Spangled Night for Rights at the Hollywood Bowl raised $100,000 to benefit Save Our Human Rights. Early in the first half of the program, Lily Tomlin stole the hearts of the 17,000 concert goers, but after intermission, comedian Richard Pryor nearly gave them a coronary. Fortunately, Bette Midler was standing in the wings.

Supporting acts included comedian David Steinberg, soul rockers War and Aalon, blues singer Tom Waits, actor Christopher Lee, The Lockers Disco Dancers and Hollywood Ballerina stars, Johanna Kirkland and John Clifford. All the performers donated their talent.

Things started to turn nasty when Richard Pryor, apparently, went on stage with unplanned material. At first, he won the audience with his down-to-earth, hard-hitting style. "I came here for human rights and found out that what it's really about is not getting caught with a [penis] in your mouth. Fine, so far. But as he rambled on, sometimes incoherently, he attacked gays for being racist and the show for focusing solely on gay issues. Noting the absence of black faces in the crowd, he pointed to "only a [N word] here, a [N word] there."

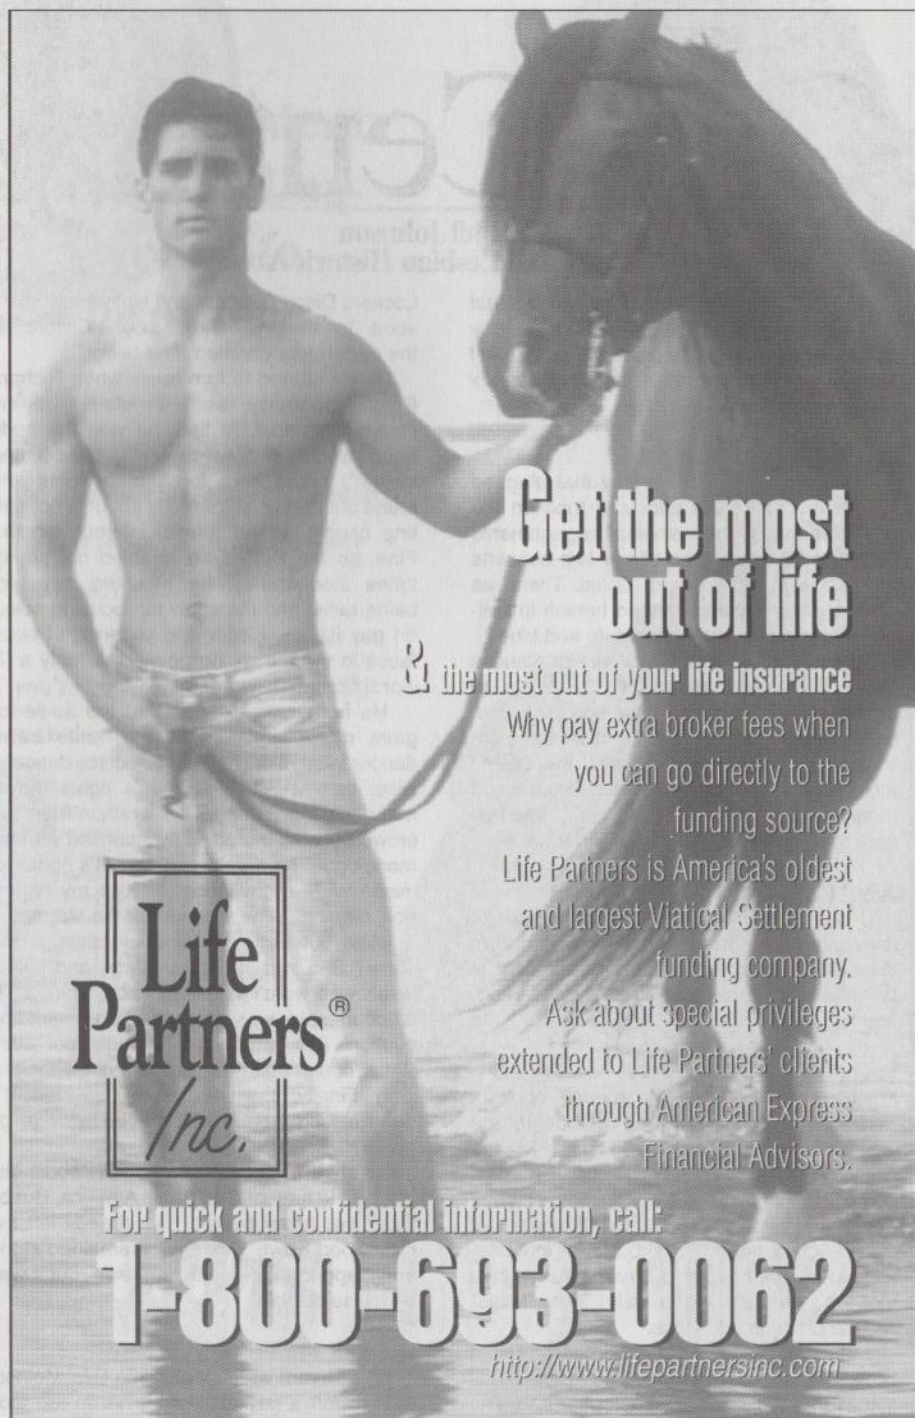

He further complained that the audience gave more applause to the white ballerina dancers than it did to the black disco dancers. Also, the "M women's rights movement" did not escape his wrath. When the crowd became increasingly incensed with his monologue, he angrily said, "That's right, get mad." With an invitation to "Kiss my happy rich, black a," he stormed off the stage.

Who but Bette Midler could salvage the show? She was rushed onstage and joked, "Well, who wants to kiss this rich, white a?" Of course she was rewarded with a standing ovation. But, after Pryor's tirade, not even Bette could hold the crowd's attention for long. Finally, she said, "We're all tired; it's been a long evening. Don't you want to go home?"

The show ended with a flashy fireworks display to the tune of God Bless America. But by that time, many people had already left the Hollywood Bowl. Those who remained stood and clapped their hands in unison, but it was a lifeless display.

October 14

Miss Bryant was speaking in Des Moines, Iowa when a gay activist hit her in the face with a cream pie. While the activist meant well, he embarrassed gay people and harmed the movement. Trying for damage control, most gay leaders issued statements saying that while they disagreed with her, Anita had a right to her beliefs and that violence, except in self-defense, was never acceptable.

November 8, 1977

Harvey Milk was elected to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, became the nation's first openly-gay elected official of a large U.S. city.

June 9-11, 1978

Organized by DGPC president Steve Wilkins and Vice President Don Baker, the Texas Gay Conference V was held at the Royal Coach Inn. Lesbian/women's activist Ginny Apuzzo, gay historian Don Amador and San Francisco City Supervisor Harvey Milk were guest speakers.

Harvey Milk would be assassinated within a few months. Perhaps as a harbinger of what was to be, an angry group of party-gees from Texas A&M threatened to "kick the s out of the queers" attending the conference.

June 25, 1978

Six thousand people attended a town meeting in the Astroarena. Co-Producers were Ray Hill, LaDonna Leake, W. Charles Law and Steve Shifflett. Frances "Sissy" Farenthold and Ginny Apuzzo delivered keynote addresses. Notable was the support the town meeting received from gay leaders, gay bars and businesses and the gay communities from across Texas.

That same day, the nation's first Gay Pride Band participated in the San Francisco parade. When the band rounded the street corner playing, "California, Here I Come," the crowd went wild.

That fall, the second band, The Gay Pride Freedom Day Band was organized in time for LA's October Gay Faire. These bands were the granddaddies of the Houston and Dallas Gay Pride Bands.

Summer and Fall - 1978

Anita's campaign had become national. Gay rights ordinances fell in rapid succession in Eugene, Oregon, St. Paul, Minnesota and Wichita, Kansas. Things certainly looked bleak for the gay movement. Then...

November 7, 1978

For more than a year California's gay communities were braced for a certain defeat similar to those in Eugene, St. Paul and Wichita. The Brigg's Initiative, Proposition 6, would make it illegal for lesbian and gay men or "anyone advocating a homosexual lifestyle" to teach in the state's schools.

But, multi-strategy organizing by diverse gay groups and the support of many in show biz as well as by Presidents Carter and Ford and even California's governor Ronald Reagan, turned the tide. Proposition 6 was decisively defeated. It was a major victory for battle-weary gay men and women.

On that same day, an anti-gay referendum was turned back in Seattle.

November 11, 1978

The Village People's YMCA made the chart! However, the Village People, riding a wave of gay popularity, denied they were, "that way."

November 27, 1978

In San Francisco, Dan White, ex-cop and ex-city supervisor, assassinated Harvey Milk and Mayor George Moscone. That night, 5000 people, gay and non-gay, marched in a candlelight procession to mourn the nation's loss.

San Francisco's policemen and firemen immediately began raising huge sums of money to be used in Dan White's defense.

February 11, 1978

The Texas Gay Task Force opened the first gay lobby in Texas.

February 25, 1978

TV evangelist James Robinson equated homosexuals with child molesters and murderers on his weekly TV show. Campbell Read, head of DGPC's Religion and Life committee requested equal time. The request was granted and WFAA-TV (not at the request of DGPC) chose to drop Robinson's show. The decision ignited one helluva controversy!

Next week, we finish up our trip through the '70's and begin our ride through the turbulent 1980's.

MICHAEL ANDREWS

We couldn't help but tease the impending Mardi Gras celebration, in neighboring Louisiana March 2-7, by giving you a 'taste' of one of the stunning locals you'll probably run across, should you choose to make the trek to Mardi Gras this year. Our friends at Oz Nightclub, in the heart of New Orleans, and Manwatch of Austin, turned us on to this week's cover model Shawn—one of the most sought after dancers in and around Texas and Louisiana.

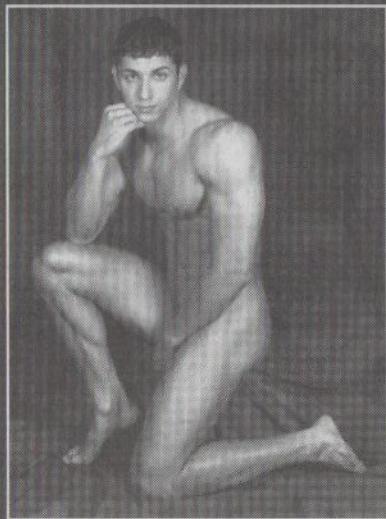

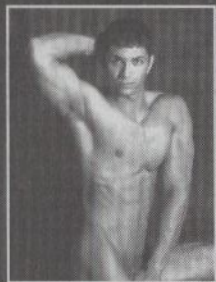

At six feet, five inches tall and 220 pounds, 24-year-old Shawn is an imposing tower of muscle and flesh with mile-wide shoulders and a sinewy grace that belies his size. He loves to dance, an affection that comes across loud and clear when he's working, and he enjoys working out, a hobby that has certainly paid off judging by these stunning Michael Andrews photos.

If you want to see a little more of Shawn, he performs regularly in Texas and Louisiana and can be seen tomorrow night at Rich's Dance1 party and at Oz during Mardi Gras.

Mart Crowley's The Boys In The Band offers the public a look at the world of the private gay man, a look behind the drawn shades of the late '60's. Steven Lindsey Reviews Two Dallas Theatrical Gems, The Mystery Of Irma Vep And Picasso At The Lapin Agile

With the Dallas/Fort Worth theatre scene growing larger and more diverse each season, it becomes difficult to find the best productions our cities have to offer. This week, however, I lucked out and found two deliciously unique plays that are guaranteed to tickle your Elmo....

The Mystery Of Irma Vep

It takes a lot to make me laugh until I cry and even more to make beer shoot out my nose. Fortunately for those seated beside me, the Dallas Theatre Center doesn't allow beverages inside the auditorium for The Mystery of Irma Vep. This perpetrator of glee is so thoroughly delightful in its campy exuberance that I would completely forgive you if you drop the magazine right now and call to reserve your tickets.

Parody is the name of the game as Charles Ludlum's deranged comedy comes to life in the more than capable hands of director Jonathan Moscone and actors Sam Catlin and Glenn Kessler. Drawing heavily from the legendary monsters of classic black-and-white horror movies (werewolves, mummies and the like), Irma Vep utilizes our vast knowledge of pop culture to create a terrific blend of plotlines and outlandish sight gags. The tale of terror is entertaining completely on its own, but with the grand twist of Catlin and Kessler performing all six characters (male and female), the play becomes a non-stop, quick-change extravaganza.

Both actors shine in each of their roles, but as is often the case, it's the cross-dressing that brings down the haunted house. Kessler's Jane, the mustachioed maid of Mandacrest, is a torpedo-breasted dynamo. As Lady Enid, Catlin brings blonde bimbo-dom to artistic heights. Improvisation also proves a handy weapon in this farce as Catlin quickly turns a costume-change mishap into a perfectly timed punch line. In fact, there are so many instances where the potential dilemmas of a two-man, six-character cast are incorporated with a devilish wink to an all-knowing audience that it would be hard to tell if a glitch were intentional or not.

The off-kilter set design by Alexander Dodge and the ingenious costumes by Katherine B. Roth provide the final details to perfectly complement the extraordinary acting and brilliantly witty dialogue.

If you're still undecided, I have a confession. As a reviewer, I get to see these plays for free, but I have already made plans to see the Divine Ms. Vep at least one more time with my very own money. Now that should do it!

Picasso At The Lapin Agile

A neighborhood bar. A sassy waitress. And a colorful array of patrons. Yes, it's Steve Martin's award-winning play about the chance meeting of Pablo Picasso and Albert Einstein one historic evening in Paris. You, however, need only travel as far as Addison's WaterTower Theatre.

Picasso at the Lapin Agile is a definite departure from Martin's usual writing style, but the result is rather uneven. This isn't enough to ruin the overall experience, however, and for that I'm grateful.

All the actors exhibit true talent and most get the opportunity to showcase it in wonderful ways, but there is one standout who I was delighted to see onstage once again, Brandy McLendon Federico. This exquisite actress first caught my attention in Pocket Sandwich Theatre's production of Crimes of the Heart as Babe and I have dreamed of the day I would see her again. As one of Picasso's loved-and-left, she milks her character for every possible laugh and nuance. I know it's atypical to focus on an actress in a secondary role, but her performance in anything is worthy of a trip to the theatre. As my space is limited (and I could go on about her for days,) I must resign to throw one final BRAVA! in her direction.

As for the main characters, Derik Webb's Picasso is appropriately arrogant, though a bit trying at times. Einstein, as portrayed by Robert Claycombe, is understatedly funny and ready to experiment with our preconceived notions about this famous man.

Mary Anna Austin is the barmaid, Germaine, who gets some of the play's best lines and is also a true standout among her peers. Coupled with Federico, it's the women who have the brains in this quaint little tavern.

As in Irma Vep, the wonderfully abstract stage, complete with giant frame, fits the mood and structure of the play completely and conveys character on its own. The Water Tower Theatre space itself is also one of the metroplex's finest small venues.

Despite its often slow pace, the play doesn't ever stall completely and entertains in unexpected ways. The biggest disappointment is Martin's completion of the "most influential triad of the 20th century" with a gimmicky one-joke character. I won't spoil it here, but you can probably guess exactly who it is. I think Picasso and Einstein deserve more original company, but the audience seemed to enjoy the choice nonetheless. What do I know anyway?

destination in New Orleans for some true southern hospitality. There has never been a party like Mardi Gras and nothing has ever compared to the OZ. Click your heels together and get in gear, because Mardi Gras is almost here. Check out their website at www.ozneworleans.com for all the decadent details. "Les bonne temps rolle por vous avec Oz." They'll fill your needs with much, much more than beads, although there'll be plenty of those too, to be sure.

HOUSTON TEA-
Picasso will turn things over to XZMOS Productions on Friday nights. When we queried Glitter Gui and Magick (the promoters) as to how the name (XZMOS) was pronounced, the promotion group answered, "yew-four-ee-uh." So there. Dapper doorman Chris [above] will welcome you for the Friday night DJ showcase featuring Mike and Alibi and 18 and up are welcome....

Over at Guava Lamp, James and Diana assure us that the party isn't over. They simply passed out for awhile. Get over to see them on Mondays for the Absolutely Fabulous party featuring cheap frozen margaritas and a dose of Houston's newest double trouble....

The friendly staff at the Montrose Mining Company includes two familiar faces in the Montrose area. Just shoot down The Mine's shaft and you're likely to encounter Alan and Patty Duke right at the door [above, l-r]. Mosey on up to the bar and enjoy super cheap drinks, especially on Fridays, when they've put together a special party to help

Over at JR's, the biggest after Sunday brunch soiree' in the city gets underway. Stop in and enjoy killer cocktail prices, SRO Karaoke and, of course, those hot, hard-bodied, male dancers that will make you wish you'd gone to church instead of brunch....

Club Inergy proudly announces their new show line-up on Wednesdays. Each week, along with great drink specials, talented MC Martina Reese and Jackie Fairchild, you can see San Antonio diva and reigning Miss Gay USofA Erica Andrews and Former Miss Gay USofA Sweet Savage. Our CRUISE CAMERA caught Lola Flame, Sweet Savage and Martina [above, l-r] during last week's performance and we encourage you to do the same....

Looking for a new Sunday Brunch hot spot. Check out Sonoma. Now under the direction of Houston hottie Kip Granberg, who just celebrated a birthday, the joint is really jumpin'. Just ask TWT cover photographer Michael Andrews, who loved it so much he left presents for the entire staff last week.

Pacific Street's bar staff is known for being fun and fetching. Just look at adorable Ran and Steve [above, l-r] who took a moment from their busy Sunday night to pose for us. On Sundays, the doors open early and you'll enjoy the cheapest regular priced drinks in all of Houston.
